Governor Makes It Official at Baton Rouge Meet

McKeithen-Aycock Ticket For Top Spots Disclosed

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Gov. John McKeithen formally announced Saturday he would seek a second term as governor. Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock, who had previously said he would run for governor too, announced instead he would seek re-election on McKeithen's ticket.

Neither statement came as a surprise. They appeared together at a joint news conference.

Aycock announced last year he would challenge the governor but it has been an open secret for weeks that he would seek re-election instead on McKeithen's ticket.

AYCOCK STATEMENT
"A few months ago I announced that I was considering running for governor," Aycock said. "However, after taking a statewide poll, after talking to many friends throughout the state and after analyzing the unprecedented vote in favor of the incumbent, I have now come to the conclusion that I would be doing an injustice to my family, to my friends and to myself should I seek the governorship at this time."
The announcement brings to four the number in the governor's race. U. S. Rep. John Ra-rick announced Friday night and Cy Courtney, a New Orleans attorney, and Buster Coleman announced Saturday.

ANNOUNCEMENT
"In this joint announcement I formally announce my candidacy for governor and... endorse Lieutenant Governor Aycock and those incumbent constitutional officers seeking re-election," McKeithen said.

In addition to the incumbent officers, the governor said he also endorsed Mrs. Mary Evelyn Parker, who resigned Friday as head of the division of administration to run for state treasurer. A. P. Tugwell, treasurer for 31 years, had announced earlier he would not seek re-election.

McKeithen, Coleman and Rarick qualified with the chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee Saturday. So did Aycock and a number of others.

ANNOUNCEMENT
The incumbents are Attorney General Jack P. F. Gremillion; Insurance Commissioner Dudley Guglielmo; Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr.; Comptroller Roy Theriot; State Supt. of Education William Dodd; Commissioner of Agriculture Dave I. Pearce; Registrar of State Land Office Ellen Bryan Moore, and Custodian of Voting Machines Douglas Fowler.

In announcing his candidacy Friday night, Rarick told supporters, "we are going to take the LBJ brand off the state of Louisiana."

McKeithen was itching to reply to that one Saturday and when the question came he answered it in a hurry.

"If there is any state in the nation that does not carry the LBJ brand, it is Louisiana," McKeithen said. He pointed out that Barry Goldwater carried Louisiana in 1964 and that President Johnson and that Lieutenant Governor Aycock had campaigned hard for Goldwater.

"I was one of the three Democratic governors who refused to endorse President Johnson," he continued. "The others were former Governor (George) Wallace (of Alabama) and Governor (Paul) Johnson (of Mississippi)."

"Three weeks ago in St. Louis the governors passed a resolution that was a virtual endorsement of everything the administration was doing. I was one of two that refused to sign it."

TROUBLE TIMES
McKeithen said the vote in the upcoming election "will determine which of us is best qualified to lead Louisiana."

In the air war, U.S. pilots raked North Vietnam's transportation routes and supply dumps Saturday. Navy pilots bombed the Binh Huy thermal power plant and the Ninh Binh military barracks. The pilots reported touching off a secondary explosion at the power plant.

Other U.S. planes destroyed six of an eight-truck convoy carrying gasoline north of Dong Hoi in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam. Black smoke rose 4,000 feet in the air after the strike.

Officials meanwhile said there was no evidence that Communists caused the blaze at the Marine ammunition dump. Literally millions of rounds of rockets, mortar, artillery shells and machineguns and small arms bullets exploded in a series of blasts triggered by a mysterious fire at the Phu Bai ammunition dump.

The dump, located 40 miles north of Da Nang, and about halfway between the DMZ and the sprawling U.S. Air Force base at Da Nang, was the major stockpile for Leatherneck outposts entrenched just south of the Demilitarized Zone.

SECOND FIRE
Firemen fought the flames and explosions for seven hours before it was declared under control and extinguished. Minutes later, the second fire swept part of the air base.

It erupted just as U.S. Air Force F4D Phantom jets were preparing to streak off the Da Nang strip for strikes against Communist positions in North Vietnam and the Demilitarized Zone. Destroyed was a Phantom, two 01 Bird dogs and three 02 spotters—light single-engine planes used as aerial observers to spot Communist positions on the ground for artillery and air strikes by the faster jets.

Explosions Destroy 6 U. S. Planes

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force F4C Phantom jet apparently damaged by Communist ground fire went out of control after landing at the Da Nang airbase Saturday and touched off fire and explosions that destroyed six American planes, military spokesmen said Sunday.

Other explosions, believed sparked by brush fires, virtually demolished a nearby ammunition dump vital to U.S. Marines defending against North Vietnamese attacks across the Demilitarized Zone.

No injuries were reported at Da Nang but the Phantom and five light observation planes were destroyed. The Phantom's hydraulic system suddenly failed on landing and jet fuel sloshed over the runway and parking apron, touching off bombs and rockets.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said the plane's loss of steering and braking control was "suspected to be caused from enemy ground fire." The plane veered into a jet fuel supply line.

Both the pilot and co-pilot jettisoned their canopies and scrambled to safety.

Allies Of United States Urge Pressure Be Put On North Vietnam Reds

Tennessee Guard In Rumor Fight

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—While National Guardsmen were battling riots in Detroit, Newark and other troubled spots, 4,000 troops were on duty in Memphis fighting a more elusive but equally dangerous foe—rumor.

In the wake of rioting in the North, Tennessee was swept with a frenzy of rumors of impending racial violence until the situation reached the critical stage in Memphis last weekend.

Gov. Buford Ellington put the entire Air and Army National Guard of the state on alert, some 15,000 men.

The danger was the known ability of contagious rumor to create the very disaster it imagines.

"No riot or lynching ever occurs without the aid of rumor," writes Gordon W. Allport, Harvard psychologist and a leading authority on the subject.

The current wave of riots began in Newark, triggered by the arrest of a Negro cab driver and exploded by the false rumor that police had killed him.

Detroit, scene of current rioting, suffered one of the nation's worst race riots in 1967. A 17-year-old Negro youth was charged with making up the unfounded rumor that sparked it.

A rumor that whites had tossed a Negro woman and her baby off a bridge started the fighting, and repetition of the story over a loudspeaker at a Negro recreation center the next day sent a crowd surging into the streets as the rioting began in earnest.

Ironically, the same rumor was popular in all quarters of the city. When whites told it, the roles were reversed, but the story was the same.

A riot in Harlem the same summer was spread by an exaggerated story that a white policeman had shot a Negro in the back.

The bloody Chicago riot of 1919 stemmed from a wildly spreading rumor about a Negro boy who drowned in Lake Michigan. The boy had drifted into a part of the beach used by whites, and a scuffle developed between Negroes and Whites. The boy sank amid a hail of stones.

Although medical examination found no sign of bruises, rumor immediately had it that the boy had been hit by a stone and drowned as a result and that white policeman had refused to arrest the "murderer."

In allusion to the developing nuclear capability of Communist China, the committee said "the decision on the deployment of the antiballistic missile system cannot rest on any bilateral agreements reached with the Soviet Union."

In withholding an order to start deployment of the Nike X system, already well developed experimentally, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has pointed to the possibility that talks between Moscow and Washington might lead to an agreement to limit this costly escalation of the arms race.

The Soviet Union reportedly already is deploying a limited ABM system.

McNamara has estimated the cost of a missile defense system at from $3 billion to $40 billion depending on how many potential targets were to be defended. And he argues that no defensive system could prevent catastrophe.

Rain Possible In Area Today
Partly cloudy skies, warm temperatures and widely scattered thundershowers are forecast for the Northeast Louisiana area today. The high temperature today is expected to be between 80 and 90, with tonight's low between 70 and 76.

The Louisiana Agricultural forecast calls for drying conditions generally fair to good through Monday except for a poor late night and early morning hours. Dew points in the upper 60's and low 70's are expected with 30 to 70 per cent sunshine today. A 20 per cent probability of rain exists for the area. Amounts of rainfall are expected to be one quarter inch or less, but there is a chance of locally heavier amounts in thundershowers.

The high temperature in Monroe Saturday, according to FAA at Selman Field, was 91 around 3 p.m. The low was 71 around 4 a.m. FAA recorded .41 inch rain Saturday.

Anti-Missile System Urged Due To China

WASHINGTON (AP)—Because of Red China, the Senate Appropriations Committee wants an immediate start on a U.S. antiballistic missile system regardless of any possible agreement with the Soviet Union to limit such a multibillion-dollar arms race.

Backing up the committee's formal recommendation, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., in an interview Saturday called China "the mad dog among nations" and said its emergence as a nuclear power makes imperative an immediate start on a defense system.

In its report approving a $70-billion Defense Department money bill for the current fiscal year, the committee said:

"It is the view of the committee that the deployment of the Nike X antiballistic missile system should be initiated immediately, and the committee urges the executive branch of the government to take action accordingly."

In allusion to the developing nuclear capability of Communist China, the committee said "the decision on the deployment of the antiballistic missile system cannot rest on any bilateral agreements reached with the Soviet Union."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Special emissaries Maxwell Taylor and Clark Clifford, just back from the Far East, told President Johnson Saturday that the U.S. offensive in Vietnam was "headed on the right track" and there should be a continuing buildup of pressure on the Communists.

The presidential envoys also said most U.S. Allies favor continued bombing of North Vietnam and a second Asian summit meeting to review progress of the war.

Taylor and Clifford talked with news after a two-hour luncheon session at the White House during which they reported to Johnson on their two-week tour of five nations.

ASK SUGGESTIONS

Clifford said in each country they met with top officials to transmit Johnson's views on the Vietnam conflict, and for Gen. Taylor to report on the military situation. He said they also asked the officials for suggestions.

Taylor said he was impressed by the unanimity expressed by officials in all five countries endorsing the conduct of the war. There were no major objections to any aspect of this country's policy, he said.

As Clifford put it: "The consensus, without exception, was that the Allies were headed on the right track."

Both men reported immediately upon their return that the Asian Allies were behind continued bombing and would like another chance to discuss the outlook in Vietnam.

Landing at Andrews Air Force base, Clifford told reporters that the Allied governments "were unanimously agreed that the bombing should be maintained at the present or at possibly an increased level."

Taylor said there also was agreement that President Johnson should meet a second time with Asian heads of state. He did not mention where or when, but the session is expected to be scheduled for some time in October, probably at Bangkok, Thailand.

Taylor and Clark visited government leaders in South Vietnam, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand and South Korea as special representatives of the president.

VIEWERS EXCHANGED

Clifford said during their discussions there was "a complete exchange of views on the progress, strategy and economic problems of the war."

He described the two-week trip as a "stock-taking visit," and said he and Taylor presented the views of the president and listened to the opinions of the allied governments.

Taylor is a former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Ambassador to South Vietnam. Clifford is a Washington attorney and a close adviser to President Johnson.

Order To Halt Race Hatred Talk Expected

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Leaders of Nashville's Liberation School will be told this week to cease teaching Black Power and hatred of whites or face loss of federal funds, The Associated Press learned Saturday.

An official of the city's anti-poverty agency predicted an order will be issued immediately to withdraw the school's financial credit.

"We are not going to allow any agency under our control to use public funds in any way which violates guidelines set down by the Office of Economic Opportunity," the source said. He asked that his name not be used.

Police Capt. John A. Sorace told the Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington Thursday that the school uses anti-poverty funds to teach "pure, unadulterated hatred of the white race."

As a result of Sorace's testimony, Harry Carpenter, an OEO inspector from Washington, came to Nashville to determine whether the school is being operated in violation of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and OEO guidelines.

Carpenter has declined comment on his probe.

A local anti-poverty official said the ultimatum was hammered out after Carpenter conferred with the Rev. J. Paschal Davis, chairman of the Metropolitan Action Commission.

Sorace testified that the school — which was approved by the commission and OEO to teach Negroes to take pride in their race — was being operated by Fred H. Brooks, 29, a leader in Nashville's chapter of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Brooks said he is director of the school, although Frank K. Sloan, Atlanta Regional OEO director, said Brooks has received no federal funds in connection with the school.

The source told The Associated Press that the Liberation School will be ordered to remove all "religious symbols" and all Black Power literature from the classrooms at St. Anselm's Episcopal Chapel where classes are held three times weekly.

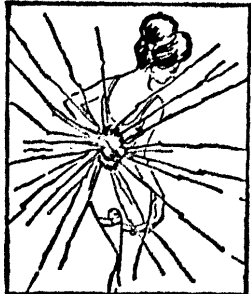

This order, he said, will apply "to any literature or objects designed to create animosity between whites and Negroes."

The source also said the school will be required to end segregation of its faculty which now consists of several young Negroes, most of them students at Tennessee A&I State and Fisk universities.

Brooks said earlier the school does not fear loss of federal funds. The federal government, he said, "can keep their funds—we're going to continue operating."

And, the Rev. James Woodruff, rector of St. Anselm's who oversees the Liberation School, added, "We'll get the money somewhere."

Troop Growth In Vietnam Is Cited

By The Associated Press
President Johnson last week announced plans for another increase in American Forces in Vietnam.

This chronology traces the growth of that force from 300 training advisers in 1955 to the planned level of 525,000 by next year.

Feb. 12—U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group takes over training of South Vietnamese Army with 300 U.S. advisers.

1957
May 15—United States discloses it has 692 advisers in South Vietnam.

1961
May 6—President Kennedy says United States considers use of American troops to prevent Communist takeover.

May 13—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, in Saigon, announces additional military and economic aid for South Vietnam.

Dec. 31—It is disclosed that 11 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in 1961.

Feb. 8—U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group raised to a Command, and Gen. Paul Harkins takes over. U.S. advisers number 4,000.

April 30-May 12—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara visits South Vietnam for the first time, says he is "tremendously encouraged" by developments, believes U.S. aid has reached a peak and will start leveling off. There are 8,000 troops in South Vietnam.

October—U.S. forces in South Vietnam number 10,000.

Dec. 31—It is disclosed that 31 Americans were killed in South Vietnam in 1962.

January—U.S. forces number 12,000.

Oct. 2—After survey trip to South Vietnam by McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, White House says they think "major part of the United States military task can be completed by the end of 1965, although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of United States training personnel." United States strength reported at 14,000.

Dec. 31—A total of 78 Americans killed in South Vietnam during 1963. U.S. troop strength 16,500.

March 17—After McNamara's return from fourth Saigon trip, White House says "there have unquestionably been setbacks." Omits mention of withdrawal of all forces by the end of 1965, says "policy should continue of withdrawing United States personnel where their roles can be assumed by South Vietnamese, and of sending additional men if they are needed."

May 14—McNamara returns from fifth trip, says Viet Cong terrorism is increasing and more troops may be needed.

May 18—President Johnson asks Congress for $25 million additional aid for South Vietnam, saying "This increased terrorism requires increased response."

July 1—Gen. William C. Westmoreland replaces Gen. Harkins.

July 27—Disclosed U.S. sending "in the order of" 5,000 more troops to South Vietnam, raising total to 21,500.

Aug. 4—Destroyers Maddox and C. Turner Joy attacked in Tonkin raid. President Johnson goes on television at 11:37 p.m., announces retaliatory raids. U.S. carrier planes destroy North Vietnamese torpedo boats and bases in 5-hour raid.

Aug. 5—President Johnson asks Congress for a joint resolution assuring him full support "for all necessary action."

Aug. 7—House (416-0) and Senate (88-2) adopt Southeast Asia resolution declaring United States is "prepared, as the President determines, to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed forces, to assist any member or protocol state of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty requesting assistance in defense of its freedom."

Dec. 11—United States announces increase in military assistance "for security reasons."

Dec. 31—147 Americans killed in South Vietnam during 1964.

Feb. 7—At 2 a.m., Viet Cong attack two American camps at Pleiku, in the Central Highlands. Eight Americans killed, 126 wounded.

Feb. 7—United States and South Vietnamese planes attack bases in North Vietnam. President orders 550 Marines with Hawk missiles to Da Nang to guard U.S. air base, directs that 1,810 government dependents be brought home from South Vietnam immediately.

March 6—Pentagon announces 3,500 Marines being sent to Da Nang to guard the U.S. air base there.

April 2—Disclosed United States has decided to send several thousand more troops to South Vietnam, to add to the 27,500 already there.

April 7—President Johnson, in speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, offers $1 billion plan to aid Southeast Asia, including North Vietnam. Also declares "We will not be defeated. We will not grow tired. We will not withdraw, either openly or under the cloak of a meaningless agreement." He also says the United States remains ready "for unconditional discussions."

April 10—1,400 more Marines arrive at Da Nang.

April 19-20—Total U.S. troops pass 33,000.

June 16—U.S. announces 1,000 more troops for Vietnam, making total 75,000.

July 14-21—McNamara, on sixth visit to South Vietnam, says "in many respects it has deteriorated since 15 months ago, when I was last here."

July 28—President Johnson orders U.S. forces in South Vietnam increased to 125,000, says more troops will be sent.

November 28-30—After seventh visit, McNamara says "we have stopped losing the war."

Dec. 31—U.S. casualties for 1965 are 1,369 killed, 6,114 wounded, largest for any year thus far. U.S. forces in Vietnam now total nearly 200,000.

Attorney Won't Have To Testify

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (AP)—A district court judge Saturday denied a request for a summons to have a former Warren Commission lawyer testify in the New Orleans perjury trial of a witness in the Kennedy assassination investigation.

The state of Louisiana sought to summon Wesley J. Liebier, a professor of law at U.C.L.A. to testify at the trial of Dean A. Andrews Jr.

Andrews is accused of lying to a grand jury during the controversial probe of Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Liebier, who has a summer home in Newfane, questioned Andrews during the Warren Commission probe.

Judge John H. Carnahan said he denied the application for a summons because the request contained no factual evidence, but only the conclusions of a Louisiana judge.

Judge Carnahan said there are written transcripts of information which Liebier could supply and his presence was not necessary in the trial. He also refused to grant the summons because the short notice given Liebier to appear would create a hardship.

Liebier told the court he had personal business outside Vermont next week that would conflict with any appearance in New Orleans.

The professor contended he was not served with papers until 10:30 p.m. Friday and that left insufficient time to arrange other matters.

Ponderosa Ban On Horses Tried

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (UPI)—Heavens to Bontanza! They're trying to outlaw horses in the Ponderosa country.

The Störney County Commission is considering an ordinance banning horses on city streets. Only horseless carriages would be permitted in this historic old mining and cattle town.

"We are not trying to keep local people from owning horses," said Chairman Buz Goodman. "but we spent several thousand dollars on new paving and hate to see it chopped up."

Jewelry Theft Is Disclosed

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—The mysterious theft of more than three quarters of a million dollars worth of jewelry from the wife of millionaire sportsman Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney was disclosed Saturday.

Police Chief Peter Pemberton said the jewelry, valued at $781,800, disappeared Wednesday night from a closet of Mrs. Whitney's bedroom in the socialites' colonial mansion.

Back At Work

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—After pleading no contest to counterfeiting charges and being placed on probation, Samuel S. Gonzales returned to work—at the U.S. Government Printing House.

Liebier was scheduled to testify Wednesday and Thursday in New Orleans.

GLORIA FRYE'S letter from Marshalltown, Iowa, to her boyfriend, Mike Gradisar, aboard the carrier Forrestal, was a penny short in postage, so he had to leave his compartment to go to the ship's post office and pay the penny. Moments later the ship was rocked by an explosion and fire, killing everyone in the compartment. (AP Wire-photo)

Mississippi Race Absent Of Any Issues

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Democratic voters, with more personal attacks than issues to guide them, will turn out in record numbers Tuesday to pick from seven candidates for governor.

With similar campaign promises from opposing camps, the voters have depended more on the tone and emphasis of the candidate than his platform in making decision.

Generally regarded as the major candidates are:

Former Gov. Ross Barnett, 69-year-old Jackson attorney whose efforts to block desegregation at the University of Mississippi in 1962 shot him into national prominence.

State Treasurer William Winter, 44-year-old Grenada lawyer whose energetic campaign and efficient organization has made him a real threat to his two nationally known opponents.

And Rep. John Bell Williams, 48, whose support of Republican Barry Goldwater in 1964 cost him his House seniority in a Democratic caucus decision reaffirmed this year.

The other two candidates expected to draw sizeable votes are Dist. Atty. Bill Waller, 40, of Jackson, who twice tried in vain to convict a white man in the murder of Negro leader Medgar Evers in 1963, and country singer-radio station owner Jimmy Swan, 54, of Hattiesburg, who says to grant equality to the Negro is to make savagery the equal of civilization.

Don't Blame President, Smith Says

BURLINGTON, Iowa (UPI)—The Johnson administration cannot be blamed for racial disorders unless all other administrations since the Civil War also are blamed, UPI White House correspondent Merriman Smith said Saturday.

The 1964 Pulitzer Prize winner spoke under sponsorship of the Burlington Hawk-Eye at a state convention of Jaycees.

"The blame is on the nation as a whole for having taken over 100 years to really do something about slavery and its aftermath," Smith said.

"The people who cry loudest against encroaching federalism frequently are the ones who want the federal government to take not only the blame, but responsibility for preventing, stopping or paying for riots in big city slums."

Lunar Orbiter Circling Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—America's Lunar Orbiter 5 spacecraft slipped into elliptical orbit around the moon Saturday after scientists commanded it to fire a small braking rocket.

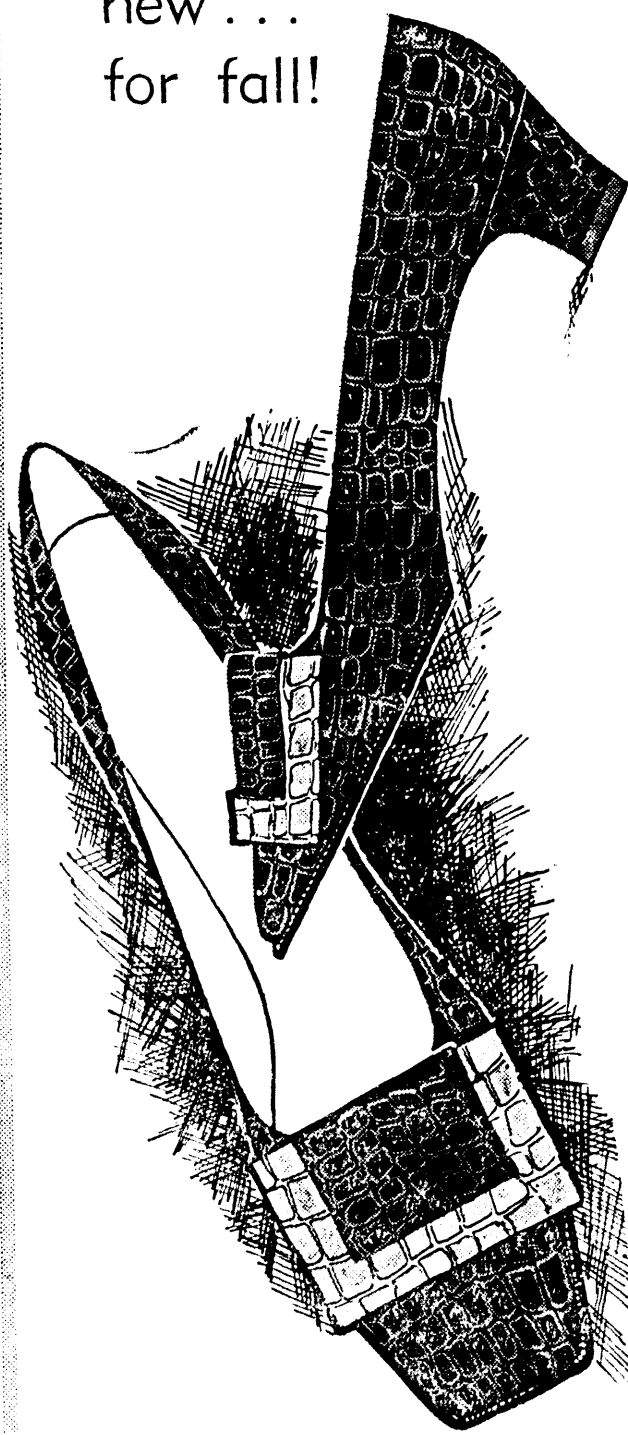

"There's no doubt about it now," a spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, "we're in orbit around the moon."

"We don't have enough tracking data yet to give the exact figures, but we're certain it went into orbit as planned."

Earlier, he said, the craft's 100-pound thrust rocket engine was fired for eight minutes, 20 seconds to slow the vehicle's speed by 1,438 miles an hour. Initial speed as it approached the moon was 3,900 m.p.h. He said slowing the craft trapped it in the moon's gravitational field.

'Ouachita' Is Moored After Fire

MEMPHIS (AP) — The tow-boat Ouachita was moored to a Mississippi River revetment Saturday following an explosion and fire that left the craft a burned-out shell.

No one was injured. Fire broke out aboard the Ouachita Friday night after an explosion in the base of one of its main engines. The flames raced uncontrolled through the $300,000 boat until they finally were extinguished by water that poured over the sides of the settling hull.

The Coast Guard patrol boat Sycamore pushed the nearly-swamped vessel ashore 24 miles downstream from here. The barges were secured by other rescue craft.

The Ouachita was pushing six barges loaded with about 12,000 tons of rock to be used in revetment and dike work along the river. It was en route from Cuthersville, Mo., to Kangaroo Point, south of Helena, Ark.

The Ouachita is owned by Hillman Logan of Greenville, Miss.

Area Seaman Hurt In Fire On Forrestal

DELHI (Special) — Seaman James E. Bryan, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bryan of Route 3, Delhi, was reported Saturday as doing "all-right" after being injured aboard the Forrestal last Saturday.

In a telephone call to his parents, he said he received a slight leg injury, but that it was "healing" and doing alright.

Seaman Bryan had been in the Navy Reserve two years before entering active duty in January, 1967. He graduated from Central High School here.

Sudden Flash; 70,000 Died

Hiroshima A-Bombed 22 Years Ago Today

HIROSHIMA (UPI) — Twenty-two years ago Sunday, Japan reaped the whirlwind of the winds of war she had sowed in a place called Pearl Harbor. The time was 8:14 a.m. on Aug. 6, 1945.

A B29 bomber with the name "Enola Gay" painted on its nose appeared in the calm morning sky over the southern Japanese city of Hiroshima, a seaport ringed by green mountains.

Hiroshima had been spared the disastrous fire-bombing raids that had struck Tokyo. The industries of war hummed and the people sat down to breakfast of rice and seaweed.

Hiroshima, they thought, was a good place to be living. The people in Tokyo really had it rough.

That was what they thought at 8:14 a.m. on a calm summer morning in the 21st year of the reign of Emperor Hirohito.

A minute later their world ended in a blinding flash of light and fire and storm. Some 70,000 persons died almost instantly as the great force burned, charred and blew away thousands of tiny wood-and-paper houses.

Where the heart of the city had been there was now nothing but blackened ruins.

Incredibly, almost at Ground Zero, the steel girders of what had been Hiroshima's industrial promotion center still reached to the sky.

Today the ruins of the industrial hall are the only remaining evidence of the minute when a city died.

Guadalcanal Aid To U. S. Viet Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-five years ago Monday, on Aug. 7, 1942, troops of the U.S. First Marine Division hit the beach on Guadalcanal island in the opening American offensive of the Pacific War.

In Vietnam today, American troops are profiting from the lessons of that campaign. The terrain is similar, formidable jungle again and high mountains.

"The men are better able to survive in the jungle today," said Maj. Gen. Raymond G. Davis, who as a captain commanded a special weapons company on Guadalcanal. "There is less malaria and jungle rot than we had."

Col. Dean Benson, artillery intelligence officer of the Army 25th Division, cited three areas of experience, in aerial reconnaissance of enemy positions, the use of bulldozers in clearing the jungle, "and the 360-degree defense perimeter at night. The Japanese taught us a lot about infiltration."

AMAZING THING
"The amazing thing is that tactics at low altitude haven't changed too much," said Brig. Gen. J.J. Foss, the Marine ace who won the Medal of Honor for shooting down 28 Japanese planes in the Battle of Guadalcanal. "The air-ground support is much more refined today," Foss said. "It takes split-second timing to make it work and it saves a lot of lives. Of course, you've got much better communications and more refined equipment going for you today."

The Combined Action Platoons, in which American troops live with and fight alongside South Vietnamese, stems from Marine experience in the 1915 landings in Haiti and the 1927 occupation of Nicaragua, said Gen. Henry W. Buse Jr., Marine Chief of Staff. On Guadalcanal, the American forces also received invaluable assistance from the Solomon Islanders as scouts and coast watchers.

Best known of these was Sgt. Major Vouza, of the British Solomon Islands Constabulary. He was captured by the Japanese and tortured when he refused to give them information about American positions. Left for dead, Vouza made his way to American lines and was hospitalized. Twelve days later he was back in the field. As he lay without exception, officers who fought on Guadalcanal and have been in Vietnam say the American fighting man is better trained and better equipped than he was 25 years ago. They also say he is better educated and—by contrast to many U.S. troops in the Korean War—knows what he is fighting for.

"And they have the same devotion," said Gen. Buse. "It would be difficult to picture greater devotion than that of an 18-year-old Marine on Guadalcanal."

"His name was Jerry Aarons and he came from Ohio," said Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt. Although Aarons weighed only 130 pounds, and fainted several times from heat and exhaustion, Aarons refused to let his buddies carry any part of his pack or his Browning automatic rifle.

After a night of fierce fighting on the Tenaru River, one of the main battles, Walt, then a captain, went out to inspect his lines.

"Jerry was in his fox hole, covered with blood from head to toe," Gen. Walt said. "There was a dead Japanese officer in the fox hole with him and 13 more enemy dead in front of it."

Aarons, severely wounded but conscious, pointed to the officer's sword, he said, "Here's a souvenir for you, Captain. Those guys tried to run over me last night. I guess they didn't know I was a real Marine."

The Battle of Guadalcanal lasted six months, from Aug. 7, 1942 until Feb. 9, 1943. The island was the high water mark of Japanese expansion. The American victory was the turning point in the Pacific War.

Fleet Admiral Nagano Osami, Chief of the Naval General Staff, said after the war, "I look upon the Guadalcanal and Tulagi operations as the turning point from offense to defense, and the cause of our setback there was our inability to increase our forces at the same speed as you did."

The campaign was planned and launched under conditions of extreme urgency.

The Japanese were pushing southward, aiming to capture New Guinea for a base to attack Australia and New Zealand.

In the race against time, a then relatively obscure officer, Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, directing operations from Washington, had been pushing men and equipment into Australia as fast as he could.

The mission of the Imperial Japanese Navy was to establish a base in the Solomon Islands to provide air and sea protection for the army's flanks in the drive southward. Work had begun on an air field on Guadalcanal.

Hence, the island had acquired very great strategic importance.

Little was known to American planners about the strength of the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal or the nearby islands of Tulagi and Gavutu-Tanamabogo. There were no adequate maps. Crude sketches were made from an aerial photograph. Former British residents of the islands were questioned about the terrain, but a complete description of Guadalcanal's 90-mile length could not be obtained. The invasion would be a shoe-string operation, but it had to be attempted—and immediately.

Fortune favored the Marines. The warships, troop transports and supply ships came down the channel between Savo Island and Cape Esperance on Guadalcanal without being sighted. It was a complete strategic and tactical surprise.

Col. David R. Griffin, then a Second Lieutenant, described his feelings as the landing craft approached the beach:

"We were all apprehensive.

We were more afraid of the unknown than anything else. It was an experience you just couldn't visualize."

"We began to think the enemy were 10 feet tall. They had mastered the jungle whereas, to us, it was a barrier that we had yet to overcome."

The Marines expected to take heavy casualties at the water's edge. In fact, they encountered only random sniper fire as they moved inland toward the air field and other objectives.

Then both the Americans and Japanese made serious mistakes.

Monroe Morning World Sunday, August 6, 1967 5-A

Faulty intelligence caused the American supply ships to be withdrawn before they were fully unloaded. There was chaos on shore as ammunition and supplies poured in.

Food was shot short ashore that Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, the commanding officer, put the men on two meals a day. They did not eat at noon. Had the men not found huge stores of Japanese rice and canned fish, the problem would quickly have become acute.

Also, the "beach master" system, which worked so smoothly in later amphibious landings, had not been fully developed. There was chaos on shore as ammunition and supplies poured in.

The Gallup Report

Johnson Defeats Reagan 51-39 Per Cent In Poll

PRINCETON — A recent Gallup "trial heat" pitting California Governor Ronald Reagan against President Johnson shows the vote for Reagan falling not far short of the vote given Gov. George Romney and Richard Nixon.

Romney and Nixon currently are the leading contenders for the Republican presidential nomination among the party's rank - and - file.

The President wins 51 per cent of the support of likely voters, while Reagan has the backing of 39 per cent, with the remaining 10 per cent undecided. An earlier mid-June survey showed Johnson with a 51-43 lead over Nixon and a 49-44 margin over Romney.

Reagan does less well than both Romney and Nixon, but for a man who has held political office barely six months, his showing must be regarded as impressive.

The following question was asked of 1518 persons in 320 localities across the country in mid-July. Because the people in the sample are carefully selected so as to be representative of the nation's voting population as a whole, the results can be considered to be a close approximation of the results which would be obtained if all likely voters had been questioned.

"Suppose the Presidential election were being held today. If Reagan were the Republican candidate and Lyndon Johnson were the Democratic candidate, which one would you like to see win?"

The results for the nation, based on likely voters:
Johnson	51
Reagan	39

Solid Party Backing

Reagan gets the backing of 3 out of 4 Republicans and is able to attract as many independent votes as does Johnson. The President on the other hand wins the support of 3 out of 4 Democratic voters.

Here are the results by party affiliation for the Johnson-Reagan race as well as the Johnson-Romney and Johnson-Nixon contest:

	Rep.	Dem.	Indep.
Reagan	74	14	44
Johnson	19	76	44
Undec.	7	10	12
Nixon	79	20	46
Johnson	14	76	47
Undec.	7	4	7
Romney	75	22	51
Johnson	17	73	41
Undec.	8	5	8

Factors Behind Reagan Appeal

Undoubtedly one of the reasons why Governor Reagan has gotten off to such a fast start is the fact that he is extremely well known to the general public.

It usually takes many months and even years for a person with political aspirations to gain widespread "name recognition," but Reagan, due to his movie and television career, was known to 3 out of every 4 Americans only a matter of weeks after his victory in last November's gubernatorial contest in California.

The Reagan 'Style'

A prominent factor in Reagan's popularity is his "style," as indicated by a recent survey conducted by the California Poll.

The survey indicated that the Governor's popularity in his own state has risen appreciably since May. Whereas 66 per cent of respondents thought that he was doing a "good" or "fair job in May, 74 per cent did so in June.

At the same time there were across-the-board decreases in both approval and disapproval evoked by specific acts of the Governor. This led the Director of the California Poll, Mervin Feld, to conclude that opinion "is now being based more heavily on his personality and style and less on specific actions than it was in the early days of his administration."

Must Appeal To Convention Delegates

To get a chance at the nomination, a prospective GOP candidate must not only demonstrate that he is a good vote-getter, but he must impress convention delegates as well.

A survey conducted earlier this year of the nation's local GOP county chairmen — who are delegates themselves or have a hand in their selection — provides some indication that Reagan does have potential appeal at the party professional level.

Nixon was by far and away the top choice of these men, followed by Romney and Reagan. But an analysis of the second choice of these local party "pros" showed Nixon supporters going to Reagan over Romney by the ratio of better than 3-to-2.

Sulzer Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Jim Sulzer, 74, of Rt. 4, Box 600, West Monroe, will be at 2 p.m. today in New Chapel Hill Baptist Church with the Rev. A. C. Cantrell officiating, assisted by the Rev. James A. Smith.

Burial will be in New Chapel Hill Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe.

Mr. Sulzer died Friday around 9:45 p.m. in Glenwood Hospital after a short illness. He was a native of Decatur, Ga.

He was a member of New Chapel Baptist Church and the American Legion.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Gladys Sulzer, West Monroe; two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Natchitoches, and Mrs. W. E. Borders, Shreveport; three sons, Robert L. Ingram, Long View, Tex., Fabe Ingram Jr., Mansfield, Ohio, and Jerry D. Ingram, West Monroe; and 12 step-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be A. W. Rachal, Allen Pinchard, Asa Albright, Alvy Jowers, Archie Williamson and Benny Andrews.

One Hurt In Wreck Here

A two-car, rear-end collision on Louisville Avenue near the Arkansas, Louisiana and Missouri railroad crossing Saturday resulted in minor injuries to the driver of one car.

Mrs. Mary P. Hall, 32, of 108 Dillingham Dr., was treated for minor cuts and bruises at St. Francis Hospital and released.

Mrs. Hall was injured when her car failed to stop and collided with the rear of a car driven by Percy W. Parker, 46, of 601 Cole Ave. Both autos were traveling west at the time of the crash.

Mrs. Hall was charged with following too close.

Canadians Seek Woman Robber

MONTREAL (AP) — A tiny mother of two who police say can operate a machine gun "like a commando" is the most sought-after bank robber in Quebec Province.

Already wanted on warrants by provincial police and police in suburban Montreal North, the 27-year-old firebrand, dubbed by detectives as "Machine Gun Molly," struck again Friday.

This time it was a credit union in the city's East-End where she and two hooded men escaped with $9,000.

R. E. WINGATE

Wingate Is Candidate In State Race

Raymond E. Wingate of Baton Rouge announced Saturday his candidacy for the office of Commissioner of Insurance in Louisiana in the Nov. 4 Democratic Primary.

Wingate has a total of 17 years of Agriculture, Wild Life and Fisheries and the Department of Education.

He said he deplores the fact that insurance premiums for automobiles have risen to heights almost beyond the average citizen's reach and that other lines of insurance are following the pattern of auto insurance, adding that "it is high time something was done to remedy the situation."

Wingate said he is not associated with any insurance firms and, if elected, will work toward lower insurance rates and will

Shot Proves Fatal For Man In Arkansas

EL DORADO, Ark. (Special) — Billy Davis, 14, of Flint, Mich., died Saturday morning of an infection resulting from an abdominal gun-shot wound he suffered Wednesday.

According to Union County Sheriff Homer Pirtle, the accident occurred as young Davis was being pursued by some dogs owned by his grandfather, Sam Williams. The youth climbed a large bush near his grandfather's home about four miles south of Smackover, Ark., where he had been visiting.

Williams, on hearing the commotion, went to investigate. Being unable to determine what was in the bush, he fired blindly with a .22 caliber rifle, wounding the boy.

Richard Martin, Union County deputy coroner, ruled the death accidental.

leave no stone unturned in his effort to bring this relief to the people of Louisiana.

The brother of the late E. D. Wingate, he is married to the former Mabel Head of Chatham and is the father of four children. He was born in Jackson Parish, and is a member of the Pipefitters Union Local 198.

Area Democratic Committee Meets

FARMERVILLE (Special) — The Union Parish Democratic Executive Committee will meet Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock for the purpose of calling a primary election to be held November 4, 1967.

Candidates for the offices of sheriff, clerk of court, assessor, coroner, police jurors, justices of the peace, constables and members of the Parish Democratic Committee must qualify with the Parish Committee no later than filing deadline of 5 p.m. Tuesday, August 15.

Curfew Imposed

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A city-wide curfew was clamped on Wichita Saturday following several days of rock throwing and other disturbances involving groups of Negroes and police.

W. E. CAPERS

Capers Seeks Election As Area Sheriff

OAK GROVE (Special)—Sheriff W. E. "Gene" Capers, of West Carroll Parish, has announced his intention to seek reelection in the Democratic primary to be held November 4.

Capers is now serving his first term as sheriff.

In connection with his candidacy for re-election, Sheriff Capers issued the following statement:

"I have been honored to serve the people of West Carroll Parish as sheriff since 1964. During this time, I have constantly sought to improve our equipment, our personnel and our services to the public.

"Law enforcement has become more complex and difficult than ever before because of decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court favoring the criminal. Almost everyday brings a new and different challenge and I am convinced that only experienced and dedicated law enforcement officials can successfully meet the challenge.

"A new Louisiana Code of Criminal Procedure went into effect on January 1, 1967, and I have studied and worked hard in order to meet the challenge of working under these new laws.

"There have been six from our sheriff's office who have completed courses in L.S.U. Law Enforcement Training.

"Since you elected me your

UGF Operates All Year To Help All

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another series of articles on the United Givers Fund and its year-round role as an agency for voluntary, concerted community action in the areas of health, welfare and recreation.

A mentally disturbed man — a potential suicide — is helped better to understand his problem. A 10-year old child is cured of a speech defect. A family in distress receives aid until they can get back on their feet. A 19-year-old young woman from a distant town is given needed fellowship and understanding as she begins her first job. A teenage boy, on the road to being a delinquent, finds an outlet for his energies in wholesome recreation and sports.

These are but a few random samples of United Givers in action — of how the funds given by people who "care" are put to work helping people. They typify the numerous ways in which the 13 agencies supported by the United Givers Fund of Ouachita Parish operate the year-round in maintaining a healthy social and economic climate in this community. They demonstrate voluntary, concerted community action for the benefit of all.

Such case histories are multiplied hundreds of times each year. Many of them occur quietly, with little fanfare. Since most of the publicity about United Givers is given to the annual fund campaign in the fall, many people are not fully aware that the UGF is a 12-month-a-year activity. The agencies to which it provides needed funds perform their vital work day in and day out — often around the clock — in helping assure the overall progress of Ouachita Parish.

"United Givers measures the very heartbeat of this community," a local UGF official said recently. "It is the greatest example today of the people of Ouachita Parish voluntarily, in a spirit of genuine concern, combining their efforts, time and money to fulfill their responsibilities."

sheriff, I have been dedicated to law enforcement and it is upon this dedication and my experience that I base my candidacy for re-election as sheriff.

"I earnestly solicit the vote and support of all the citizens of West Carroll Parish."

possibility to meet the health, welfare and recreation needs of the entire community."

He was referring not only to "fair share giving" (a minimum of an hour's pay per month for every employed person), but also to the thousands of man-hours of volunteer labor contributed each year by hundreds of UGF workers. These include both the executives who man the various committees which plan and carry out the United Givers program and the campaign organization which solicits the funds, as well as a sizable number of volunteer workers who help staff the 13-UGF-supported agencies themselves.

These agencies can be divided into three general categories of community-building endeavor — health, welfare and recreation. Each plays a vitally significant role in the "progressive thrust" of Ouachita Parish.

HEALTH: In this field are four local UGF agencies which carry on important work in the area of physical and mental health. Their facilities are available to all citizens in the parish requiring them. These are the Monroe Regional Mental Health Center, the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center, the Ouachita Association of Retarded Children and the Twin Cities Council of Alcoholism.

WELFARE: Here United Givers extends a humanitarian helping hand to people in genuine need. Here it ministers to the physical or spiritual needs of people who have been struck by financial reverses or have experienced emergencies brought on by adverse weather, wartime conditions such as the current Vietnam conflict, or other forces beyond their control. Functioning in this vital area are the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, and the Twin City Community Welfare of Ouachita Parish.

RECREATION: In this category of endeavor, United Givers has the potential of serving a large majority of the families and individuals in the parish. UGO.

The UGF-backed agencies in this

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Arab foreign ministers concluded their five-day conference Saturday night and passed on to a summit meeting of heads of state virtually all the problems facing the Arab world.

The foreign ministers took no concrete measures against Israel in their often stormy deliberations and left for the summit any actions to "eliminate the results of Israeli aggression."

field supplement the health and welfare activities of United Givers — and thus permit it to meet the needs of the "whole man" — by seeking a well-rounded program of body, mind and character-building athletics and recreation. Such a program of wholesome recreation and the promotion of high standards of sportsmanship and morality are particularly vital for the youth of this area (who comprise nearly half of the parish population), as means of combating juvenile waywardness and delinquency.

UGF agencies operating in this significant area are the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the West Monroe Boys' Club, the Twin Cities YMCA, the YWCA, and the UGO.

Duke To Seek Re-Election As Assessor

COLUMBIA (Special) — Edgar Duke, veteran Caldwell Parish Assessor, Saturday announced his candidacy for reelection for the post. He is seeking his fifth consecutive term.

Duke, a native of Caldwell, is seeking the re-election on the basis of his record during the past 16 years.

Active in both parish and state circles, Duke is presently secretary treasurer of the local Lions Club and the Caldwell Athletic Club. He has held every state office in the Louisiana Tax Assessors Association, and is immediate past president of the organization. Presently he is serving as chairman of the Legislative Committee for the state assessors.

A veteran, he served with the 82nd Airborne seeing action in Sicily, Italy, Germany, France and Holland.

Hiss full statement read: "I am asking re-election to the post of Tax Assessor for Caldwell Parish, subject to the Democratic election later this year. I am seeking the post held for the past 16 years, or four terms, on the basis of my service to the property owners of Caldwell Parish.

"I feel the experience which I have gained during these past years my qualifications for reelection. I am asking that the people of this parish base their vote on what has been done for the parish and not on promised of what may be done.

13 agencies," said the UGF official, "and you have the greatest program of voluntary, concerted community-wide action operating today."

I would like to state without qualification that I am opposed to the "so-called equalization" of assessments, because I believe it to be unfair to the small property owners. I have fought in the past and shall continue to fight for the property owners of my parish.

"I know the problems of this parish, having spent most of my life here.

"I would appreciate the support and vote of all of the people of Caldwell Parish."

Hopes Dim In Search For Tots

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Her northwest Oklahoma City home. Only Judith's small shoe was found.

This time, the only clue is her bicycle—found at a neighborhood grocery store, one block from the suburban Midwest City home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob White, Brenda's parents.

The two cases are similar, and officers fear a child molester may be in the Oklahoma City metropolitan area.

The Whites, who have six children, live in a small, frame house in a modest neighborhood surrounded by woods and pastureland.

The area has been scoured by air and by foot and on horseback, but none of the 600 volunteers has found a trace of the missing girl.

The National Guard and units from nearby Tinker Air Force Base have joined the search.

ROBERT W. IRBY

Irby To Seek Police Jury From Ward 3

Robert W. (Bob) Irby, an employee of Twin City Printing Company for the past 35 years, Saturday announced as a candidate for police jury from Ward Three.

Irby, who lives at 3213 Lee Ave., said he had been a resident of south Monroe for the past 45 years and is the father of two children.

He is a member of the Southside Methodist Church, the Masonic Lodge, and is president of Local 59, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders.

His statement said: "I would like to solicit your vote and support for my candidacy for one of four places on the Police Jury from Ward Three. The election will be held Saturday, November 4. I would like to take this opportunity to urge everyone to register and vote."

"Our Ouachita Parish Police Jury needs men who can work together harmoniously as a team in order to effectively resolve the vital issues confronting it daily. Having served on the Police Jury for eight years and served on all the committees, I feel that I am qualified to represent your best interests."

Steele Motors, Inc., and F. N. "Sticky" Steele, president, have been cited by Mack Trucks on the completion of nine years as a dealer for the big truck manufacturer. The plaque recognizing the occasion was presented to Steele by R. C. Massingill, left, southwest division distributor manager for Mack, Allentown, Pa. Also present for the occasion were J. R. "Buddy" Eanson, right, Steele Motors general manager, and J. H. Monroe, left, Steele Motors truck manager. The plaque gives special recognition to Steele Motors as quality dealer who has maintained Mack's high standards of excellence for truck sales and service in Northeast Louisiana. Steele Motors became a Mack Truck franchised dealer for Ouachita Parish in May, 1958. Because of the dealership's outstanding record of customer service and satisfaction the firm was awarded the entire Northeast Louisiana sales territory. F. N. Steele is recognized as having the longest continuous connection with the automotive industry of any dealer in Louisiana. He has operated a car or truck dealership continuously since 1936. — Adv.

on our Police Jury.

"My allegiance will be first to the people of Ward Three and Ouachita Parish and not to any political, professional or business organization. When elected, I will not seek, through my office, special privileges or private gain."

"I am an independent candidate seeking this position only for the help that I believe I can extend to the Jury and administrative staff, and last but not least, the people of Ward Three and Ouachita Parish."

"I have eight years service on the Police Jury from Ward Three and have knowledge of the various committees on which I have served, as chairman of the Court House Committee and member of the Finance Committee, Road Committee and the Purchasing Committee. I feel this past experience would qualify me for a seat on the Police Jury."

When elected one of your police jurors, I pledge to you active and responsible leadership for economical operation of our parish government."

Navy Beginning Forrestal Probe

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI) — The U.S. Navy has started a formal inquiry into the cause of the huge fire which ripped the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal and killed 131 men last Saturday.

Naval experts from Japan and Norfolk, Va., make up part of the committee which is now deliberating on the events that led to the worst naval disaster of the Vietnam war.

MARY EVELYN PARKER

Mrs. Parker In Race For Treasurer

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Mrs. Mary Evelyn Parker, 46-year-old widow and mother of two young girls, says she is a candidate for state treasurer in the Nov. 4 Democratic primary.

Mrs. Parker has served as Gov. John McKeithen's state commissioner of administration during the past three years. She said she resigned before making her announcement.

The governor's office said N. P. Himbert will be named acting commissioner of administration. He has been Mrs. Parker's executive assistant.

State treasurer A. P. Tugwell, 77, who has served eight terms, said he would not seek re-election.

Mrs. Parker, who has been Gov. McKeithen's top financial officer, said she announced as a result of Tugwell's decision.

She promised to "devote my full energy toward conducting the office of state treasurer with

Man Charged For Locking Up Wife

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Police arrested an Italian farmer Saturday and charged him with forcing his young wife to live for two years locked up in a stable, where she bore him a son and a daughter.

They said Mario Sonnino, 22, locked up his wife Marie, 19, shortly after their honeymoon. In the small stable next to the farm house at Contrada Castelluccio, near Naples, she gave birth to Ciro, now 20 months old, and Elisa, now 9 months old, assisted by a midwife.

Mario acted out of jealousy, fearing his wife would meet other men, police said, adding that they searched the barn after neighbors gave the alert. The wife and children were in rags, dirty and underfed when found, police said.

the same efficiency, integrity and dedication that has characterized Mr. Tugwell's tenure in office.

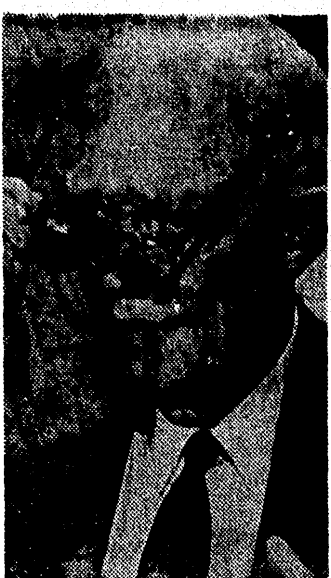

"I believe that my background in state government over the last 20 years qualified me for this post," Mrs. Parker said.

She served as state director of commerce and industry under the 1948-52 regime of the late Gov. Earl K. Long, and in 1956 Long named her commissioner of public welfare.

Former Gov. Jimmie H. Davis reappointed her to this post in 1960. She served as welfare commissioner until 1963, when she resigned to help McKeithen in his campaign for governor.

Mrs. Parker said state treasurer Tugwell "has had a long and distinguished career in the public service of our state and under no circumstances would I have offered for this office had he filed for re-election."

Mrs. Parker's husband, Bryant, died two years ago. They have two daughters, Mary, 12, and Ann, 8. She also has a stepson, Phillip, 42.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

Eisenhower Hospitalized With Ailment

WASHINGTON (PI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center Saturday suffering from "a minor gastrointestinal upset."

Eisenhower, who was hospitalized for 13 days with a stomach ailment last May, was reported to be "in good condition" and "resting comfortably."

A hospital spokesman said the general was stricken at his Gettysburg farm Friday night and was flown here by helicopter at mid-day Saturday for observation.

Eisenhower was attended by his physician, Dr. Harold Johnson, in Gettysburg Friday night and was reported much improved Saturday morning.

Nevertheless, Walter Reed physicians decided it would be best to hospitalize him for observation.

Riot Effect Discussed By Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Housing Robert C. Weaver says "if the current riots keep up, our cities definitely are in danger of disintegrating entirely—they just can't stand it."

But, he says, "I don't think that has to happen" because "violence can be suppressed and put down by law enforcement."

In an interview, the nation's first Negro Cabinet member said:

"The type of riots we've been having is a tragic and serious development and threatens the whole fabric of America unless something is done about it." Weaver said the relationship of the riots to the problems behind them is like an iceberg: "The violence is what you see above the surface. What you don't see is below."

Asked whether the reaction of many whites to the riots might threaten to destroy relations between white and Negro in America, Weaver said:

"There are dangers of that."

Youths To 'Keep' Grave Grounds

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — Six boys charged with desecrating Memorial Cemetery in nearby Upper Lehigh were ordered by a judge Saturday to care for the burial grounds until the fall of 1968.

The boys, unidentified because they are minors, were accused of turning over and smashing tombstones and tearing flags from graves.

Riots Slow Down Poverty Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consideration of antipoverty legislation faces a slowdown in the House because of concern among Democratic leaders about the political effect of rioting in the cities.

Polling of Democratic members has shown a sharp drop in the number who would vote for the administration's $2-billion program since the rioting began.

The question is whether this is an instant reaction or a deep-seated one, and I don't think anybody can tell now."

"A month ago we were in good shape," said a key supporter of the legislation. "Now we're in trouble."

As a result, the House Education and Labor Committee, which was scheduled to start work Tuesday on an antipoverty bill, will take no action on it for at least two weeks. It could be mid-September before a bill is ready for the floor.

There have been delays in the Senate, too. At two of three meetings called last week to consider the bill, a subcommittee failed to muster a quorum.

The new difficulties for the program come at a time when the Office of Economic Opportunity has apparently triumphed over a Republican effort to dismantle it and distribute its programs to existing agencies.

The Republican members of the Education and Labor Committee are about to abandon that approach and concentrate on seeking a larger role for business in training the poor for jobs.

The shift in strategy is expected to be agreed upon at a caucus Monday of the GOP members. It is based on two developments during committee hearings on the antipoverty bill: little or no support for the move to split up the OEO, and strong support for on-the-job training by private industry.

'Understanding' Talks Slated

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A new round of labor talks aimed at strengthening a "memorandum of understanding" signed by labor contractors recently is scheduled today.

Gov. John McKeithen, who was instrumental in getting the two sides together to hammer out the memo in his office two weeks ago, said he suggested the meeting but doesn't plan to attend.

"I will not attend it unless they ask me to attend it or to help them," the governor said.

McKeithen said the purpose of the meeting was to assemble a joint committee as provided under terms of the memo.

Cy Courtney To Run For Governorship

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Cy Courtney, a New Orleans attorney and president of Louisiana Legal Publications, announced Saturday he will run for governor this fall.

Courtney, who ran for lieutenant governor on William Rainey's ticket in 1959, said he will call his campaign "The Earl Long Memorial campaign."

The 43-year-old Courtney said he wants to reinstitute the concern for older people "and those who are helpless against big government."

"The people simply don't appreciate knowing that the present attitude is that we lose a half million dollars in the budget without even knowing where it went," said Courtney.

There has been talk among supporters of U.S. Rep. John R. Rarick, who announced for governor Friday night, that Courtney would be a candidate for lieutenant governor on Rarick's ticket.

In 1945, President Truman signed the ratification of the United Nations charter. Also in 1945, the Soviet Union declared war on Japan, just seven days before Tokyo surrendered.

Turner, both of Quitman; three daughters, Mrs. Minnie Neoles, Ruston, Mrs. Addie Lynde, Quitman, and Mrs. Betty Brumley, Jonesboro; six brothers, Alvie and Jim Causey, both of Pine Bluff, Ark., Rhodes Causey, Little Rock, Ark., Ned Causey, Ruston, Hartford Causey, El Dorado, Ark., Lucie Causey, Monroe; four sisters, Mrs. Dena Jones, El Dorado, Ark., Mrs. Nettie Nelson and Mrs. Lucille Smith, both of Ruston, and Pearl Johnson, Quitman; and 17 grandchildren.

McKeithen Announces Candidacy

fied to lead Louisiana in these troubled times, perhaps the most troubled times in a hundred years.

He said there were "labor problems, race problems that might explode, questions of the best way to continue with our industrial expansion program."

"We should go over the record as one of my opponents said and that is what we propose to do — to look at the record."

"This administration might have had something to do with keeping the strife and blood letting out of the streets."

"This administration might have had something to do with settling the problems of labor."

"We don't propose any great big campaign. Professional polls show everyone in Louisiana knows their governor and know enough about him to make up their minds."

McKeithen, 49, is a native of Grayson, La., and a graduate of Louisiana State University, where he received bachelors and law degrees. He is married to the former Majorie Funderburk and they are the parents of six children.

McKeithen is a World War II veteran, entering as a private and emerging as a first lieutenant. He was awarded the Bronze Star in the South Pacific.

He is a former member of the Louisiana House of Representatives and was a floor leader for the late Gov. Earl K. Long. He was a candidate for lieutenant governor in 1952 and was elected to the Public Service Commission in 1954 and again in 1960.

The governor maintains a home at Columbia some 30 miles south-southwest of Monroe and also maintained a law office in Monroe for a number of years.

Aycock is a native of Franklin, La., and received his law degree at Loyola of New Orleans. Aycock is also a World War II veteran and received the Bronze Star and five battle stars.

Aycock is married to the former Elaine (Teen) Champagne and they have six children. Aycock is a former member of the House of Representatives and was elected as lieutenant governor in 1960 and again in 1964. In winning the 1964 race he drew more votes than any candidate for governor or lieutenant governor in the state's history.

Services Set Monday For Mrs. Harold

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Beulah Ryan Harold, 64, of Shreveport, relative of two West Monroe residents, will be held at 10 a.m. Monday in Shreveport.

The rites will be under the direction of the Wellesman Funeral Home of Shreveport.

Mrs. Harold died late Friday night in Schumpert's Hospital.

She was a daughter of Mrs. Florence Crawley and sister of Mrs. Hazel Abrough, both of West Monroe.

Other survivors include her husband, Steve Harold, Shreveport; one other sister, Mrs. Varie Monroe of Crowley; three brothers, Gaston Crawley, Rayville, A. R. Crawley of Newell, and Curtis Crawley of Dallas, Tex.; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Boy's Summer Made Up Of Sneakers, Bikes, Baseball--

What makes a boy's summer in a middle-class suburb? It's made up of bikes, kickball, chores, sneakers and baseball. For Scott Wilson it also includes Tarzan yells, teachers kids your own age, and heroes. In the idyll of an 11-year-old, the biggest problem is, what to do tomorrow.

By F. RICHARD CICCONE

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Scott Wilson's summer is full of bicycles and balls, banana seats and big sisters. His world is a neighborhood of well-kept homes separated by lawns of deep green.

Scott Wilson is 11 years old. He is stringy and his brown hair drips over his forehead to the top of his black-rimmed glasses. He wears shorts that have frayed edges. "I have to remove the hem from all his new pants," sighs his mother.

His footwear and that of his playmates is sneakers, without socks, sometimes unlaced and always unclean. "Mother," asks 15-year-old Melanie, "why does Scottie always have to look like a slob?"

FRIENDS COUNT

Scott Wilson's people are grownups, whom he doesn't mind; little kids, whom he ignores; bigger kids, of whom he is wary; and his friends, who are the only ones that really count.

Scott lives in La Grange, a middle-class suburb of Chicago where fathers commute on the Burlington and teenagers drive their own cars.

Scott's day begins with breakfast snatched from the table as soon as it is served by his grandmother, and a quick, frowning glance at the small blackboard in the kitchen which his mother uses to jot down Scott's chores.

Before he decided his next movement, the telephone rang and he raced Melanie to reach it.

"It's for you, Ding-Dong," he giggled and ambled to the sun porch to collect the soft drink bottles as directed by the blackboard.

He stuffed more empty cartons into his arms than he could carry and frequently had to unload and begin again. After three trips to the garage he was finished and he stood in the driveway.

Marty and Bruce arrived and the three boys talked quietly. One kicked at the gravel, another plucked leaves from bushes. Suddenly, Scott jumped on his bike. Marty scrambled onto the rear fender and Bruce leaped on the handlebars.

They rode into the street and around the block several times, heralding their approach with Tarzan yells. Scott's bike is mod. It's small, with a long narrow seat and V-shaped handlebars. "He had an old bike," his grandmother said, "and for his birthday he wanted something called a banana seat and those high handlebars." "They're called California Highs," Scott says.

BIKE ACCIDENT

Scott slammed the bike into the curb in front of Bruce's house. The boys landed in three different places, unhurt.

"Boy, what a wipe-out, Scott," Mary said.

They spotted Mary Lou sitting on her porch.

"Mary Lou, let us borrow your ball," Bruce asked.

"You have to bring it back to our porch," the little girl replied.

Scott dug a hard, gaily colored ball from behind a fern bush and kicked it into the street. Kickball amused the boys for a while until a "little kid" drove his bike through their playing field.

"Bet you can't catch him and hit him with the ball," Marty challenged Scott. Scott pursued the boy and bounced the ball off his head. The boy, laughing, "Scottie, can I ride your bike?" Scott refused and rejoined his friends.

FRIENDS ARE important — boys his age. His bike — with its banana seat and high handlebars — is important . . . For Scott Wilson of La Grange, Ill., they are the center of his lazy summer days. Here Scott, right, and Mike Kallal ride down the street of their town, a suburb of Chicago. Scott, 11, and Mike, 12, are classmates at St. Francis Xavier School — now on vacation. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Minutes later the boy was astride Scott's bike and no one seemed to care.

Scott kicked the plastic ball to another lawn and suddenly darted into his back yard, plunging his sneakers through four lawns en route.

He dragged the garden hose across several fragile shrubs to the garbage cans. He had remembered the second note on the blackboard — "Clean garbage cans."

Scott finished his chores, bounded into the house and returned with his baseball glove. He located his bike a few doors away and pedaled off deserting his friends.

"He's known Marty and Bruce all his life," grandmother said. "But they're a year younger and right now he doesn't think he should play with them." She smiled.

The Little League All-Stars were playing a practice game when Scott arrived. He perched on the scorer's table behind the batting cage. A pitching change was made.

"That's Mike," he said.

"Mike is one of the people who count. He and Scott live a block apart. They were in the same sixth grade at St. Francis Xavier. Mike is an All-Star pitcher. I don't play Little League this year." Scott said.

"He goes to all the games," his mother said. "He watches Mike all the time. Each year he starts Little League, then quits. He just doesn't like organizations."

After the game, Mike and Scott pedaled back to their neighborhood and went to a small park. There are many parks and playgrounds in La Grange.

They continued their one-on-one game that had started the previous day. Scott pitched and Mike, a tall youngster with precocious coordination, rapped the ball over second base and into center field. Scott slapped his glove into the dust and retrieved the ball.

A white-haired boy on a non-mod bicycle parked behind the batting cage. He watched the game for a while, then called to Mike who was pitching.

"Now I know how you practice baseball, All-Star. You throw a rubber ball to a perk with horn-rimmed glasses." He rode his bike in slow circles on the street.

"Why don't you come back here and say hi," Mike answered. "You talk and hiding behind a fence. Come on and fight."

"I don't waste time fighting."

"No, you talk behind fences," Mike shouted.

"Why don't you shut up?" Scott shouted.

"Why don't you make me, Wilson," the white-haired boy called back. He rode out of sight of the two boys.

"Come back here and he will," Mike said.

"Come back and I will," Scott echoed.

SUCH A BABY

"He's such a baby," Mike said, throwing the pitch over Scott's head into the screen.

"Yeah. At least we play baseball. What's he play? Croquet?" The game continued until mid-afternoon when it was time to meet John.

"John is Scott's best friend," grandmother said. "He moved to Western Springs, an adjacent suburb, and his mother drives him over."

Scott and Mike sat on the sofa. Melanie and Jeff, 21, were also in the living room. A car stopped in front.

"Here comes John," Scott yelled. "The best catcher in Little League."

The trio met at the front door, looked inside and spoke in whispers. They came in. John said his polite "Hi's" to Melanie and Jeff. The boys sat on the sofa.

"Did you watch the all-star game last night?" John asked.

"Thirty strikeouts, Gee."

"Clemente struck out four times," Mike said.

"Melanie watched it," Scott giggled.

"Her favorite boy, Ken Berry, struck out for the last out. What a bum."

"He's still good," Melanie defended the Chicago White Sox outfielder. She left the room.

There was more baseball talk, then Scott approached Jeff about the possibility of buying some soft drinks at the store. Jeff gave him a dollar.

"He always has money," Scott's father said. "If he's not biling Jeff, Lynne or Melanie, he's getting it from his grandmother or his mother or me. He always has a dollar." He laughed.

John rode on the back of Scott's bike the four blocks to the store. They spent the dollar on soft drinks and candy, paying little attention to Jeff's, "I want some change back."

They sat on the cement stoop which was crowded with bicycles of all types, some with gears, hand brakes, speedometers, some with banana seats and no fenders, some with chrome fenders. Each detail was discussed and appraised.

Another boy drove up and dismounted, dropped his bike to the ground.

"Hey, Scott, guess who's not teaching seventh grade next year? Sister Mary Ellen."

"Oh, no. Where's she going?"

"Eighth grade."

"Boy, watch. When we get to eighth grade, she'll go back to seventh."

Scott, John and Mike mounted the two bikes and went back to the park where they played double-or-nothing. Each rotated from the outfield to pitching to batting. Mike won the game 15 to 4 to 1. Scott had 1.

The game went on until it was time for John to dress for his Little League game. He and Scott returned to the Wilson house. Mike went home.

While John was dressing, Mrs. Wilson asked Scott if he was hungry.

"He never eats lunch during the summer. I worry about him, but it doesn't seem to hurt him," his mother said.

She made two sandwiches. John came downstairs in his gray flannel La Grange Shoppers uniform. The boys walked out carrying the sandwiches in one hand, their baseball gloves in the other.

It was a record cold day for July. John's mother and father, wearing windbreakers, were in the stands. They waved to Scott.

John struck out his first time up. The opposing team had a big second inning and scored one run when John threw wild to third base. His father yelled, "Come on, John, come on."

Scott said nothing.

John struck out his next time up. His mother said, "I can't take any more. I'm going to sit in the car."

By the fifth inning, Scott was walking around trying to keep warm. John's team got murdered. The boys talked briefly. John walked off the field with his father.

"See ya," Scott said. He got on his bike and began pedaling home.

He thought about the upcoming game with the Hinsdale Little League all-stars. He hoped Mike would pitch. He thought about what a jerk the white haired kid was. He doesn't even play baseball.

He wished Sister Mary Ellen were going to be in the seventh grade and he wondered if Melanie would give him some money tomorrow.

It was summer. He was 11 years old and each day belonged to him.

Many Questions Yet To Be Answered On Apollo Plan--

Six months ago the nation was shocked, and the Apollo moon program staggered, when three astronauts burned to death in their capsule. There have been changes since, and the moon program is slowly recovering, but still many questions are awaiting answers.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Six months after the Apollo 1 fire that killed three astronauts, America's man-to-moon program appears to have pulled out of a shocking tailspin.

The crisis of confidence is nearly "over," commented an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "We're not entirely back on the track yet. But we and our contractors are breaking our backs to get there."

Some critics contend that the United States should abandon the goal of landing men on the moon in this decade. They say the Apollo 1 fire has made the chances of achieving the target very slim and haste could produce the same pressure and short-cutting that contributed to the deaths of the astronauts last Jan. 27.

Many problems must be solved before even an unmanned Apollo spacecraft will fly again. Astronauts will not ride into space before next spring.

"We will fly the spacecraft when we, the crew, think it is ready," said Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. He will head the first three-man team to test Apollo in orbit.

TRAPPED BY FIRE

The fire that trapped the astronauts in their spacecraft cabin during a ground test burst NASA's bubble of seeming invincibility. It also tarnished the reputation of a giant aerospace firm, North American Aviation, Inc., which built the spacecraft.

The honeymoon that NASA had enjoyed for years with Congress ended, mainly because of testimony by NASA Administrator James E. Webb before committees of the Senate and House.

Some congressmen accused Webb of lack of candor and one said he should resign or be fired. Others, long-time backers of Webb and the space program, defended him as an able administrator.

After a 10-week investigation, a board of review listed the most likely cause of the fire as defective wiring under the seat of the command pilot, Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom. The other victims were Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H. White II, and Navy Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

The board said NASA and North American had been guilty of poor management, negligence, sloppy work and failure to adequately consider the safety of the astronauts. NASA and North American officials said the brilliant success of the Gemini program had caused them to become overconfident and that they had failed to recognize the hazards of a routine ground test.

MANY QUESTIONS

Many questions were raised in the weeks of congressional inquiry. Among them:

—NASA was aware of problems at North American more than a year before the fire. Why did it not exert stronger management control to solve them?

—Why, after the fire, was not NASA's top management subjected to the same searching inquiry and change that occurred at North American's space division?

—The shadow of Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, onetime secretary to the Senate Democratic majority, loomed over the hearings. Was there a link between Baker, North American's Washington representative Fred B. Black, former Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, and Webb in the award of the spacecraft contract to North American and subsequent land, banking and business deals in Oklahoma?

—Was Congress remiss in not keeping a closer watch on NASA?

Attempts by some congressmen to extend the Apollo 1 hearings to probe these questions were blocked. Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Space Committee, said he did not think anything useful would come from a resumption of the hearings.

At the request of some members of Congress, the General Accounting Office is investigating many aspects of the Apollo program. The report won't be completed for several weeks.

Webb and other NASA officials responded vaguely before the Senate Space Committee on Feb. 27 to a question from Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn. Mondale asked about the existence of a "Phillips Report," which he said was reportedly critical of North American in its handling of two major Apollo contracts — that of the spacecraft and of the second stage of the Saturn 5 moon rocket. The report was drawn up by a review team headed by Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director at NASA headquarters.

LATER HEARINGS

During later hearings before the House NASA Oversight subcommittee, Rep. William F. Ryan, D-N.Y., demanded that the Phillips Report be turned over to the committee. The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., advised NASA that it did not have to release the report. From the outset, Webb opposed releasing it saying it might damage government-contractor relations.

The report was compiled in December 1965, in a collection of notes and memoranda which Phillips forwarded with a covering letter to North American President J. Leland Atwood. NASA officials said that by April 1966, the company had made some degree of improvement in all areas criticized.

Last April 29, Rep. Ryan gave copies of the report to the press. He said he obtained it from a private source. The report expressed "serious concern that fully qualified flight vehicles will not be available to support the lunar landing program." Phillips criticized North American's quality control, difficulty in making schedules, technical problems and lack of supervision in manufacturing.

He also cited tremendous cost overruns on both the second stage and spacecraft contracts. When the contracts were awarded to North American in 1961,

NASA estimated $140 million for 10 rocket stages and $400 million for 10 capsules. The estimate today is more than $1.6 billion for the stages and more than $3.6 billion for the space ships.

Congress was curious as to why NASA had so far underestimated the costs. Some members also noticed a similarity between parts of the Phillips Report and the board of review report on the Apollo 1 fire. Why, they asked, did not NASA take firmer steps to correct problems at North American?

Webb's answer today is that at the time of the fire NASA had recognized the problems existed and was taking steps to improve management in the agency and in the company's space division.

"We were in a period of transition," another NASA official said. "The fire speeded up the changes."

SPACE DIVISION

Top management at North American's space division has been almost completely changed since the accident. There have been no high-level changes at NASA headquarters, but a few lower level shifts have occurred there and at field centers like Cape Kennedy and the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.

Robert C. Seamans, NASA deputy administrator, said: "We have taken a good hard look at our own management and made some changes to strengthen it."

To bolster the Apollo team, NASA assigned the Boeing Co. to integrate the spacecraft with the Saturn 5 rocket. The agency has just signed a contract with Martin Marietta Co. to integrate experiments on Apollo ships that will be launched after the man-to-moon mission. This represents a loss of millions to North American.

North American is making improvements to the present capsules that will cost about $75 million. These include an escape hatch that can be opened in three seconds, compared to 90 seconds on Apollo 1; replacement of flammable materials with metal and other fire-resistant items; redesign of the 30 miles of wiring within the craft, and better protection for plumbing lines.

"I think," said Seamans, "all this speaks for the energy and determination of the entire organization."

After the fire, spirit and morale fell decisively among workers on the NASA and North American Apollo teams.

"It's back at a high level now," a North American spokesman said. "We know we made mistakes before. But a new spirit has been instilled in our people. They were stung by the criticism of their work. They're determined not to let it happen again. They've got a 'can do' attitude."

But even as confidence was being pumped back into the program, Congress continued its tussle with Webb. On April 17, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, asked the administrator during a Senate Space Committee hearing about the selection of North American as contractor for the Apollo spacecraft. She wanted to know if a 190-man Source Evaluation Board had picked North American over four other bidding firms. Webb said North American was the company recommended.

RAISED QUESTIONS

On May 9, Mrs. Smith again raised the question. But this time she asked if it were not true that Martin Marietta had been the board's choice, with North American second.

Webb acknowledged this was true. But he said he and three other top NASA officials who comprised the Source Selection Board had overruled the recommendation of the evaluation board. He said North American was selected because of its technical record, engineering ability and its experience with the X-15 rocket plane. It also had the lower bid.

Webb said he originally answered "yes" to Mrs. Smith's April 17 question because he mistakenly thought she had asked about the selection board rather than the evaluation board.

Many members of Congress were concerned that Webb and a few colleagues could overrule the technical experts and hand North American the contract. The more they probed into the contract award, the more convinced some of them were that political influence might have been at work behind the scenes.

The demand for an investigation of the award was nothing new to Republican Sens. John J. Williams of Delaware and Carl Curtis of Nebraska and Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa. They had been asking for one since 1964 during the Senate Rules Committee probe of the dealings of Bobby Baker, the Democratic-controlled Rules Committee repeatedly refused to conduct such a probe.

After the Smith-Webb exchange, Gross said: "This is not simply one of those famous credibility gaps. This is prevarication, and Mr. Webb ought long ago to have been fired as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration."

TRAGIC FIRE

"It is unfortunate," Gross said, "that the tragic fire death of three astronauts was the only thing that would awaken the Congress and the public to the need for an investigation of the Apollo contract. The indications of politics, favoritism and corruption have been apparent from the first day of the Baker investigation."

Study of the Rules Committee hearing, public testimony in the Baker tax evasion case and other records reveals this series of events:

Bobby Baker's star began to rise in the late 1950s when he served as secretary to Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, D-Tex., then the Senate majority leader and chairman of the Senate Space Committee.

When Johnson became vice president in 1961, Baker became a close friend of Oklahoma's powerful Democratic senator, Robert Kerr, who succeeded Johnson as head of the Space Committee.

Kerr and Johnson proposed Kerr's friend and business associate, James Webb, to become NASA administrator. Before taking the NASA post, Webb had been a director of Kerr's business empire, Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc., of Oklahoma City. He also was a director of McDonnell Aircraft Co. of St. Louis, builder of Mercury and Gemini spacecraft.

Webb, Kerr and Kerr's partner, Dean McGee, were among 20 principal stockholders in the Fidelity Bank & Trust Co., Oklahoma City. Webb had handled Kerr-McGee purchase of control of the bank for $1.6 million and served as bank director. Webb still holds 1,800 shares in the bank. A study made by the House Banking and Currency Committee in 1964 disclosed that Webb's shares had a paper value of $790,000.

In 1959, Baker had met Fred B. Black, who was on North American's payroll as a Washington representative. His salary, second highest in the company, was $108,000 a year.

Kerr and Black talked with Webb about awarding the spacecraft contract to North American. Webb said Kerr's views influenced him "no more than any other senator's."

Late in 1961, Black and Baker each purchased 1,500 shares at $1 a share in a vending machine company known as Potomac Vending, Inc., later renamed Serv-U Vending Corp. This gave them 30 per cent ownership of the $10,000 venture. Their shares were placed in the name of Ernest Tucker, who shared a Washington law office with Baker. Eventually, the pair owned 57 per cent of the shares.

On Nov. 28, 1961, NASA awarded the Apollo spacecraft contract to North American. Black said he played a key role in landing the contract. Three days later, North American dropped Automatic Canteen Co. as its vending machine contractor — after 20 years — and gave the contract to Serv-U. Suddenly, this $10,000 firm had a contract worth at least $2.5 million a year.

BORROWED MONEY

To finance the Serv-U contract, Baker and Black borrowed money from Fidelity National Bank & Trust Co., the Kerr-McGee-controlled bank in Oklahoma City. Black said the deal was set in motion by Kerr.

On Feb. 14, 1962, North American announced it was leasing 600 acres of land near Tulsa, Okla., on which to build a plant to make Apollo components. The land was owned by Kerr-McGee.

North American also opened a large account with Fidelity Trust and with another bank in which Kerr-McGee had an interest: Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Tulsa. Black and Baker also purchased stock in the Tulsa bank.

In 1962, four other aerospace firms announced plans to build facilities in Oklahoma. Baker and Black began pushing motel ownership on space business, hoping to capitalize on space business.

Since Kerr's death in 1963, no new large space contracts have come to the five Oklahoma aerospace facilities.

Then Baker ran into troubles. He resigned his Senate job in October, 1963, when his last outside business dealings came under investigation. He was convicted last January of theft, conspiracy and income tax evasion. He is free on bail, pending appeal.

Black disclosed many of his and Baker's wheelings and dealings in 1964 when the Senate Rules Committee inquired into Baker's affairs. Black later was convicted of income tax evasion, and in 1964 North American terminated his $14,000-a-month contract. Noting the contract had a two-year termination clause, Black filed a $9-million damage suit against North American.

North American officials contend they did not know of Black's dealings with Baker in the Serv-U Corp. They said he also was representing several other space companies without their knowledge.

Last year, the Supreme Court upset Black's conviction on the grounds that FBI agents had eavesdropped on some of his conversations in a Washington hotel room in 1963. No time has been set for a retrial.

The Justice Department admitted the bugging but said it was done as part of an investigation of organized crime and that Black was not the subject of the investigation.

TAPES PRODUCED

The FBI tapes were produced at the pretrial hearings in the Baker trial. In a telephone conversation in February 1963, a month after Kerr's death, Black is quoted as telling Dean McGee: "Since the old man (Kerr) died, this fellow Webb has gotten weaker and weaker where the state of Oklahoma is concerned. We sent them several things before the senator died and they were okay. When we got them back, we had an okay on only one-third of what we wanted. He's just not going to do anything for us. When the senator was alive, he'd be helping."

Webb says there was no favoritism or politics involved in the awarding of the spacecraft contract to North American.

"There are a lot of people who have tried to give the impression that I was not independent, and that I was in Senator Kerr's pocket because I had worked for Kerr-McGee enterprises," Webb said.

THE NAMES of these four men are frequently linked with the U.S. space program and the Apollo disaster of six months ago. Bobby Baker is mentioned for his possible connections with Fred B. Black, North American Aviation's representative in Washington and the awarding of space contracts to North American. Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. will lead the first three-man team to test the Apollo craft in earth orbit. James E. Webb is the NASA Administrator who has come under fire for his role in the management of our space program. (AP Wirephoto)

Now Until March 31?

What about the rest of the "long, hot summer" and the rest of the time between now and March 31?

In his recent instructions to the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, President Johnson told the members to shun politics or rubber-stamping and get the truth about the national rash on summer time riots and how to prevent them.

But the people of the nation might well have wept when the President set the time for the commission's report at March 31. Why wait eight months to decide what is wrong? What the nation needed was a commission that could decide within eight days on some course of action.

If we wait eight months to decide what to do about the riots deliberately incited by Negroes who make their livings by trying to arouse the passions of members of their race we might well see come true the predictions of these rabid fomenters that, "We'll burn America."

President Johnson asked the commission to put aside politics, but, if he wanted to put aside politics, why did he name a report date eight months away. That is just about the time he will be trying to get his 1968 presidential campaign under way.

We can make one statement without much fear of contradiction. If President Johnson will leave off politics in this critical threat to the nation's existence and if he will keep his hands off the national guard and give the governors of the Southern states a free rein in quelling riots, there will not be a riot in any Southern city that will in any way compare to the national disgrace which occurred in Detroit. If a riot were to start in any Louisiana city, we believe Governor McKeithen, the National Guard of Louisiana and the peace officers of this state would stop it so quickly and so effectively that not another such action would be attempted. In fact, it is difficult to see how citizens of Detroit did not themselves take up arms and shoot anyone they saw setting fires and looting stores.

In order to give a really graphic idea of how long President Johnson proposed to wait before hearing the initial report of the Commission on Civil Disorders we will name the months scheduled to expire from the time he set the deadline: August, September, October, November, December, January, February, March.

How the Negro agitators must have laughed when they looked at that deadline. They surely must have said gleefully: "He's giving us eight more months. That's all the time we need to 'burn America'."

New evidence that Communists are pushing the Negro rebellion in the United States and that they may succeed unless more positive action is taken by the President to stop it, or unless he gives the states a free hand and full use of the National Guards, is the disclosure that an inflammatory film made in Russia's Cuba for black extremist groups surely has played a part in the riots in the Negro ghettos this summer.

Insider's Newsletter stated the film is described as a desperate, bloody, soul-shaking film which past together scene after newsreel scene of white men brutally abusing blacks.

There are shots (in all probability performed by trained actors, such as those who make regular movies) showing Negroes being beaten, burned, stomped and set upon by dogs, all accompanied by the voice of Lena Horne singing an angry, throbbing song, "Now," which at other times brought delegates to civil rights meetings to their feet.

Reportedly, the five-minute film was shipped into the United States about three months ago from Cuba for distribution to black Maoists and other proponents of guerrilla warfare against the whites.

As we see it, there are three separate directions from which the arrest of H. Rap Brown, now called director of the so-called Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, should have been ordered and effected for making a direct and open threat against a member of President Johnson's Family. In a public appearance, in which he was heard by thousands, Brown was quoted as saying, "If anyone should suggest that I should shoot Lady Bird, I just might do it."

It will be recalled that one white man was imprisoned in penitentiaries, jails and insane asylums for more than eight years for merely saying, "President Kennedy may not live to reach the White House." If there was any threat there, it was only implied, while Brown's was overt and publicly made. Brown was arrested but it was for inciting a riot and not on a charge of threatening a member of the President's family, as he should have been. Johnson, the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation should be called upon to order and effect the arrest of anyone who openly threatens to shoot a member of the President's family, even if the one making the threat is a Negro and his arrest might not be considered politically expedient.

It is possible to stop race-rioting in the United States and "pronto" — meaning fast — as the Mexicans would say. President Johnson, in the beginning, could have prevented it merely by saying: "Don't do it. We won't allow it."

In Michigan, Governor George Romney, a Republican, whom no one in the South, as far as we know, wants as a 1968 presidential candidate, said President Johnson "played politics" in being slow to send federal troops into Detroit. It was a question of "the pot calling the kettle black." Romney played politics to the hilt. He could have stopped the riot by putting the National Guard into Detroit in force until President Johnson was given a chance to let Romney settle the riot by using the National Guard or by refusing to let him settle it, by federalizing the Guard. If President Johnson had taken the latter course, then, indeed, "the blood would have been on his head." Romney had a chance to put Johnson on the spot and muffed it.

If any riot attempts should occur in the South, we believe the governors of any state in which such a riot occurs should put the President on exactly that spot. The governor should stop the riot with National Guardsmen or force Johnson to prevent him from doing so.

Better Court Views

Have schools in the South, as well as in other parts of the country, been too fast in desegregating. It has always been said that "you can't 'unscramble' an egg." Integration, once effected, will be just about as hard to "unscramble" as an egg. Yet many believe federally ordered integration is a violation of the Constitution and of states' rights. Some of those states in which this belief is held may have acted too fast in desegregating their schools.

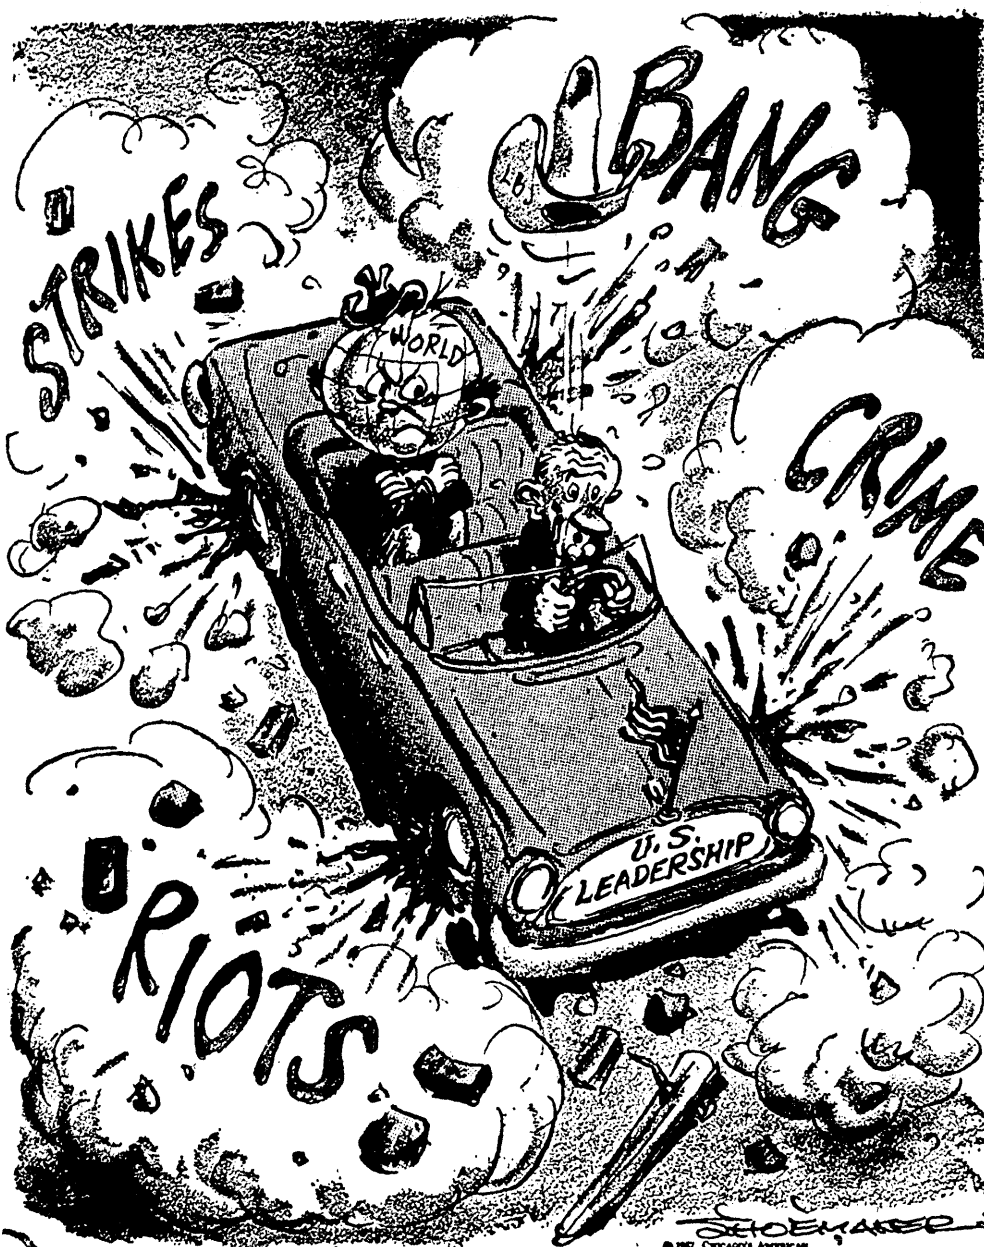

In Washington a federal civil rights official said an Alabama court decision would deny the government the authority, without court permission, to cut off funds from Southern school districts which are under orders to desegregate.

Derrick Bell, acting director of the office for civil rights for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, pointed out that the threat to cut off funds had been used as a "persuader" against reluctant Southern schools but said he knew of no case in which the department ever cut off funds in such a district. And, he said, federal officials were never sure they had such authority. But he said that as a tool for enforcing the Civil Rights Act of 1964 by ending dual school systems for whites and Negroes, "I think it would have been valuable."

Embarrassing Moments

ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

Edward Long Hides Fee Source

Won't Tell Committee Where He Got $48,000

THE SENATE ETHICS Committee has a potentially new cause celebre on its hands.

Senator Edward Long is sparring with the committee over revealing the identity of the client involved in the mysterious $48,000 Missouri Democrat has admitted receiving as a "referral fee." The committee is looking into this matter for a possible report to the Senate as in the Dodd census case earlier this year.

At a two-hour closed-door committee meeting, Long balked at divulging the name of the client. He contended this fell in the category of "privileged lawyer-client relations."

That was flatly challenged by all six committee members (three Democrats, three Republicans). While conceding lawyer-client relations are privileged, they maintained disclosure of the principals is not.

WHILE THE QUESTION was lengthy argued at this session, no direct effort was made to demand this key information from Long.

But privately, committee members are leaving no doubt of their determination to insist on it. It's being clearly indicated they are prepared to resort to forceful measures, if necessary.

This could include asking the Senate to hold Long in contempt for refusing to answer questions.

The Missouriian has denied that James Hoffa, imprisoned Teamster boss, is implicated in the matter — although an attorney who has represented Hoffa is the reputed source of the $48,000 "referral fee." For several years Long has been probing alleged government wiretapping and bugging.

He is seeking an increased appropriation to continue that. But it has been held up since the mysterious "referral fee" came to light.

CODE OF CONDUCT — Meanwhile, the bipartisan Ethics Committee is grappling with another thorny problem — drafting recommendations for a code of conduct for members of the Senate.

It's a toss-up whether such a report will reach the Senate this session.

Senators John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., author of the resolution creating the committee, are determined it will. But other committee members, among them Senator Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, vice chairman, are considerably less insistent. They feel the matter can wait until next year.

Even if the committee should submit a code, the prospects of its being acted on this session are slim. Its consideration would be certain to take several or more weeks' time, and with a huge accumulation of major legislation still awaiting disposal, an ethics code is not apt to get priority attention.

In the committee's private discussions, four proposals have stood out, as follows:

TESTIMONIAL dinners and other fund-raising activities: Enactment of a Senate rule requiring full disclosure, in the form of detailed reports, on all such affairs including how much was collected, from whom and how the money was used. Also, all Senate employees to be barred from having anything to do with the collecting or spending of political funds. This contemplated provision is a direct outgrowth of the sensational Bobby Baker investigation, which revealed he was very active in this sort of thing. Disclosure: All senators to be required to file annual public reports on their assets, income, debts and other financial details. Also similar reports on their connections with law firms, businesses, banks and other concerns.

Senate employees: Those above a certain salary level to submit annual public reports on their private finances, including the amount, sources and other pertinent details. Debts also would have to be divulged.

BOTH FOR SENATORS and their employees the basic purpose of such disclosure is to bring to light any conflict of interest.

Revising the Corrupt Practices Act: Require all campaign committees to report fully the amount collected, the sources and how and when spent. Under the present law, only the principal committees are required to do that. The proposed change would apply this requirement to every committee operating in behalf of a candidate.

Such a far-reaching revision would require approval by the full Congress. It could not be dealt with merely by adoption of a Senate rule. The Senate could enact such a measure and send it to the House, but what happens there is anyone's guess. The staff of the Ethics Committee is under instructions to submit drafts of code provisions by September 15.

FOREIGN AID BOONDOGGLE — Representative Vernon Thomson, R-Wis., member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, is still waiting for an official explanation of a project that has all the earmarks of having been created to provide a lame-duck Democratic congressman with a job as a $100-a-day consultant.

He is former Representative Roy McVicker, Colo., elected in the 1964 Democratic landslide, and defeated in the 1966 Republican sweep. In January of this year, as he departed the congressional payroll, McVicker was put on the AID payroll as a $100-a-day consultant, with the title of director of the Bi-National Development Feasibility Study.

This intriguing project, according to AID (which administers foreign aid), is "encourage the participation of democratic private and local government institutions in international development by establishing cooperative relationships between areas in the United States and areas in the developing countries." Total allotted for this unique undertaking was $65,000.

HEADQUARTERS was set up in Denver, Colo., McVicker's home state. Rental in what Representative E. V. Berry, R-S.D., described as "the plush Denver Club Building" is $580 a month. McVicker has a 14-member staff, including two associate directors and five part-time research analysts. In a letter to William Gaud, AID head, Thomson pointed out McVicker's lofty-sounding study is a duplication of effort; that it is undertaking to "determine the feasibility of what you are already doing."

How Gaud explains this $65,000 boondoggle remains to be seen.

At a Foreign Affairs Committee meeting, in reply to a series of probing questions by Representative Berry, AID submitted the following:

Berry: "Are there other similar projects conducted by AID in other states?"

A: "No. The feasibility study is not being duplicated in any other state." Berry: "Will the staff members of the Bi-National Development Feasibility Study be required to travel in Central America?"

A: "The director and two consultants left the United States on April 15 to conduct field research in five Central American countries and Panama."

BERRY: "When was this plan established and how long is it to continue?"

A: "The study project was approved in January 1967 and is of approximately six months' duration."

Berry: "Is there any similarity between Colorado and Central America that would make Denver be selected on a demonstration basis?"

A: "Colorado and Central America were selected as test areas because of the director's familiarity with local groups and institutions in Colorado capable of making a significant contribution to development in Central America; and the history of Spanish culture in Colorado."

Berry: "Why was it established in Denver rather than in Washington?"

A: "The project office was established in Denver because the U.S. research is being carried out primarily in Colorado."

Berry: "What has been learned as a result of its establishment?"

A: "The study is intended to determine the feasibility of coupling the people and know-how of a specific area of the United States with the aspirations and needs of a developing country or region."

Before McVicker's election to Congress, he was a Methodist minister and taught psychology at Colorado State College. AID credits him as being the author of the study he is directing.

PREDICTIONS — The Senate will overwhelmingly pass the resolution sponsored by Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, reaffirming Congress' constitutional role in determining "national commitments" abroad. The declaration, which has no binding power on the President, will win powerful bipartisan support. President de Gaulle appears to be bent on creating more international dissension. The imperious 76-year-old French ruler, who is developing a noticeable tremor of his head and hands, is privately talking of going to Cairo. He dropped this hint at the cabinet meeting early this week, where he reaffirmed his provocative support of ultra-nationalistic French Canadians. Meanwhile, the Gomulka regime in communist Poland has bluntly notified Paris it will tolerate no disruptive antics by De Gaulle during his scheduled visit in September. The Communists sense word that if De Gaulle acts up, he will be evicted. They won't wait for him to depart in a huff; they'll kick him out.

There isn't a chance the UN Security Council will do any more about the Middle East now than it did six weeks ago. In fact, there is little prospect the council will even meet this month. Its president for August is French Ambassador Roger Seydoux, and he has let it be known he has no intention of convening the council unless a new urgent crisis arises. The Federal Reserve will continue to pump more credit into the economy. It has been doing that since April, and no let-up is contemplated as the increased funds have been quickly absorbed by Vietnam war demands and the strong business boom.

RALPH de TOLEDANO

U.S. Helping Enemy

During Time Of War

By RICHARD L. ROUDEBUSH (R., Ind.) Guest Columnist for Ralph de Toledano

FOR THE FIRST time in America's 191-year history our government is aiding the enemy during a time of war.

While American G.I.'s die in the heat and stench of the steamy jungles of Vietnam, the produce and material of our affluent economy flow to the Communist nations around the world.

More than 60,000 American casualties have been sustained in the strange twilight war that has kept the mightiest power in the history of civilization bogged down by a 30th-rate nation.

While our men fight with one hand tied behind their backs, every Soviet satellite and slave state cooperates in the joint effort to keep the United States enmeshed in a war of attrition that is sapping our manpower and threatening our economy.

Ideological differences in the Communist world attract much attention in the nation's liberal press, and great significance is attached to this Communist war of words.

BUT LEST WE be lulled by these Communist word fights, which differ only to the methods of destroying America, let us remember that Castro's Cuba ships foodstuffs to "comrades" in North Vietnam as does Communist China despite famine among its own people.

Russian Miggs and missiles, Czech machine guns and grenade launchers, Chinese carbines and Yugoslav light machine guns are all being used to slaughter American boys in Vietnam.

We should not be surprised at this joint effort of the Communist bloc to aid the United States. Despite all of the propaganda and hopeful hand wringing, the worldwide Communist conspiracy has as its prime and unswerving goal the destruction of the United States of America.

What is surprising, however, is the extent our own government ignores this concerted attack and, under the guise of "bridge building" and "peaceful coexistence," assists our mortal enemies in their preparation for our demise.

WHILE THE United States talks of "building bridges of friendship" to the Communists, the Reds themselves are constructing a scaffold for our execution. And the Communists interpret "peaceful coexistence" as the attainment of a completely Communist world, where everyone is either a "peaceful" Communist — or dead.

While we debate the construction of an anti-ballistic missile system, the Soviets press work on their system, striving toward the day when they can confront the U.S. with the alternatives of nuclear destruction or surrender.

And, while this worldwide struggle continues, the Administration opens wider our trade ties with the Communists, assuring them of the supplies and materials needed for their criminal plans.

THE ADMINISTRATION prods Congress for approval to build a $50 million auto plant in the Soviet Union. It is calmly announced that the Soviets will be invited to use our largest atomic reactor, to be built in Weston, Illinois.

Regulatory trade restrictions are quietly dropped on export of U.S. nuclear materials to the Soviet Union and its slave satellites.

Further trade barriers are erased on items ranging from crude rubber, medical and surgical dressings, to pig iron, rifle cleaning compounds and iron and steel tube and pipe fittings.

The Administration now allows unrestricted export to the Communist bloc of lead balls, propeller blades, wooden trestles, bridges, machine-made paper for dynamite, gun wadding, shell stock, shot shell stock, parachute cloth, tarpaulins, tents, blankets, cement and building stone.

These are but a few among hundreds of strategic items now being poured into the Communist world as part of the Administration's "bridge building" efforts.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Proposed By Buckley

THE POOR FRENCH! They are so bloody ungovernable that they shrink from an elementary act of self-emancipation. For General Charles de Gaulle to worry about the liberty of the Quebecois, while he exercises tyrannical power over fifty-million Frenchmen who dare not free themselves because to do so would threaten the old familiar anarchy, is what makes his effrontery in Canada so majestically galling.

Are we really all to be glibly worrying about the freedom of the Quebecois? Such has been their freedom in Canada that no French Canadian was required to serve in the Canadian Army that helped to liberate France — only English-speaking Canadians were conscripted to hoist the Cross of Lorraine.

Professor John Roche, back during the days not long ago when everybody was talking about the Right Wing Menace, confessed to his hysterical colleagues that his own fear of the right wing ranked approximately 26th in his hierarchy of fears, the 25th being the fear of college presidents, the 27th the fear of being eaten alive by piranhas. The fear of a cruel oppression by English-speaking Canadians directed against French-speaking Canadians is, by Mr. Roche's ranking, somewhere between Fear 40 and 50.

IT IS TOO LATE to try to understand De Gaulle. It was only ten years ago that he was fuming against any Americans who professed their opinions about the right of Algerians to "free" themselves from France (the poor Algerians are, of course, less free now than they were under France).

When he resumed power in 1958, he was pledged to the colonization of Algeria. His sudden change of mind, in the spirit of anti-colonialism, has now gone to the fanatical lengths of demanding a "free" Quebec. Tomorrow, for all we know, he will demand the freedom of the Manhattan Indians to resume control of Manhattan.

He ceases, really, to be interesting. Instead, his influence is interesting, and we have now the extraordinary spectacle of complete puppetization of his cabinet. If it were the Politburo, whose unanimity was recorded by Josef Stalin or even Alexei Kosygin, that would be one thing. But De Gaulle's cabinet includes Andre Malraux, perhaps the principal genius of Europe; and for him to go along with De Gaulle's mischievous puerility concerning Canada is to record, for the millionth time, the infinite servility of the intellectuals. IT IS A SPECIAL torment that De Gaulle should have brought together his cabinet in order to demand from them a pledge of loyalty to his latest inanity. If he had not been suffering from the megalomania of the aging despot, he could at least have permitted them to remain meekly silent on the matter. But that they could confide to their grandchildren that they did not really go along with the old man in l'affaire Canada.

As usual, the left is misbehaving. The Communists are backing De Gaulle for the obvious reason that he has caused consternation, and the Communists will back anyone that causes consternation in the West, a free Quebecois, a Detroit rioter, or an earthquake. The Socialists are also backing De Gaulle, mostly as a matter of ideological doctrine, as De Gaulle has recently served their cause by his compulsory profit-sharing plan, and they (unlike the labor union leaders, interestingly enough) are grateful. But also the Socialists have always been suckers for the rhetoric of anti-colonialism. It is continuously fascinating to paradox-collectors that Socialists who talk in the grand manner about world states and international solidarities are suckers for the separation of Rwanda from Burundi.

FRENCH PRIDE is probably the most concrete substance in all of Europe, and it is this of course that intensifies the current crisis. The French cannot bear to be made to look foolish, and this De Gaulle has irrevocably done.

If De Gaulle had merely been the leader of a French political faction, somebody like, say, Pierre Mendes-France, it would not be so bad. But De Gaulle has succeeded in convincing the entire world that he is the quintessential Frenchman and so all of France agonizes. And the publisher of Le Monde, so rarely heard from, warns his countrymen that they had better get rid of De Gaulle now, else the alternative to De Gaulle — if France continues to yield to him — will be intolerable, because France will have lost the little capacity she has to rule herself successfully.

Ouachita Statistics

For those who are interested in statistics, more Ouachita couples are getting intact through the child-rearing years of family life than was the case a generation ago.

Because of better health care and advances in medical science, the chances of a family disruption during that period, due to the death of the husband or wife, have decreased considerably.

TODAY'S parents, as a result, have a much better chance than their own parents had, of living to see all their children married and settled.

The facts and figures, on a national basis, appear in the Statistical Bulletin, a life insurance publication. They show what chances the average person has of reaching each major milestone in his life.

Nowadays, for a newborn child, the odds are 96 out of 100 that he will be alive at the marrying age of 23. In his father's day, the odds were only 92 out of 100.

Of Ouachita Parish's young men who are 18 and are going to work or to college — there are 1,079 of them — the chances of their reaching age 65 and retirement are now 85.5 per cent, according to the findings. About 740 of them will be on hand then.

BACK in 1940, when a similar study was made, their chances would have been only 62.9 per cent.

Described as the critical period of a man's life, as far as family stability is concerned, is the 30 years or so between his own marriage and that of his youngest child.

In Ouachita Parish, at the present time, there are some 861 young men who are 23, the average marrying age.

According to the statistics, at least 760 of them will be alive at age 54, when their youngest children will be married. Their survival chances are listed as 88 out of 100, a considerable improvement over the 83 out of 100 rate that prevailed in 1940.

The figures show that Ouachita Parish women are posting better survivorship records than men at almost every stage of life.

AROUND 1940, a local woman of 22 had less than 90 chances out of 100 of reaching her 52nd birthday. Today, the likelihood is 94.4 out of 100.

It is pointed out, without any conclusions being drawn, that these gains were achieved during a period in which the number of working women increased substantially.

A GOOD WAY — The Chinese have an ingenious way of collecting bad debts. The creditor and his family simply move into the debtor's home. Rather than live with his uninvited guests, the debtor usually pays up.

MEMO TO THE WISE — You really do need sleep to function at your best. Tests show that the more sleep you miss the more errors you make, and people deprived of sleep too long become hallucinated and terror-stricken.

A Border Crossing

In case you have never crossed one, border crossings are often controversial. And they have been through history.

But according to Hal Boyle, Associated Press writer, the most controversial border today isn't a political border. The one that most people are anxious about isn't even on any map — it's the border between youth and middle age.

Many who have crossed it deny that they have; others cross it without ever realizing it.

What are the boundaries of middle age? A hand dictionary on my desk defines middle age generally as that "time of life between youth and old age." No one can quarrel with that.

But my dictionary goes on cheerfully to define middle age as the "period from about 40 to 55 years old."

That is a bald fib. It may have been true in the days when the mass of men slaved themselves to an early grave, but it is true no longer. What man of 41 will admit he is no longer young? What man or woman will admit, as the dictionary implies, that one enters old age at 56?

No, indeed. Dictionaries and calendars are all liars in this area.

HOW THEN can one tell reliably if one is middle-aged? Well, actions speak louder than prose.

Here is a tentative guide, based on actual conduct. You're probably middle-aged if:

When a new neighbor moves in next door, you automatically assume he'll be worse than the one who just moved away.

You find yourself muttering to all who will listen, "I don't want any more trouble. All I want is a little peace and quiet."

The university you attended begins to dun you for larger contributions to the alumni fund, figuring you can now afford to raise the ante.

When you yawn in public, you no longer bother to apologize. You realize that a public yawn is about the most honest act a man does in life.

You have forgotten the name of the red-haired girl who turned you down for a date in high school, but you can name to the hour and day just how far away you are from a pension.

Anytime you are served a piece of meat the first thing you do is cut the fat off it.

It's hard for you to make up your mind which you hate more, the alarm clock or the telephone.

Instead of pretending you don't have prejudices, you tend to brag about them. You feel they are a sign of courage and character.

You dislike buying a new pair of shoes because it takes so long to break them in.

Offhand, you can name at least 20 stocks that would have made you rich today if you had only been smart enough to buy them 20 years ago.

At breakfast you and your wife now always start the day by asking each other, "Did you sleep well?" Each then gives a 10-minute summary about how restless a night he or she spent, and the probable reason.

At the office the only fellow workers younger than you that you really like are those who come to you for advice.

The World's Week In Focus

By Oland Silk

DEATH, TAXES, and the riotous poor remained very much with us last week. Fatalities in Vietnam and in the nation's streets declined somewhat. But taxes — well, that was another story.

President Johnson called on Congress to enact promptly a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes. This is 4 per cent more than the surcharge he proposed last January. He insisted the tax — if passed — would be temporary. Under it, a person would add 10 per cent to his present tax bill.

The President played school teacher to newsmen, taking chalk and working out the formula for $10,000 salaries on a blackboard. An average family of four with that income pays about $1,100 in federal taxes under present rates. Tack the surcharge on and they would increase to $1,210 — or about $9.25 extra each month.

About 16 million taxpayers in the lowest income brackets would be exempt. Johnson refused to label the surcharge a "war tax." Rather, it is designed, he said, to stem inflationary pressure, hold down interest rates, and keep "Great Society" programs moving in view of current racial disturbances. Vietnam war cost was also a major factor.

The extra taxes will not hit individual pocketbooks until October. Corporations, however, will feel the pinch retroactively to July 1.

JOHNSON coupled his tax announcement with one increasing the American buildup in Vietnam to 525,000 men. He said 45,000 more troops, mostly Army, will be sent to boost General Westmoreland's command. It has been reliably reported that Westmoreland wanted 70,000. Congressional reaction to the 10 per cent surcharge ranged from chilly to lukewarm. Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., of the Senate-House Economic Committee called it a blunder that would crimp business growth and thus produce little revenue.

Arkansas' Wilbur Mills of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee no longer the fence, "uncommitted to no war."

Senator Jack Miller, R-Iowa, said, "The President's message is a confession of failure of his so-called 'guns and butter' economic policy." And noting that Johnson warned of a possible $29 million deficit without the tax boost, Miller added:

"HIS CONCERN that such a deficit would cause inflation and high interest rates should have been shown a year and a half ago when he told the American people that we could afford to fight the war in Vietnam and increase the pace of Great Society domestic programs at the same time."

House Republican leader Gerald Ford opposed the tax, but Everett Dirksen, his Senate counterpart, leaned toward the Administration.

BANKERS generally applauded the proposed tax hike but some businessmen grumbled, as did the man in the street.

On the Vietnam authorization, there was hardly a ripple of opposition. The announcement came as General Maxwell Taylor and Clark Clifford, veteran adviser to Democrats, completed discussions with Asian leaders on "troop requirements" in Vietnam. The two emissaries stopped in Honolulu after visiting Vietnam, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand, and South Korea and the Philippines.

CLIFFORD told newsmen that getting allies to increase their commitment was not the aim of their journey, nor did they sound them out on the possibility of holding a summit conference this fall. Thus did he spike stories giving those reasons for the trip undertaken a week ago.

POLICE CHIEF SARACE

President Ferdinand Marcos refused to see them in the Philippines, and the reception in Thailand wasn't much better. South Korea announced it would send 17,000 reservists to Vietnam, but only as supply forces. There are 50,000 South Korean combat troops there now.

MEANWHILE, American casualties dropped to 114 killed, 393 wounded and five missing — the lowest level in six months. Casualties from the carrier Forrestal fire-explosions climbed to 131 killed, 62 wounded, and three missing.

Early in the week, a U.S. and South Vietnamese operation in the Mekong Delta killed 350 Viet Cong. It was the largest allied assault of the war in the mud paddies.

In the air war, heavy losses figured in Secretary of Defense McNamara's decision to order the battle ship New Jersey for duty. The battlewagon, a naval behemoth of World War II, may be able to do the work of roughly 50 planes a day, thus cutting down the number of U.S. aircraft exposed to Communist fire.

To date, the United States has lost more than 625 planes over the North.

Rioting Declines

MILWAUKEE bore the brunt of major racial strife. Four persons were killed and 706 were arrested in three days of bombings and sniper attacks. The National Guard remained on duty Friday, but reduced considerably in force.

Other cities hit by vandalism and rioting included Washington D.C., Providence, Rhode Island, Portland, Oregon, and Wyandanch, New York.

IN DETROIT, scene of the nation's worst race upheaval, two Negro men charged that three younger Negroes, apparently unarmed, were shot to death by uniformed officers at the height of rioting in that city. State, city, and federal agencies are investigating.

The Milwaukee trouble proved a horror story for two young white girls and two white couples who were set upon by young Negro mobs. Barbara Boscia, 18, told police 15 Negroes attacked her car with rocks and bricks, showering her with glass. The girl and a companion were rescued by a deputy district attorney and his wife, also attacked by the mobs.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CLARK
... No Politics Involved

ANOTHER white couple drove unknowingly into the riot area. Gangs smashed every window and both were struck on the head. They abandoned their car and stumbled along the street for a block, the woman screaming hysterically — "Oh, my head! Are they crazy? What are they trying to do... God, what's the matter with them?" Police picked them up and took them to a hospital.

For awhile, all racial troubles were compared to Watts. But that was before Detroit. In the aftermath of 41 deaths there and $500 million in damages, two major investigations have got underway. The President's civil disorders commission heard its first witnesses last week, as did the Senate Judiciary Committee, presently considering the House-passed anti-riot bill.

The first and most prestigious witness to be heard by the federal panel was FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover.

HOOPER said "There is no intelligence on which to base a conclusion of conspiracy" behind the nationwide rash of riots. His report contained summaries from FBI files on 52 disturbances over a three-year period.

He emphasized that most of the trouble stemmed from some minor incident.

The commission will not make a full report on its findings for several months.

It was a slightly different story in the Senate Judiciary Committee, which summoned police chiefs from five of the nation's cities that have had racial outbreaks. Senator Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the testimony suggested there was a conspiracy in the rioting, though he was plainly against the anti-riot measure as a cure-all.

THE POLICE witnesses pinned the blame for their headaches on outside agitators, namely H. Rap Brown and Stokely Carmichael.

ROSS BARNETT
... I Love Mississippi

The Cambridge, Maryland chief, Bryce G. Kinnaman, played a tape recording of Brown's harangue before 400 Negroes in his city two weeks ago. Following Brown's address, a Cambridge school and two city blocks were burned to the ground. Kinnaman testified, "this... was not racial. Ninety-nine per cent of the colored people of Cambridge were shocked and opposed to what happened."

POLICE Chief Jacob Scott of Cincinnati said social grievances and leadership youths are among the ingredients of riot-prone conditions, but he added: "I don't think we would have had trouble if these outside agitators hadn't come in and got people stirred up."

John Sarace, Nashville's young police chief, echoed Scott. He blamed a Carmichael visit to the Nashville area for a series of incidents.

SARACE's biggest bombshell came when he charged the federal antipoverty program with helping to finance a summer school in Nashville devoted to teaching "pure, unadulterated hatred of the white man."

Sarace alleged that a poverty grant of $7,700 had been made to a member of SNCC, Fred Brooks, who taught at the school. The project — called a "liberation school" — displays large pictures of the late Malcolm X, and SNCC leaders Carmichael, Brown and George Ware. It is conducted in St. Anselm's Episcopal Chapel, a center for Negro students in North Nashville.

Brooks, 20, said, "we teach the historical fact that whites came to Africa and viciously enslaved many of the great African people. If the history of their Negroes' past leads them to hate white people, that's not our responsibility." He added that white persons could not attend. This violates poverty program regulations.

AT WEEK'S end, a final accounting of the facts had not been assembled. A poverty director said Brooks had not been hired. But Sarace said, "Not only is Fred Brooks the director, but half the student aides that are listed are members of SNCC."

A total of $300,000 in federal funds was granted the Nashville antipoverty commission, which in turn contracted with St. Anselm for the school. The white Episcopal minister said he was resigned to an investigation and possible loss of funds.

Chief Sarace would not reveal his source of information. Senator James Eastland, chairman of the Judiciary group, declared the summer racial violence falls into the traditional Communist pattern. He made the assessment following the first day of police testimony.

THE JUSTICE Department, meanwhile, was investigating the activities of Stokely Carmichael as the State Department moved to revoke his passport. Carmichael was in Havana all last week, enjoying wild applause as he attacked the United States and its leaders.

THE FORMER director of SNCC became more extreme the longer he stayed at the meeting of Latin revolutionaries. He was quoted as saying, "The United States is going to fall. I just hope I live to see the day."

Also this gem of hate: "We must make our vengeance against the leaders of the United States. We don't know if our people are ready yet, but our list is ready: McNamara, Dean Rusk, Johnson et cetera..." He even dragged in the name of Lincoln, labeling him a "white racist."

China Bomb, War

RED CHINA will be able to attack the United States by the early 1970s — that is the revised opinion of Congressional experts on the House Atomic Energy Committee.

The committee predicted China will have deliverable nuclear missile warheads by 1970, with a yield equivalent to at least a million tons of TNT.

At the present time, the United States has no means to repel such a strike.

Back in January, Secretary McNamara said that a significant Red Chinese threat to the continental United States was not expected until the mid-1970s.

The other news from China involved new and widespread violence that Moscow claimed threatened to plunge the sprawling nation of 700 million into civil war. Travelers from China told of bloody fighting in Mao Tse-tung's native province. Most of the fighting centered in central and south China.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark answered Gov. George Romney's charge that the White House played politics while Detroit burned. Clark said federal troops were sent long before Romney asked for them, and that when they arrived on the scene, 3,000 National Guardsmen had not been committed to the streets. The chronology of events given by Romney and Clark differed considerably. An investigation into the matter may be launched. Republicans — and many Democrats — remained convinced that Johnson's address to the nation in which he stressed Romney was unable to control the situation was patently political. The Administration on Friday made available to newsmen all telegrams and "background" information on the controversy.

The Mississippi Governor's race reached white heat when the Neshoba County fair opened in Philadelphia. Star performers included former Governor Ross Barnett, Congressman John B. Williams, William Winter, and Jimmy Swann. Oratory spanned the political spectrum — from Barnett's old-style ("I love Mississippi") to the dead serious approach of William Winter.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

It isn't that the autumn leaves are falling. They're not. And there hasn't been a chilly edge to the air in a month of Sundays. Still...

This is that time of the year when summer sun — worshippers spry the darting shadows of occasional clouds and realize with a shudder that it can't go on forever. That's the way it was last week.

When school boards meet, as Ouachita Parish and Monroe's did, and buy bread, milk, gasoline and insurance, can fall be far behind? Can school be far behind, when important auditions are being made to staffs, such as the one at Northeast Louisiana State College?

The plain fact is, classes are but an abbreviated month away.

Fall also means elections for more posts than there are months in the year. And as an armada of announcements of candidacy proved, elections aplenty are afloat on the political tide and not much further off than the start of school.

Led by state central committee meetings by both major parties, local and parish Democrats and Republicans also were rolling or at least set on the track. In addition, voting won't be only on personalities. West Monroe apparently was ready to put its $2-million capital improvements plan to a late September test at the polls.

These were a few of the key developments as the "good old summertime" began to play noticeably through Twin City and area fingers.

AREA TEEMING

Area news last week was veritably teeming with announced candidates for every job from governor to police juror, test at the polls.

Those who solve their own problems without your help, you feel, are smart alecks.

During church services it annoys you if the congregation is called upon to sing a new hymn. What's wrong with the good old hymns you always sang before?

You no longer actually listen when the boss tells a joke, because you've learned from the tone of his voice when it's time to break into dutiful laughter. When you overhear a group of teenagers talking, their slang is so strange you can't even make out the subject they're discussing.

Your grandchildren seem ever so much nicer than your own children were at the same age, and you gummy wonder if, perhaps, it's because the grandchildren had better parents.

That's middle age, and you've crossed the border.

from sheriff to assessor to senator to representative — too numerous to enumerate. With a couple of special exceptions, Ouachita remained very uncharacteristically quiet in this respect — a situation, however, which won't go on, which can't go on much longer.

The parish's Democratic executive committee was expected to meet Saturday afternoon and open a seven-day qualifying period for candidates of that political persuasion. (These lines are written late Friday, so the meeting can't be reported as an actual fact.) Meanwhile, Ouachita Republican leaders will gather August 15 and do likewise for a G.O.P. ticket.

Democrats will be running by the score, as usual. For example, though formal announcements will follow, 16 of Ouachita's 19 police jurors already have given unofficial indication they will seek re-election, with a 17th listed as undecided.

One of the two jurors who won't be going after the same spot again, John Ensinger (M. W. Montgomery, Ward 3, is the other) was also one of the exceptions to the quiet mentioned earlier. Revealing a loosely-guarded secret — Ensinger cards and bumper stickers have been much in currency — he announced officially his contention for a Louisiana Senate seat. A well-known Monroe insurance man, Ensinger seeks one of two seats on which Ouachita residents will be balloting Nov. 4.

Another announcement, earlier in the week, put Monroe Negro Willie G. Haynes Jr., also an insurance man, into the race to become one of Ouachita's three state representatives.

Parish chairman Russell Brown and Republican chieftains, this while, were shaping up their own party prospects. With Monrovia Ralph Caldwell already entered in the lists for representative, the talk was of "at least two or three" candidates for police jury seats. They may also have a man in the special election West Monroe government will call, coinciding with the regular primary, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Alderman Roland Nix.

The G.O.P., in addition, was charting a course in formation of a Young Republicans Club of Ouachita Parish. Parish Chairman W. G. Haynes Jr. set the organizational session for Monday evening in the main public library.

At the same time, state office — specifically the governorship — was the apple of the eye of another group, backers of Sixth District U.S. Rep. John Rarick. The latter's firm decision to run for governor, revealed locally in a phone hook-up program staged by the Greater Ouachita Citizens' Council, delighted Rarick fans.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS

Public improvements, present and future, were much in the West Monroe focus last week, led by a $2-million proposal which would provide sewage treatment facilities and expand the city's water system. The proposal and an election on its funding got a formal okay from Chairman H. H. "Tige" Mullins' recently appointed Citizens' Advisory Committee.

Leaving a meeting of the 38-member body Friday night, Mayor Bert Hatten said he will recommend to the Board of Aldermen at its meeting this week an election date of Sept. 23. He maintains that no additional direct taxes are involved in the plan to get a sewage oxidation pond and major water expansions. Long term bond taxes finally being paid off the books this year simply would be replaced by taxes to retire the new bonds.

Other costs would be borne by a boost in water rates of approximately $1.85 to the average consumer.

In another matter altogether, the news to Hatten was good. Teetering under a possible $15,000 bill from the Louisiana Highway Department for relocation of city water lines from the rights-of-way in two road-widening projects, the mayor was notified that redesigning of the projects has eliminated "almost all" the city's expense. An estimated $65,000 tab for widening of part of North Seventh Street and $50,000 for a similar project along U.S. 80 West had been eyeballed for several weeks.

The word, when it came, was a "relief" to Hatten, who said the city "just doesn't have that kind of money." Sen. Jamar Adeock of Monroe had been working on West Monroe's problem, along with Gov. John McKeithen, Highway Board Vice Chairman James W. Moore and others, since it arose. The mayor praised them all.

Moore of Monroe, meanwhile, had another problem close to home, another street-widening project, in fact. Heavy work was underway in earnest on the stretching to four lanes of North Eighteenth and clashed frequently with the nearly constant flow of traffic along and across the thoroughfare. He appealed — and appeals — to motorists to make another selection in their route than North Eighteenth.

DEATH STUKES

Death struck all too frequently last week, counting among its victims some of the area's best-known residents, business and civic leaders. The crash of their private plane in Missouri late Thursday claimed the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Clay, a prominent Shreveport couple and members of the board of directors of the News-Star — World Publishing Corporation, radio station WKH and the Shreveport Times.

They were en route to Canada for a fishing outing when their plane, witnesses said, appeared to break up in flight. Mrs. Clay was the daughter of the late John D. Ewing, former publisher of the Times and for nine years, until 1938, publisher of the News-Star — World.

Accidents also claimed Edward Franklin Cain, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cain of Bastrop, killed in a car wreck near Rochester, Tenn., and William Moore Pipes, 53, of Bastrop, who died in the wreckage of his pickup truck which stalled in the path of a freight train. Also dead was little Dewey Thomas Albright, about 10 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harly Albright of Farmerville. The child died in the Shriver Burns Institute in Galveston, Tex., where he had been flown July 25. He was badly burned July 15 in the flames which destroyed the family home.

Meanwhile, Fairbanks and the area lost, after a long illness, William S. York, a 66-year-old Fairbanks resident for 41 years and former plant manager for Texas Gas Transmission. He was the father of Ward I. Ouachita School Board member Gerald York and was widely-known.

HIGHLY DRAMATIC

Last week's news had more than its share of the highly dramatic. All turned out as well as possible, however, for local and area persons involved. It also had its touchingly unusual and unusual touching.

"All we could do was cry," Mrs. Freida Bell of West Monroe said of perhaps the most welcome phone call she and husband, George, ever received. Coming early Wednesday, it was ship-to-shore from their son Roger on board the carrier U.S.S. Forrestal in the Philippines. It was the first news of his fate since that vessel was tortured the preceding Saturday by accidental fires and explosions, in and from which 131 seamen had lost their lives by last Friday. Roger was "all right," as were other local sailors, Charles "Woody" Woodcock and Lewis Ford, whose parents in West Monroe were called immediately by the Bells.

Also "all right" after days of anxiety by his local relatives was Manuel Peraza of Venezuela, a former Northeast Louisiana State College student. He was in Caracas visiting relatives on Saturday (the same day of the Forrestal disaster) when that capital city was rocked by earthquake. Bodies still were being dug from the rubble of buildings late in the week when Peraza managed to phone his wife who was staying in West Monroe with her parents.

There were two other sharply unusual local and area stories which appeared last week, though not nearly so harrowing. For example, believe it or not, Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Downs of Eros received high school diplomas after passing exams from the State Board of Education. So what's unusual? Mr. Downs is 85, his wife, 77.

And certainly unusual is inherent in the story of Mrs. Alene Banister of 514 Oak St., Monroe, who is — in a sense — paving the street in front of her home with pillowcases. Mrs. Banister, 83, and active enough to be the envy of any early-20's reporter, is paying a big paving assessment, literally stitch by stitch, by making and selling pillowcases. "Where there's a will, there's a way," enthused city officials.

FROM NORTHEAST

lege, meantime, were coming some of the week's most attention-catching items, covering a field which ranged from appointments to construction to presentations.

In the first place, the state education board gave final approval to plans for a $3-million administration and school of business building at the school, along with those for a $2.5-million classroom building at nearby Louisiana Tech. The Northeast project is ready for bidding.

Several key appointments were announced at the local college, as well, including that of Dr. H. T. Garner of Vivian as dean of the school of education. A new head of the school's home economics department was named in the person of Mrs. Marianne B. May, formerly of Ouachita High. Ted Holmes, former local newspaperman, was named head of the college's news bureau, to be assisted by another new appointee Bert Ardin, also an experienced journalist. Heretofore acting bureau director Bob Anderson received approval on his request to take the new post of director of sports information.

Still at Northeast, Sherrouse Hall now has a portrait of the late William John Sherrouse Sr. for whom the facility, a men's residence hall, was named. The work, by local artist Herb Moffett, was placed in the lobby by Mr. Sherrouse's son, W. J. Sherrouse Jr. and Northeast President George T. Walker.

At Louisiana Tech in Ruston, the week also was a significant one. A total of 256 degrees were distributed Friday night during summer commencement exercises.

OTHER NEWS

Additional items chronicled during the week in the local news pages were numerous. Some of them told of:

— The staging Friday and Saturday of the convention in Monroe of the Louisiana Society of Radiologic Technologists. Officers were installed Saturday night.

— Setting of a program for August 18 at Jonesville to break ground for construction of a key lock-and-dam in the plan for a nine-foot channel on the Ouachita River. Coming, among other dignitaries, are U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of Monroe and U.S. Rep. Speedy O. Long of Jena.

— The start, planned for August 7, tomorrow, of higher visitor control at both the St. Francis and Glenwood Bottom: In 20 years Krupp had made a comeback — with annual sales of $1.25 billion by 1965, but no arms production. This photo was made in 1966. Krupp Empire, Owned By Family That Was Legendary, Goes Public

For more than a century, the Krupp empire, the cannon kings of Europe, remained in the hands of one legendary family. Threatened at various times with extinction, it remained, nonetheless, the world's largest family-owned firm. Now it is forced to go public but ween not for Krupp. It is still worth at least $1 billion.

By PETER REHAK

ESSEN, Germany (AP) — "Well, sir, what are your ideas about the future?" a young American lieutenant asked the tall, wiry, grey-haired man in a military uniform who was guarding a temporary command post in bomb-ravaged Essen in 1945.

"I shall rebuild my factories and take up production again, of course. You know I am a businessman, not a politician," replied Alfred Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, fifth ruler of the Krupp dynasty, cannon kings of Europe for more than a century and armors to Germany in two world wars.

In less than 20 years, it resurged as the world's largest family-owned firm and the ninth largest enterprise in West Germany. By 1965 it had annual sales worth $1.25 billion.

CREDIT SQUEEZE

But a 20th century credit squeeze has caught up at last with the House of Krupp. The 156-year-old family firm is being transformed into a public corporation. The first step is to be taken next week.

Where his forebears might have raised cash by a new order for cannon from a Prussian king or a Turkish sultan, Alfred Krupp had to turn to bankers and to the government of West Germany. For he then headed an enterprise making anything from trucks to steel false teeth — but no tools of war. Modern bankers felt that in the atom age an enterprise employing 110,000 workers was too large to be owned and run by one man.

As it turned out, Alfred Krupp never lived to see his empire slip away. He died unexpectedly July 30 at 59, two weeks before the first step toward making Krupp a public company.

Things probably never looked so bleak as in November 1945 when a British colonel assembled the firm's directors and, pointing to the blasted plants outside, declared: "Our there, gentlemen, no chimney shall ever smoke again. The British Military Government has decided to put an end to Krupp forever."

NOTHING NEW

But ruin was nothing new to Krupp. Friedrich Krupp, the founder, died broke at the age of 39, leaving an obscure, debt-ridden tool and die plant to his 14-year-old son, Alfred. He had started the firm in 1811 to make "British cast steel and all products manufactured from it" in the hope of profiting from Napoleon's blockade of England.

Alfred put the firm on the road to prosperity in the 1850's by making the seamless railway wheels symbolized by the three circles of the firm's trademark. He had learned on a trip to England that the making of good steel depended on quality raw materials and workmanship to match it.

But the real reputation and financial success of Krupp would rest on another project of Alfred's. Following the prophetic suggestion of a Munich arms dealer that gun barrels might be made without bronze, Alfred forged one of steel in 1840, after seven years of exhaustive efforts. It took another 16 years to sell the idea.

At last, in 1859, Alfred received an order — fantastically large for the time — for 300 steel cannon barrels from Prussia's prince regent, later Kaiser Wilhelm I. Within five years Russia, Holland, Sweden, Austria, Egypt, Turkey, Argentina and occasionally even England were buying Krupp cannon. Before Alfred died in 1887, Krupp had delivered 23,000 steel cannon to all corners of the world, sometimes to both sides in a conflict. For it was a rule of the House of Krupp to stay above politics.

Alfred's other monument, the 220-room Villa Hugel, "the villa on the hill," was the seat of the Krupps until the end of World War II. The structure, resembling a Victorian opera house, was begun in 1870, the year that Prussian steel barrels outshot the bronze muzzle loaders of Napoleon III at Sedan.

In fear of fire, Alfred decreed that not one piece of wood be used in the villa's construction or decoration. For the same reason he dispensed with paintings, books and draperies. He also feared drafts and so designed special windows that could not be opened. His personal study was built over the stables so that he could smell the manure and be inspired to creative thoughts.

His son Fritz' first major act was to replace the windows. He also had different ideas about paintings and books. When his daughter Bertha donated the villa to the City of Essen in the early 1950s it contained more than 100 old masters and innumerable antiques.

The firm continued to expand under Fritz. He, himself, preferred to spend his time far away from smoky Essen. He favored the elegant spas of southern France and Italy, above all the island of Capri off Naples. When he died in 1902 his will made 16-year-old Bertha sole owner and the most eligible heiress in Germany.

Kaiser Wilhelm II personally attended the wedding in 1906 of Bertha Krupp and Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach at the Villa Hugel. One of the royal presents was permission for Gustav to add the name Krupp to his own, perhaps in recognition of the fact that it had become synonymous with Germany's martial might.

In the same year, Krupp's German shipyards, acquired by Fritz, produced the first modern submarine. It was followed by the "Big Bertha" cannon which helped to destroy the supposedly impregnable forts at Liege in World War I and earned Gustav an Iron Cross.

The "Big Bertha" was a monster 24 feet long, weighing 98 tons. It could hurl an 1,800-pound shell nine miles and needed a crew of 200 to keep it going.

A later version of the "Big Bertha" shelled Paris in the final months of the war from a distance of 75 miles. It did little to turn the course of the war but stirred hate against Germany and the House of Krupp to unprecedented heights.

The victorious Allies forced Krupp to destroy 9,000 machines, 800,000 tools and 22,000 cubic meters of masonry which had been used in the production of cannon. Under the Treaty of Versailles, Krupp was forbidden to make arms. But Krupp was soon making arms in Sweden and Holland under the active encouragement of the German officer corps.

After Hitler came to power, Gustav wrote: "I had the satisfaction of being able to report to the Fuehrer that Krupp stood ready, after a warm-up period, to begin rearmament of the German people."

Heavy Allied air raids soon convinced Krupp's managers that Germany would lose the war and they began to protect the interests of the firm. Instead of re-investing their profits in war production, the managers cashed in war bonds, collected outstanding debts from the Reich and tried to keep their funds "as liquid as possible" for rebuilding after defeat.

Gustav's life was run by the clock, with time set aside for "togetherness" with his family — 15 minutes at breakfast and 30 minutes at dinner, no more, no less. At meals, waiters took away everybody's plate as soon as the master had finished. And nothing could prevent Gustav from going to bed at 10 p.m. If he was giving a party, his butlers would approach the guests at that hour and announce, "Sir, your car is waiting at the front gate." No guest was known to stay after that.

Gustav surrendered active direction of the firm to his son Alfred in 1943. One of Gustav's last acts was to set Hitler, who wanted German youth to be "as hard as Krupp steel," to write family ownership of the firm into his regime's laws. Hitler did in a 1943 decree, which noted that the firm "deserves the highest recognition for its incomparable performance in boosting the military power of Germany."

END OF WAR

At the end of World War II more than 50 per cent of Krupp's plants had been destroyed. Dismantlings for the benefit of the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia left the firm with one-third of its prewar production capacity.

Set on trying a Krupp, American prosecutors prepared a case against Alfred and 12 Krupp managers. The wartime Four Power alliance had by now begun to show cracks, and the court before which they stood in November 1947 was an all-American affair.

The court found Alfred guilty of mistreating slave labor sent by the Nazis to his factories and of appropriating industrial enterprises in countries occupied by the Nazis. Alfred claimed he did not know of the maltreatment of slave laborers and said the Krupp firm acquired properties in occupied countries only under Nazi pressure.

He was sentenced to 12 years and sent to Landsberg prison. His directors got terms ranging up to 12 years.

A GI guard once asked Alfred whether he wanted to be addressed as "Herr Krupp" or "Herr von Bohlen." "Call me Krupp," Alfred told him

Women's View On U.S. Men

Despite all the talk, American women think their men today are attractive, fun, intelligent and ambitious. Except some, who think they are spoiled, money-mad, unmannerly and petty. And most women think beards are good for one thing — to tell the boys from the girls.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Oh happy day for menkin. The American male has somebody else who thinks he is as manly and virile as he does: the American woman.

In spite of male fads in hair and clothes that might raise a doubt, the nationwide sampling of feminine opinion shows that, to more than half the women in this country, contemporary man is just as lusty and masculine as he ever was.

"At least in Texas," amended a Dallas housewife.

A Chicago widow of 55 elaborated: "I think most American women would be glad to accept most American men as a sweetheart, husband and father."

"I don't think men are getting any less virile — not from the passes I get I don't!" said a young Detroit receptionist. The disloyal opposition, though, was vocal.

"When men start dyeing their hair, having permanents and calling for weekly manicure appointments — something is amiss," scoffed a young Buffalo, N.Y., mother of three.

A Louisville burlesque stripper, 28, and divorced: "Some men learn to depend upon the woman for everything, including paying the bills and working. This is bound to show up in how a man walks, talks and acts."

Asked whether they think men feel threatened by women's emancipation, divided rather evenly into two camps:

"Men think women are trying to emasculate them. They resent the competition of a competent woman" — Los Angeles mother of three and a part-time worker.

"I don't think any guy who is confident of his ability or masculinity ever feels threatened by a woman" — A young Texas management consultant.

Most women thought men in general were as good husbands and fathers as those of the last generation — and better bread winners. They weren't so sure that today's men were as moral. They objected to long hair and beards on the opposite sex.

What they liked least about men made up a far longer list than what they did like about them. But the women, who had been called spoiled, pampered and domineering by a majority of men in a similar sampling a few weeks ago, for the most part remembered they were ladies and rarely hit below the belt.

NICE THINGS

The women find some nice things too.

"It's on account of that name that I am here. This cell is my share of the Krupp legacy."

His imprisonment ended April 9, 1951. At the height of the Korean War, John J. McCloy, American high commissioner for Germany, arranged an amnesty. McCloy, who had begun to work for the transformation of Germany from an occupied country to an ally of the West, also cancelled an order confiscating Alfred's property.

The Allied High Commission in 1953 ordered Alfred to sell his coal and steel holdings "on reasonable terms" within five years, but they were never sold. Krupp claims there were no serious buyers, and Western diplomats tend to agree. They say German businessmen would not bid on the coal and steel properties in order to avoid taking unfair advantage of Krupp. Later, both fields became unattractive. In recent years, Krupp has had to close several coal mines because they were unprofitable.

LITTLE INTEREST

It also appears that by 1959 the Western governments had little real interest in seeing Krupp broken up. In face of the Communist threat, they felt that the dismembering of Krupp could seriously damage the West German and West European economy.

Some divisions of Krupp may, in fact, be sold under the new streamlining process that will go with its transformation into a public corporation.

Family rule is due to end Aug. 13, which would have been Alfred's 60th birthday, when all stock in the company will be invested in a Krupp foundation, a first step toward going public. A board of bankers and economists already is supervising Krupp operations, and Alfred's death is not expected to change the timetable.

Krupp's creditors and the Bonn government made the changes a condition for maintaining existing credit lines and providing an additional $25 million for export financing. The Bonn government put up a $75-million warranty. A state government provided another $27.5 million.

NEEDED MONEY

Krupp needs the money to back long-term sales to the Communist countries of Eastern Europe. Peaceful exports to those same countries against which Krupp-made tanks propelled Nazi armies in World War II have been a substantial part of the firm's business since the 1950s.

People who knew Alfred Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach said he was philosophical about abdicating as sole ruler of the family enterprise. His 29-year-old son, Arndt, will not become the sixth generation to rule Krupp, but will be able to console himself with an annual salary of 2 million marks — $500,000.

Although Alfred was one of the wealthiest men in Germany, he lived modestly in a 15-room ranch-type house near the Villa Hugel, and it was there that he died. Arndt also had his headquarters there, but also said to spend much time traveling around the world's pleasure spots.

say about American men:

— They're attractive, sexy, fun.

— They have a nice, wry sense of humor.

— They're broadminded, chivalrous, intelligent, patriotic.

— They're ambitious and they make good money.

— They don't let small things bother them as women do.

— They idolize their women and are anxious to please them. They still keep us on a pedestal.

— "Most American men are so loyal," said a 39-year-old Denver wife. "A good, sound marriage can't be shattered easily."

On the debit side:

— "Too many are spoiled brats," one woman contended.

— "They tend to boast a lot," said another.

— "They put too much emphasis on money or what it brings them. Money and position are first to them, family second. They take more interest in business than their wives."

— "They say a woman is nagging if she says what she thinks or gives an opinion, while if a man complains about his work, children or money he's only discussing it or getting off his chest."

WEAKNESS LISTED

Then there are these weaknesses:

— They're petty, childish, immature, hyperambitious, untidy, unmannerly. They fail to grow mentally after their 30s; they lack appreciation of art, theater, music.

— A Miami housewife said men are less manly and it shows up in their teens. "It is partly due to pampering. They have no ambition and expect what their parents have worked all their lives for."

— A New York divorcee, however, said there's another reason for lessening virility: "Soft jobs. The average man today exercises on the job as he walks from the parking lot to the office, to the nearest bar and back to the parking lot."

— As a result of feminine inroads in the office, quite a few women said, male courtesy is fading fast, with the men taking the attitude:

"We're equal now, kid, so you open your own door."

— Sure, said a working mother with a leer, men like working with women. "It gives them one more opportunity to show off."

— Men resent having a woman give a direct opinion in a group meeting, said a Los Angeles professional woman. "Men prefer to tell women what to do. It must be basic insecurity. I've learned a little buttering goes a long way."

— "It really gries a man to be shown an easier or more practical way to handle a problem, especially when a female tells them and it works," said a Flint, Mich., housewife. "Why can't men take constructive advice without feeling their wives are bossing or know-it-alls?"

— A Seattle wife stood up for today's husbands: "They're more understanding for a woman's needs," she said.

— Dissenting was a 24-year-old married woman of wealth in Louisville:

"Today's husbands and fathers frankly are falling down on the job. I think the last generation of men had more pride and considered it a strength to speak up."

— Many women suggested that previous generations were just as immoral as this one but they didn't flaunt their peccadilloes.

— Morals have dropped, a Phoenix woman proposed, because of "better means of transportation. Now a man can pick up a woman in another town, take her out and get back home in such short time it's hard to catch him."

— Most wives loyally said they were happily married, and then went on to flay American husbands. You were expected to understand that the criticism pertained to their friends' mates, not their own. That principle applied to fathers, too, except in the case of an Atlanta mother considering divorce.

— Maybe 70 per cent thought men were good fathers — although not in the heavy-handed Victorian tradition.

MORE REASONABLE

— A Denver stockbroker's wife said: "Men are more willing to reason with children before they show authority these days. They are more understanding, but still in command. Sure they like to toss a ball around with their sons. What's wrong with that?"

— Some, however, felt fathers were shirking their duty. A Chicago secretary, mother of two, said: "Giving the children money and good times is easier to do than to sit down and talk things over and forcefully reprimand if necessary."

— In another area, the informal interviewers learned that long hair and beards, so dear to an increasing number of the adolescents, did not equally enchant the female of the species.

— Adjectives used by the ladies ranged from "effeminate," disgusting, unclear and repulsive to "dirty, outrageous, unesthetic, disgraceful."

— A Detroit secretary sounded knowledgeable: "Long hair is messy, beards are scratchy."

— An Atlanta housewife was practical: "Beards do serve one purpose. If the hair is long, the beard helps tell young men from young women."

Peace Corps Nurse Makes Major Jump From Slums

ANKARA (AP) — Lynne Courtemanche came here as a Peace Corps nurse to treat the Turkish poor and sick and ended up rubbing sultain oil on Sir John Gielgud's nose.

Now that the 23-year-old from Huntington, N. Y., didn't complete her Peace Corps tour, she did with honor.

"Lynne was great," says Donovan McClure, a Parkersburg, W. Va., born former newspaperman, who runs the 400-volunteer Peace Corps program in Turkey.

From May 1965 to last February Lynne worked as a nurse in an understaffed Ankara hospital helping to develop a nursing program. At first she lived with another Peace Corps nurse in what she described as a "fancy apartment" in the modern part of town.

"But we decided this was not what we came for," she said. Lynne and her roommate moved into one of the sprawling slums on Ankara's outskirts and in her off hours tried to help the slum-dwellers.

After her Peace Corps tour, Lynne went from slums to stars. British director Tony Richardson came to Turkey in May with a 250-man cast and crew to film "The Charge of the Light Brigade" near Ankara. He brought with him such stars as Sir John Gielgud, Trevor Howard and David Hemmings.

Lynne heard the film company was looking for a nurse. She applied and was accepted. Since May she has been on duty at the movie's remote valley location about 30 miles from here looking after the ailments of the British crew.

hundreds of Turkish workmen and more than 2,000 Turkish soldiers being used to recreate the famous Crimean War charge.

The broiling Anatolian sun is a prime hazard. Lynne is kept busy with the sun-tan oil and more serious injuries.

"When I started this job I thought these movie people would never talk to you unless you were a somebody too," said Lynne. "But they're wonderful. They have a terrific sense of humor."

She speaks Turkish and the Turkish soldiers' idea of a perfect souvenir of their movie — making experience is a photograph posing with the blonde nurse. They line up to pose with Lynne while a buddy snaps away.

"I feel like I'm the favorite pinup of the entire Turkish army," said Lynne.

Last March Lynne was riding with U. S. Air Force dentist when his car collided with an oil tanker. He was pinned in the car with the tanker threatening to explode. Lynne had a broken elbow but quickly ordered Turkish bystanders into action to get the dentist out of the wreck. Lynne received a letter of commendation from Peace Corps Director Jack Hood Vaughan.

What next for Lynne after the movie packs up its tents?

"I'm either going to England to work or to Holland where there is an international hospital."

"You know," Lynne said, "I wouldn't mind staying a nurse on movie locations."

In Diplomatic World You Kiss The Woman's Hand

WASHINGTON AP — An ambassador kisses a woman's hand.

One woman, surprised, dumps champagne down her front at the White House. A congressman's wife claims she's bitten. One man gets glove in his mouth. A lady says a stone from her ring is missing.

Chivalry has its drawbacks.

Hand kissing, a custom from feudal Europe is common on Washington social circuit. Those accustomed to the practice, such as Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the secretary of state, say they'd rather have their hand kissed than shaken.

At cocktails and dinner, any woman can expect to have her hand kissed. But alas the lady not forewarned.

Envoys, used to kissing a woman's hand in greeting at home, practice it here. But they say American women are difficult.

SOME FRIGHTENED

There's the Peruvian ambassador, dapper, handsome Celso Pastor who kisses with a swift, quick peck. Gracious and debonair, he nonetheless frightens women who don't see him coming.

There's the French ambassador, Charles Lucet, who cups each woman's hand in both of his as if it's a soft, breakable object. But if a lady doesn't relax she's inclined to punch him in the nose and jolt his glasses.

There's the dean of the diplomatic corps, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa of Nicaragua, who has spent years kissing the hands of president's wives, premier's wives and American wives.

Often asked for advice, Sevilla-Sacasa has formed a sure-fire approach.

He advises a man not to bow to the American, but to raise her hand and look straight into her eyes "to see if she makes a face. If she does, then you will know not to do it again."

Austrian Ambassador Dr. Ernest Lemberger says American women tend to back into walls, people or anything else in the path of retreat.

This sort of reaction, naturally enough, discourages any man.

ONLY NODS NOW

There's one diplomat who dealt so often with what he calls the baseball fist, he only nods now. And there's an Irish curtain minister with a goatee who frequently gets his whiskers caught in jewelry.

The protocol office at the State Department has to answer the inevitable questions from new ambassadors? Who does one kiss? When? How? Are the American women really mad? Who make the first move, man or woman?

George Abell, assistant to the chief of protocol, says, "I can tell if a woman is European or American because the former instinctively raises her hand."

The other, he says, sits on it.

Traditionally, a man kissed only a married woman's hand. It was considered too risqué for a single girl. That, too, has changed in Washington. An ambassador kisses any woman's hand.

"By the time you figured out whether the woman in a reception line was married," says an old hand, "you would have missed the cocktail hour."

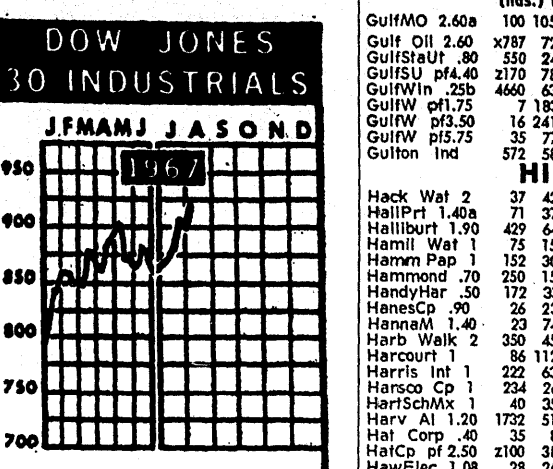

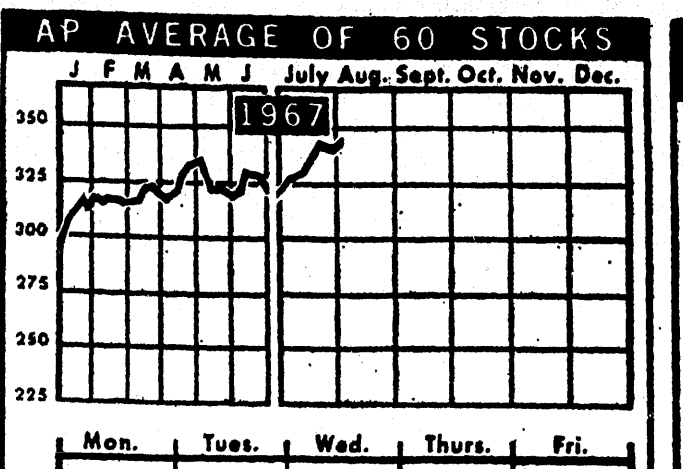

Once they are used to hand kissing, American women usually like it.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced sharply this week to 341.6, climbing from 338.4 in the preceding period. The weekly volume was at a record high. Dow Jones 30 industrials closed at 932.77, up from 901.53 a week ago. (AP Wirephoto chart)

Market Hit New Highs In Volume Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week surged to new highs for 1967 and did it in record volume.

Turnover climbed to 60,769,050 shares from 53,953,230 the week before and topped the previous weekly record of 58.2 million in the week ended July 22.

Some Wall Streeters saw a bull market signal flashed Tuesday when the Dow Jones industrial average made a new climbing high for the year and the Dow Jones rail average climbed to an all-time record.

There have been times in the past when such a signal merely confirmed the past history of a market rise and stocks turned down soon afterwards.

For the week just ended, however, stocks climbed vigorously. The Dow industrials made a new peak on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 3.2 points to 341.6.

The AP average also made a series of highs for the year, its latest being 342.3 on Wednesday.

Renewed buying power came into the market on Tuesday and the May 8 level was cleared on heavy volume. The entire list closed encouraged that the close terstate Commerce Commission had given the nation's railroads a $300 million freight rate increase.

The rise came even though American Telephone sold a $250 million issue of debentures at a cost of 6.006 per cent interest, the highest long-term interest.

The market had its acid test Thursday when it plunged early in the day on news that President Johnson had requested enactment of a 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes of individuals and corporations.

At the worst, the Dow industrials were down 9.30 points but they recovered strongly to show a loss of only 2.9.

Wall Street heard from Washington that the President's tax program would probably have tough sledding and that Congress might pare down his requests as well as slow down their effective dates.

Of 1,608 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 921 rose and 569 fell.

President Johnson's call for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes spurred a bond price rally.

Government bond prices more than overcame earlier losses in long-term issues.

RACING DOWN the homestretch to a fifth place time in men's division of the keyhole event at the Riverside Riders Club Regional Tournament at the Riverside Arena near Monroe Boat Dock

Saturday afternoon is O. C. Carr of the host club. Judging the event is Frank Snellings also of the Riverside Club. Snellings placed first in the keyhole race, boys' division ages 14 to 20.

Regional Riding Clubs Stage Tournament Here

By RONNI LUND

Competition was keen and horsemanship tops in Saturday night's action of the Riverside Riders Club Regional Tournament.

Five hundred and thirty-six entries from 12 regional riding clubs matched equestrian skills in seven events at the Riverside Arena on the banks of the Ouachita River just South of the Monroe Boat Dock.

Events got underway at 2 p.m. when Parade Marshal Frank Snellings of the Riverside Club led the colorful grand entry of 123 horses and riders.

Officials introduced in the Grand Entry tournament announcer Bill McDougal included: Riverside Club officers, Mrs. Marie Louise Snellings, president; Bill Aycock, vice president; Bill Liebetraw, treasurer; Chunky Lemert, secretary; Bill Rollinson, arena marshal; Queen Gay Gannaway and W. H. Thompson, arena man; West Monroe Riding Club, Mamie Morris; Ouachita Club, W. O. Hattaway; Ruston, Laura Richardson; Vidalia, Carl Bruce; Rayville, Bob Johnston; Sterling, Bobby Lowery; Tallulah, Clint Fortenberry; El Dorado, Ark., Julius Miller; Silver Spur Riding Club, Mett Carroll; and Delhi, Earl Wells.

Mrs. Snellings announced that a trophy and blue ribbon would be given the first place winner in each age group in each event and the next four placers would receive red, yellow, white and pink ribbons. She said, "No provision has been made for ties in any event. All ties will have to be settled by runoff events."

After the opening festivities the action began with keyhole racing. In this event a rider must run his horse down a narrow lane, pull him up short, turn him around in a small circle and return to the finish line without the horse stepping out of bounds. Winners are determined by best time.

Keyhole winners included: boys and girls ages 13, first, Ki Allen of Delhi; second David White of West Monroe; third, David Fortenberry of Tallulah; fourth, Keith Lowery of Sterling; and fifth, Bill McDougal of Riverside; boys ages 14 to 20, first, Frank Snellings of Riverside; second, Steve Smith of Union; third, Ronnie Savage of Union; fourth, Rickie Morris of Rayville; and fifth, Donald Davis of Ouachita; girls ages 14 to 20, first, Robin Robards of El Dorado; second, Linda Jo-wers of Ouachita; third, Deborah Mills of Rayville; fourth, Janet Clark of El Dorado; and fifth, Doris Kelly of Ruston; women ages 21 and over, first, Mrs. Marie Louise Snellings of Riverside; second, Patsy Ruth Alford of Union; third, Anita Brown of Union; fourth, Sue Russell of Sterling; and fifth, Jane Cole of Rayville; men's ages 21 and over, first, Bill Rollinson of Riverside; second, Joe Cheshire of El Dorado; third, J. E. Frost of West Monroe; fourth, Leonard Sullivan of Rayville; and fifth O. C. Carr of Riverside.

Flag Races followed the keyhole events. In this event a rider circles the arena at top speed picking up a flag from a bucket on one side and depositing it in an identical bucket on the other.

Winners were: boys and girls, to 13, first, Jay Gresham of Rayville; second, Travis Guice of Union; third, Darrell Cartledge of Sterling; fourth, Sammy Rogers of Tallulah; and fifth, Keith Lowery of Sterling; boys, 14 to 20, first, Paul Wells of Delhi; second, Rickie Morris of Rayville; third, Macky Brister of West Monroe; fourth, Ken White of West Monroe; and fifth, Rory Gresham of Rayville; girls, 14 to 20, first, Robin Robards of El Dorado; second, Ann Massey of West Monroe; third, Pat Harris of Sterling; fourth, Deborah Mills of Rayville; and fifth, Les Hoyt of Ruston; men's, first, Jimmy Cupples of Tallulah; second, Jimmy O'Neal of Rayville; third, Harold Nubbles of Sterling; fourth, Bobby Ray Lowery of Sterling; and fifth, Houston Campbell of West Monroe.

Sue Jones of El Dorado was first in the Ladies Speed Race as she clocked a 9.88 to beat second place Mrs. Snellings' 9.96 seconds. Betty Neal of Delhi took third in the event, and Patsy Ruth Alford of Union and Kay Frasier of Ruston placed fourth and fifth respectively.

Judges Bob Bentz and Laura Richardson decided that the women could outride the men as they awarded all five places in the gaited pleasure event to the equestriennes. The event is judged on how both horse and rider perform in a walk, canter, favored riding on how both horse and rider perform in a walk, canter, favored riding gait and at a stand. In the extremely close gaited competition Ann Robards of El Dorado edged Mrs. Snellings of Riverside for the first place trophy. Marie Hattaway of Ouachita was third, Gay Gannaway of Riverside, fourth and Louise Lockett also of Riverside, fifth.

Ring racing is a high speed event in which the riders must also display a steady hand as they spear six rings at a full-run. For each ring missed as he circles the arena a rider is penalized one second; he must spear at least two rings to qualify.

Winners were: boys and girls ages to 13, first, Travis Guice of Union; second, Keith Lowery of Sterling; third, Randy Hattaway of Ouachita; fourth, David White of West Monroe; and fifth, Darrell Cartledge of Sterling; boys, 14 to 20, first, Pete Henry of West Monroe; second, Steve Smith of Union; third, Joe Davis of Riverside; fourth, Andy Harrington of Riverside; and fifth, Macky Brister of West Monroe; girls, 14 to 20, first, Pat Harris of Sterling; second, Janice Farmer of Ouachita; third, Becky DeCelle of

Sandra Moffett Willing To Write

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Mrs. Lillie McMains, who was known in New Orleans as Sandra Moffett, and a figure in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's investigation of the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy, said Saturday here she is willing to make a formal written statement for Garrison, but she is unwilling to return to New Orleans.

Mrs. McMains was named by Baton Rouge insurance salesman Perry Raymond Russo as the woman who accompanied him to a party at which the Kennedy assassination plot was allegedly discussed.

Mrs. McMains has said she did not attend the party and said she fears for her safety if she should return to Louisiana.

Union; fourth, Nancy Campbell of West Monroe; and fifth, Charlene Cartledge of Sterling; men's, first, Bobby Ray Lowery of Sterling; second, Chris Hattaway of Ouachita; third, Tom Frasier of Ruston; fourth, Gordon Humphries of Riverside; and fifth, Billy Ray Lowery of Delhi.

The results in the western pleasure, ladies lead race, stakes competition and barrel races had not been tabulated late Saturday. Winners will be announced today.

Tax Bargain Ruled Out By Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top government officials reject any idea that the 10 per cent rate proposed by President Johnson as a tax surcharge is subject to bargaining with Congress.

They say the administration would stick to its request for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes and an effective date of Oct. 1 for individuals and last July 1 for corporations.

There's no bargaining element built into the request, the key officials, who decline to be identified, say. They described the tax package as something the economy ought to have and the administration expected to get.

Two Arrested On Shoplifting

Late Saturday Monroe police arrested two girls on charges of shoplifting.

Linda L. Anderson, 19, and Ginger L. Collins, 18, both of Room 2, Hanks Hotel on Louisville Avenue, were arrested on the charges at Gibson's Discount Center.

In West Monroe John E. Kinney, 32, of 103 Liberty Dr., was charged with simple battery.

There have been suggestions that Johnson recommended the 10 per cent rate—he proposed six per cent last January—to put the administration in a better bargaining position with a Congress which thus far has shown little enthusiasm for a tax hike.

But the government officials say the package outlined by Johnson last Thursday is an ideal and moderate program geared to the nation's economic needs and is the best set of recommendations possible.

In addition to the 10 per cent surcharge, the package also includes a speed-up in corporate tax collections and postponement of reductions in excise taxes on telephone service and automobiles scheduled for early next year.

The entire program would increase revenues by $7.4 billion during the fiscal year which began July 1—the surcharges alone would yield $6.3 billion—and is designed to reduce a budget deficit even the President said could go as high as $29 billion.

Johnson cited continued prosperity, a check on inflation and reduction in interest rates as other reasons for higher taxes.

With savings which could be initiated by Congress and the administration, Johnson said the deficit could be held to between $14 billion and $18 billion, compared with the $31 billion projected last January.

Government officials gave newsmen these reasons when asked why the economy could now take that size deficit when $8.1 billion was considered the maximum seventh months ago: —The economic slowdown of the first half was deeper than anticipated, and revenue estimates were down.

—The pattern of the economic upsurge is as strong as that projected in January, but it's starting from a lower base.

—The increase in Social Security benefits, which were proposed for July 1, won't add new purchasing power to the economy before the end of the year at the earliest. The House Ways and Means Committee has just completed action on a bill to raise benefits 12½ per cent.

—Despite the Federal Reserve Board's policy of easier money this year, interest rates haven't declined as much as anticipated and have risen the past few months to last year's levels.

Tiny Isle Braces

SAN JUAN (UPI)—Armed patrols maintained surveillance of beaches and barbed wire was stretched across a single dirt airstrip Saturday as Anguillians continued to fortify their 35-square-mile Caribbean island to protect their redeclared independence.

Spencer, Ellis Winners; Enter WBA's Semifinals

HOUSTON (AP) — Thad Spencer and Jimmy Ellis beat Terrell Martin on a bloody technical knockout Saturday and won their way into the semifinals of the heavyweight boxing elimination tournament.

Spencer, of San Francisco, knocked Terrell, of Chicago, down in the second round and benefited from a penalty against Terrell for low blows in their 12-round bout.

Ellis, of Lexington, Ky., got the TKO over Martin of Philadelphia, in the ninth round.

Spencer weighed 201 1/2 pounds, three less than Terrell, the former World Boxing Association champion who was beaten by Cassius Clay in his last appearance in the Astrodome where the doubleheader Saturday was regarded as a first in boxing.

Spencer and Ellis now move into the semifinals of the eight-man tournament sanctioned by the World Boxing Association to select a world champion successor to Clay, who was stripped of his title by the WBA when he refused Army induction.

Also in the semifinals will be the winners of a Sept. 16 match between Karl Mildenberger and Oscar Bonavena and an Oct. 28 bout between Floyd Patterson and Jerry Quarry.

Pairings and sites for the semifinals have not been determined, but tentative dates have been set for Nov. 11 and Dec. 2.

Spencer's second round knockout of Terrell came with a left hook and a right cross. Ernie hung to Spencer's glove, going down but arose to take the mandatory nine count with a foolish look on his face.

However, he came back to throw some stiff rights at Spencer's head and finished the round strongly.

But Spencer kept up his steady body attack and an occasional steaming left hook and the fight remained fairly even until the ninth. Then Spencer won the remaining three rounds, winding up by chasing Terrell around the ring at the finish.

Ellis battered Martin's face into a bloody mask in the opener. He tore into Martin and opened a cut in the third round. After that, the blood flowed freely until referee Ernie Taylor finally stopped the bout at 1:43 of the ninth. Martin's face was streaming with blood as he was led to his corner.

Ellis opened fast and had Martin in difficulty in the early moments of the fight. He repeatedly tried to put his opponent away but Martin hung on and kept fighting back.

Ellis hit Martin with nine hard rights and steaming left hooks in the first round and drove him around the ring. But only once did Martin even stagger and was landing some left hooks to the body at the finish.

Ellis got a light cut over the left eye in the second round—the only round Martin won—but it had stopped bleeding by the third when Ellis tore into his smaller foe. Martin took so much punishment even Ellis' corner was calling for the referee to get a doctor to study the wounds.

Martin rallied slightly in the fourth, landing a right to the chin and a left hook to the head while Ellis, who seemed to have slowed down some, was content with left jabs.

But there was no doubt left after that as Ellis battered at the bleeding and swollen mouth. The blood even got in Ellis' hair.

Ellis was leading on points 79-72 on The Associated Press card round. The fight was judged on the 10-point must system.

Judge Chris Johnson had it 78-75 for Ellis. Judge Jimmy Webb held it 78-72 and Referee Ernie Taylor had it 77-74.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 turned out for the two fights. It was believed the gate would run between $60,000 and $70,000, while television is paying an estimated $100,000.

Terrell, Spencer and Ellis each got $50,000 while Martin, who moved into the tournament only because Joe Frazier, ranked No. 2 by the World Boxing Association, boycotted the tournament, received only $22,500. The best purse Martin had gotten previously was $2,500.

Spencer Predicts Spencer, Ellis Will Make Fight Finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Thad Spencer and Jimmy Ellis, victors in the first round of the heavyweight championship elimination tournament, whooped it up in the dressing room Saturday with Spencer yelling "Didn't I tell you so."

"I told you Jimmy and I would win," he declared. "And we are going to meet in the finals."

Spencer won an upset 12-round decision over Ernie Terrell. Ellis scored a technical knockout over Louis Martin by striking him with a left jab and a right cross to the head.

"We are going to meet in the finals, too," he added. "Jimmy is my friend but God bless him."

As Spencer and Ellis celebrated, across the Astrodome in a dimly lit dressing room, a tired, beaten Terrell lay on the table and said, almost inaudibly, "I beat him."

Martin had gone to the doctor to have his severely cut lip stitched. It was smashed so badly he couldn't talk to newsmen.

Ellis was the first person to greet Spencer when he arrived at his dressing room.

"I told you so," Spencer yelled. "I told you Jimmy and I were sleepers in this tournament."

"We are going to meet in the finals, too," he added. "Jimmy is my friend but God bless him."

Saints Move Back On Practice Slate

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Saints ran 26 plays to the Rams' 13 in a regular practice routine Saturday with a mid-afternoon scrimmage against their California Western University training camp.

Following the 90-minute workout, Head Coach Tom Fears said the squad would be given today off.

The Saints have been slightly off schedule due to their opening pre-season game against the Los Angeles Rams last Wednesday. Their next contest is Aug. 12 with the St. Louis Cardinals in Shreveport, La.

Fears reduced his roster, asking waivers on rookie defensive back Eugene Ross, a ninth round draft choice from Oklahoma. He was the Saints' most valuable defensive player last year and was named to the All-Big Eight team in 1966.

Meanwhile, Fears and his staff still were reflecting on the brighter aspects of the 16-7 loss to the Rams.

"I thought our execution was good — real good — for a new team," said Fears. "What really surprised me was the long touchdown drive (quarterback Bill Kilmer led the Saints 80 yards in 16 plays). It amazed me that we didn't have more illegal procedure penalties."

Kilmer completed 8 of 10 passes during the drive, so dominating the quarter that the defensive coordinator Jack Faulkner was equally pleased with the Saints' defense. "We used every different combination we had," said Faulkner, "and they all functioned very well."

"We'll eventually settle on a first unit, but after the other night, every position is wide open for the man who wants it most."

Saints, Comets In Player Deal

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The Odessa-Midland Comets of the Texas Professional Football League announced Saturday the signing of a player agreement with the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

Charles Jacob, president of Permian Basin Sports, Inc., owner of the Comets, said under the agreement, the Saints will provide several players from the NFL club's ready reserve squad. They will be subject to 24-hour recall.

The players to be sent to the Comets will be announced at a later date.

U.S. Track Stars Tie 400-Meter Mark, 39.0

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — The United States won six gold medals in seven Pan-American rowing finals to add to six amassed earlier in track at Harvard's great crew, unbeaten in three and a half years, capped the sparkling performance by defeating Canada's University of British Columbia eight by two lengths.

The harvest of championships raised the American total to 115, within striking range of the all-time high of 120 set in 1959 as competition drew to a close on a broad front. The Games close Sunday in pomp and panoply with two more gold medals at stake in the equestrian prize nations, both team and individual.

Doug Sanders Slams Out 67 To Take Western Open's Lead

CHICAGO (AP) — Doug Sanders, finding that work on the practice tees pays off, slammed a 67 Saturday for a nine-under-par 204 to grab the third round lead of the $102,000 Western Open golf tournament.

The colorfully clad short-backswinger fired 34-33 against Beverly's par-battered 36-35 standard with a round of only 28 putts.

A stroke away at 205 were Jack Nicklaus and 300-pound Tom Veatch. Each shot 65.

Labron Harris, the 1962 National Amateur champion who has yet to win on the pro tour, dropped back with a 7 for 206 after being in front the first two rounds. Four bogeys in a row, starting with the third hole, were too much to overcome.

Julius Boros, seeking his fourth tourney triumph of the season, also faltered. A 73 left him bracketed with Masters champion Gary Brewer and five others at 209. George Knudson, making an ace on the 125-yard 12th, had 67 for 208 and Randy Glover with 68 was tied with him.

Back in the pack was Arnold Palmer at 212. PGA champion Don January at 214 and defending titlist Billy Casper 217.

Although winning $81,000, Sanders has been in a slump this season with only one tourney victory, the Doran Open.

"Seems like I do better early in the season," he said.

The hot sun seems to take a lot out of me and I get so weak I can't even go to the practice tee. But I've been out there this week," Sanders said. "I've been doing so badly in tournaments that I'm paired with guys I don't even know. I've got to introduce myself," he said.

Sanders has not had a bogey in 34 holes. His four birdies Saturday came on putts of 3, 7 and 4 feet and a two-inch tap on the 184-yard sixth when he nearly edged with a five-iron.

The 38-year-old Veatch, sales manager of a screw company at Menomonee Falls, Wis., was golf captain at Notre Dame in 1951 and has won the Wisconsin State golf title four times. He fired 33-32 in stringing out seven birdies and only one bogey.

The field was cut to the 60 low scorers and ties for the final round. It took 217 or better to make it. Sixty-three pros and two amateurs remain.

Nicklaus, who never has won the Western Open, blasted 32-33 for his 205. Both he and Veach had 29 putts.

"I had my best putting round since my closing 65 in winning the National Open this year," said Nicklaus.

His card was without a bogey. He had birdie putts of 3, 7, 15, 20, 22 and 23 feet. He missed four taps for birdies inside eight feet including three footers on the 15th and 18th.

"But the putts were coming off the putter well," he said. "They felt good. So you miss some short ones and sink some long ones. I'm very pleased, with my putting."

Bruce Crampton of Grand Bahama Island also carved 33-32—62 for 207. He needed only 25 putts including birdie shots of 12, 3, 8, 13, 12, 18 and 25 feet. He three putted for his only bogey on the 10th and chipped in

Ricketts Plagues Reds, Cards Win On Pinch Hit Single, 4-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pinch hitting rally with a one-out single against Don Nottebart, the Reds' fifth pitcher, Phil Gagliardi and beat out an infield hit and then Dan Maxvill was safe on cinnati Saturday night.

The victory extended the rami-ping Cardinals' National League lead to eight games over second place Chicago. It was St. Louis' fourth straight victory and 10th in the last 11 games.

Mike Shannon started the win-ning rally with a one-out single against Don Nottebart, the Reds' fifth pitcher, Phil Gagliardi and beat out an infield hit and then Dan Maxvill was safe on cinnati Saturday night.

St. Louis has taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the sixth. Lou Brock tripled with one out and Curt Flood doubled to tie the score before Tim McCarver's two-run homer in the seventh inning scored reliever Billy McCool with a run-scoring single.

Cincinnati had scored twice in the top half of the inning on Harper's double and Pinson's 10th homer over the right field wall.

Athletics Slip Past New York Yankees

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jake Gibbs muffed the throw at home plate on Ted Kubiak's squeeze bunt in the 12th inning, allowing Mike Hersberger to score the winning run as Kansas City dropped New York 3-2 and dropped the Yankees into the American League cellar.

The A's had loaded the bases against Thad Tilton, the fourth Yankee pitcher, Hersberger and Jim Fosseer singled and Phil Roof walked.

The Kubiak batting for winner Jack Aker, bunted and Tilton lost the game in the eighth inning when Tommy Harper walked, Vada Pinson sacrificed and Pete Rose singled in the run.

St. Louis has taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the sixth. Lou Brock tripled with one out and Curt Flood doubled to tie the score before Tim McCarver's two-run homer in the seventh inning scored reliever Billy McCool with a run-scoring single.

Cincinnati had scored twice in the top half of the inning on Harper's double and Pinson's 10th homer over the right field wall.

Brook and Flood hit consecutive doubles for the first St. Louis run in the first inning.

Angels Take Win Over Hopewell

The Rocky Branch Angels girls softball team edged the Hopewell Teenage Girls, 7-6 here Saturday.

Donna Pardue and Loyce Pace was the winning battery while Parker and Halley was on the losing end. Pam Chapman knocked in Pam Howard in the bottom of the eighth for the winning score while Lillian Chapman was a defensive standout.

The Angels will battle the Sterling Ramblers in Sterling Tuesday at 7 p.m.

The chances of scoring a Hole-In-One are 8,060 to 1, according to the World Almanac.

Central Bank romped over the Twin City Merchants 13-7 in an exhibition contest here Saturday night.

Whitehead and Culp was in the winning end while Smith and Wheeler was the losing battery. Whitehead homered, Chapman, Dupuy and Culp all got hits for the winners while Wheeler homered and Blazier got two hits for the losers.

The Twin City Merchants will travel to Oklahoma City, Okla., for the Southwest Regional Ladies Fast Pitch Tournament on Friday.

Red Futch Wins At A-1 Raceway

Red Futch captured two first and one second place finish at the A-1 Raceway in Sterling Saturday night.

Futch topped first place honors in the fast trophy run, the Consolation race and placed second in the feature race to Freddie Cook, who won the event.

Tommy Bonner took the slow trophy and the slow hot award and John Dyer placed second in the consolation race.

Freddie Cook won the fast heat class while William Smith and Vester Dean placed second and third respectively.

Indians Post Strong Schedule For Coming Football Season

(Tenth in a series of articles on Northeast State's 1967 football prospects. Next — The Coaching Staff)

Northeast State's 1967 football schedule includes more sectional opponents than any Indian state since 1952.

The Indians will meet teams from six states this fall — Michigan, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. Two of the 1967 opponents — Eastern Michigan and Henderson State — are appearing on the Tribe schedule for the first time.

It is a strong schedule — only three of the 10 teams had losing records in 1966. Northeast defeated only three of the teams last year, Tribe victims South-east Missouri (20 - 9), East Carolina (21 - 14), Louisiana College (41 - 0) and Tampa (17 - 0) having been dropped from the slate.

The schedule, evenly divided between home and away games, opens Sept. 16 with Northeast meeting Henderson State in Monroe. The Indians play Stephen F. Austin in Nacogdoches, Tex., Sept. 23, Northwestern at Natchitoches Sept. 30, Chattanooga at Chattanooga Oct. 7, McNeese in Monroe Oct. 14, Southeastern in the homecoming game in Monroe Oct. 21, Southwestern at Lafayette Oct. 28, Eastern Michigan at home Nov. 4, Delta State here Nov. 11 and Louisiana Tech in Ruston Nov. 18.

Henderson State will be Northeast's first Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference opponent since 1958 when the Indians beat Southern State, 33 - 12. The Arkadelphia, Ark., club had a 1-8 record last year and will be rebuilding this fall under a coach familiar to many North Louisiana fans, Clyde Berry. Berry coached at Jonesboro - Hodge and Coushatta during the late 1950's and takes over as head man at Henderson after being head baseball and assistant football coach at the Arkansas college for four years.

Berry will have 20 letters back from last year's club and prospects are bright for a better record this fall.

Stephen F. Austin returns to the Northeast schedule for the first time since 1958 when the Tribe won a 14 - 12 decision.

The teams have met four times, each winning twice.

SFA, coached by Travis "Shorty" Hughes, was 5 - 3 - 1 last year and expects its finest team in years this fall. The Lumberjacks have 25 lettermen returning, including no less than seven players who were first or second team all-Lone Star Conference choices in 1966.

Northwestern was one of the nation's best — if not the best — college division clubs last year, winning nine straight games and taking the Gulf States Conference title. New Coach Glenn Gossett, a former Northeast lineman, has 39 lettermen to work with, including the GSC's two best quarterbacks, all - conference Malcolm Lewis and Don Guidry.

Chattanooga, thanks to its policy of playing — and often beating — big - time powers, is one of "names" of college - division football. The Moccasins are coached by one of the grand old men of the game, A. C. "Scrap" Moore, head coach at the Tennessee school for 34 years. Chattanooga was 5 - 5 last year, three of the losses being to major college teams, and has 26 lettermen back. One of them is star passer Roger Catartino, who threw four TD passes in the second half of the Mocs' 27 - 17 triumph over Austin Peay last fall. The Mocs beat NLSC, 9 - 0, in 1963 in the only previous meeting between the teams.

Northeast's Oct. 14 foe, McNeese, is rated as one of the principal contenders for the GSC title this fall along with Northwestern and Northeast. Jim Clark's Cowboys, who beat Northeast, 18 - 17, with a stirring last - quarter rally last year, have 33 returning lettermen, among them the classiest set of sophomores backs in the league. The best of them is full-back Carol Breaux, who ran for 651 yards in '66. McNeese was 5 - 5 last year and tied for second in the GSC.

Southeastern, the homecoming visitor, suffered through one of its rare losing seasons — its first since 1958 — last fall, winding up with a 3 - 6 mark and a share of last place in the GSC. One of the victories was a 14 - 13 decision over Northeast in another cliffhanger. Coach Pat Kenelly has 21 returning lettermen headed by all-GSC end Duane Floyd.

Southwestern lost more lettermen from last year's team than any other GSC member, 21, but has the same number returning. Some experts have picked USL to finish last in the league but most observers rate the Cajuns much higher, third or fourth. Russ Faulkinberry's club should be particularly tough on defense with eight starters back including all-league safety man Ed Pratt. Northeast beat USL last year, 10 - 7.

One of four NLSC opponents with new coaches, Eastern Michigan is aiming for a place in football's big time. To put them there, the Hurons this month hired Michigan State's offensive backfield coach, Dan Boisture, as head coach. Boisture produced such all - American backs as George Saimos, Sherman Lewis, Dick Gordon, Steve Juday, Clint Jones and Bob Apisa at East Lansing. EMU was 5 - 3 - 1 under Jerry Raymond last year and has 26 of 39 lettermen returning. The Ypsilanti - based club will be Northeast's first opponent from the state of Michigan.

One of the nation's finest defensive clubs in 1966, Delta State is missing eight defensive regulars, including the entire front five. Offensively, Horace McCool's Statesmen stack up much better and have 27 lettermen back all told. Swift half-back Gary Randall, the team's leading rusher with 666 yards, is the top returnee. Delta was 6 - 4 last year and supplied the pros with four players. One of the losses was to Northeast, 14 - 10.

Louisiana Tech, 1 - 9 last year, will be rebuilding under a new coach, Maxie Lambright, late of Southern Mississippi. The Bulldog will be in good shape as far as experience is concerned with 30 lettermen, all-GSC halfbacks Eddie Taylor (1966) and Robert Brunet (1965) among them. Tech lost to Northeast, 14 - 6, in the season finale last fall in Monroe and tied for last in the GSC.

Northeast's home games will be played in Brown Stadium this fall after two seasons in Ouchita Stadium while the Indians were moving their football lay-out across Bayou DeSiard.

Smith, Most Valuable, Thinks Professionals Aren't So Tough

CHICAGO (AP) — Bubba Smith, the 290-pound behemoth headed for the Baltimore Colts, was named the most valuable All-Star in Friday night's 27-0 loss to the Green Bay Packers. Smith, an All-America from Michigan State who claimed after the game "the pros aren't as tough as I thought," won by a two-to-one margin over quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue in the consensus of some 500 writers covering the game.

Bubba dumped Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr for a 10-yard loss on the first series of plays and generally was one of the few bright lights among the All-Stars.

George Webster, Michigan State's great linebacker who will play with Houston, was third in the voting. Six others received votes. They were Mel Farr of UCLA, Alan Page of Notre Dame, Leo Carroll of San Diego State, Dave Williams of Washington and Bob Grim of Oregon State.

Except for Griese, who was drafted by Miami, and Farr, who goes to Detroit, all the vote getters were defensive players as Green Bay contained the All-Star offense with unbelievable efficiency.

Not until the final quarter were the Stars able to penetrate into Packer territory and the first time they did Farr took a pass from Griese but was hit and fumbled on the Green Bay 47.

Late in the game Griese directed a drive from the All-Star 19 to the Green Bay 18. Griese then hit Williams with a pass but Williams had to leap for the ball and came down outside the end zone to nullify the play.

The Packers scored on a pair of first quarter field goals from 13 and 11 yards by Don Chandler and Starr wrapped it up.

Amateur League Sets Tourney

TALLULAH (Special)—Tallulah, the Northeast Louisiana Amateur Baseball Champions will battle Delhi in the first game of a Round Robin Single Elimination tournament here Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

Wisner will go against Bonita for the tourney second game there. The winners of these two contests will meet Thursday night in the finals at a site to be announced later.

Tallulah captured the league title last Wednesday night by downing Bonita, 7-5 with a homer in the last inning.

Harper was the winning pitcher while Murry went all the way for the losers.

Caldwell Slates Fast Pitch Go

COLUMBIA (Special)—Tuesday, August 8 is the deadline for entering the Caldwell Par. Jaycee fast pitch softball tournament that will be held at Columbia on August 12 - 13.

The tournament, a double elimination event, will be played at the Columbia ball park located on U.S. 165 about one mile north of Columbia.

in the second quarter with touchdown tosses of 11 yards to Boyd Dowler and 22 yards to Bob Long.

Jim Grabowski, who arrived shortly before the game started after serving with his National Guard unit in the Milwaukee riots, rambled for a 22-yard touchdown in the third quarter and led all ball carriers by gaining 77 yards in nine rushes.

Despite the Green Bay onslaught, Smith gained the respect of the Packers.

"Some of those kids seemed awed by us," said Jerry Kramer who played opposite Bubba "but definitely not Bubba. He's a lot of football player. 'The time he got Starr, he caught me off guard and blew right in. I knew he was fast but not that fast. He compares favorably with the better tackles in the league but he's not as good as Merlin Olsen or Alex Karras. . .not yet, anyway."

Bubba figures he can step in and win a regular job with the Colts.

"The pros aren't as tough as I thought," said Smith. "I'm ready now."

Tiger Coaches Are Mostly Home Grown

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Louisiana State University's traditionally home - grown football team will almost be matched by a home-grown coaching staff this year.

While 66 of the 84 players on the LSU 1967 varsity roster hail from Louisiana, five of eight coaches are graduates of the Louisiana High School coaching ranks.

Coach Charles McClendon points with pride to Charley Pevey, offensive backfield coach. Doug Hamley, defensive end and linebacker coach; Jack Doland, offensive line coach; David McCarty, offensive line coach, and Mel Didier, freshman coach as products of the Louisiana prep athletic system.

Pevey, the senior member of the Louisiana contingent, joined the LSU staff as offensive backfield coach in 1960. A graduate of LSU where he quarterbacked the 1948 and 1949 Tiger teams, Pevey returned to LSU from Lafayette High where after one rebuilding year his teams won 15 while losing only four the next two years.

Hamley, a graduate of Ole Miss, had almost unprecedented success at LaGrange High in Lake Charles. In six years, his teams won 48 while losing only 19 and tying six. He was twice named Southwest Louisiana "Coach of the Year" — in 1956 when his team won eight and lost three and again in 1960 when the Tigers posted in 11 - 12 record.

The newest member of the varsity staff - David McCarty — served as freshman coach at LSU since 1963. A member of the 1958 National Championship "Go" Team, McCarty was an LSU student assistant before moving to Baton Rouge High for one year as an assistant football coach.

Jack Doland, another successful AAA coach from Southwest Louisiana, joined the LSU staff in 1966 after an outstanding career as head man at Sulphur High. In seven years as head coach of the Tors, Doland never had a losing season. He won the district title three times and copped the state crown in 1965.

SOLUNAR TABLES WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT by Richard Alden Knight

The solunar periods, during which there is maximum fish at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours. Minor periods are shorter, and wildlife activity, are printed below. Major periods begin A.M. P.M.

Exclusive Mark ZANDVOORT, Holland (UPI) — Jim Clark of Scotland is the only man ever to win the Grand Prix of Holland auto race, three times, sweeping the 1962, 1963 and 1964 races.

Didier joined the LSU staff this summer as freshman coach, bringing with him a wealth of coaching experience. Following graduation from Mississippi Southern, he coached Catholic High of Baton Rouge, was an assistant at Southeastern and served as coach and athletic director at Opelousas High, Glen Oaks High and Baker High.

McClendon said, "it is a real tribute to the high school coaches of Louisiana that we have been able to go to their ranks for coaches when openings have become available. In every instance they have done outstanding jobs, indicating the quality of individuals that we have coaching at our Louisiana High Schools."

Who says the Tigers aren't "home grown?"

Player Physicals

JONESVILLE (Special)—Coach Oliver Poole, Block High School football coach of Jonesville, announced that the physical examination for pre - football practice will be Monday, Aug. 14, at 7 p.m. in the dressing room of the Block high school.

Casey Stengel was released as manager by the New York Yankees Oct. 18, 1960.

Mazeroski's Bunt Nips Dodgers, 2-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vern Law's five-hit pitching and a perfect squeeze bunt by Bill Mazeroski paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Law, a veteran right-hander who went the distance, struck out five en route to his second victory of the season.

The Pirates broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth when Roberto Clemente led off with a single and was forced by Al Luplow. Donn Clendenon singled Luplow to third and he raced in on Mazeroski's perfect bunt.

Law suffered his only damage in the first when the Dodgers scored on a walk to Dick Schofield and singles by Ron Hunt and Al Ferrara.

The Pirates matched it in the fourth. Maury Wills and Clemente stroked singles, and Loh moved up on a wild pitch by Dodger starter and loser Phil Regan.

After Luplow flied to short center, Wills scored on Clendenon's ground out.

Indians Take Victory Over Detroit Tigers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tony Horton drove in two runs with a homer and double and Leon Wagner rapped a two-run single, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

Horton slammed his fifth homer in the seventh after doubling home Wagner in a four-run third inning burst against loser Earl Wilson, 14-9.

Wagner had singled in two runs following a single by pitcher Stan Williams and a double by Vic Davallilo. Horton scored the fourth run in the inning on shortstop Ray Oyler's error.

Williams, squaring his record at 1-1, yielded only four singles until the seventh, when Don Wert doubled and Al Kaline drove his 17th homer into the left field seats.

Reliever Sonny Siebert then checked the Tigers the rest of the way.

Detroit scored in the third inning on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Kaline before Williams worked out of further trouble by striking out Horton.

Who Was Up Front

Former Linemen Now Top Coaches

By BOB HOOBING
Written For The Associated Press

In college football coaching, it's who was up front that counts.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska, Mississippi's John Vaughnt and Bear Bryant of Alabama—the top three gridiron tutors in major ranks — brushed up for amazing careers by spending their varsity days in the line where the unsung action is.

The success ratings are based on the won-lost records of active coaches with 10 or more seasons behind them.

Devaney, blipping his profession at an 820 clip, played end at Alma. In his decade as bench boss, Devaney has led his squads to 82 victories, 18 losses and five ties.

Devaney's past five years of restoring Nebraska's lost glory show a 47-8 record, five straight bowl appearances and four straight Big Eight Conference titles.

An All-America guard at Texas Christian in 1932, Vaughnt spread the split-T gospel in Dixie right after World War II and he's still reaping rewards. Under his direction, Ole Miss has been on a 157-44-10, .781 kick.

Right behind Vaughnt comes Bryant, the Titan of Tuscaloosa, or any other part of Alabama you want to name.

His light, ultra-quick, whip-pet-fine "Bama squads of recent vintage have proved size is not a requisite to success. Just ask Devaney's Cornhuskers, cut down 34-7 by the Crimson Tide in an amazing Sugar Bowl demonstration of the Bryant creed.

While the full 22-year Bryant record shows a 171-51-14 listing, his most recent seven seasons at "Bama read 68-6-3 and his squad enters the 1967 campaign working on a 21-game unbeaten streak.

Of the next four men in the rankings, Missouri's Dan Devine as well as Texas' Darrell Royal and Arkansas' Frank Broyles — standing fourth and tied for sixth, respectively — were backs. Dartmouth's Bob Blackman in fifth place was not able to compete because of an attack of polio.

Atlanta Chases In Run To Strike Stricken Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — The Atlanta Braves chased in a run on a throwing error by Randy Hundley in the ninth inning Saturday and edged the stricken Chicago Cubs 2-1.

Ferguson Jenkins, seeking his 15th victory of the season, was the victim of the weird play in the ninth as the second-place Cubs dropped their fifth straight and seventh in the last eight games.

Jenkins was locked in a 1-1 duel with the Braves' Phil Niekro when Atlanta came to bat in the ninth. Hank Aaron leading off, was credited with a double when Adolfo Phillips fell chasing his short fly to center.

Joe Torre walked and, one out later, Aaron stole third. Tito Francona drew an intentional base on balls, loading the bases. Pinch hitter Charley Lau grounded to Banks, who forced Aaron at the plate. But Hundley's wild throw to first hit Lau in the back and Torre beat home with the winning run.

The Braves pulled into a tie in the sixth on Clete Boyer's 18th homer, matching his career high.

The Cubs got their only run, unearned, in the second. Clarence Jones, who later was forced to leave the game because of an eye injury, stroked a two-out single and went to third on Hundley's single.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Seasons In GMA

With Paul Martin

Expanding deer populations in Louisiana are reflected in hunting regulations that permit continued areas again during the approaching season, plus some "outside" areas where deer populations become farm and timber hazards.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission's complicated deer hunting regulations make it mandatory that hunters secure the 1967-68 folder of hunting, fishing and trapping regulations as soon as it becomes available at places where most game and fish licenses are sold. It merits study.

Open for short periods of any deer gun hunting again will be Russell Sage, Jackson - Bienville, Georgia-Pacific, Fort Polk, Catahoula, Union, Sabine, Thistlewaite, Red Dirt (no bow hunting), Evangeline, West Bay and Alexander State Forest management areas. Concordia, with no deer hunting allowed a year ago, is open to bucks only this season along with Caldwell, Salline, Caney, Cities Service, Bodcau and Spring Bayou.

Zones outside the management areas again engulf practically all of the state for bucks only in most instances, dogs allowed as opposed to still hunting in others, and any-deer hunting in parts of Madison, Tensas and East Carroll parishes.

Taking of any sex deer will be legal during the first five days of the first segment and also during the first five days of the second segment of the regular deer season in that portion of Madison parish south of U.S. highway 80 and in all of Tensas parish except Ward 3. Diamond Point and Sargeants Point are included in the open area.

The taking of any sex deer also will be legal the first five days of the first segment of the season in that portion of East Carroll parish lying east of U.S. highway 65.

Archers get first crack at deer with the opening of the bow season Oct. 7 and running through Jan. 10, but the archery season will be closed on all game management areas on Nov. 23 and again on Dec. 1, the eve of the opening of segments of the gun season where permitted.

Generally, the GMA deer seasons will be for five days deer hunting unless otherwise specified Nov. 24-26, either sex until the designated number of deer are taken, after which the remaining days of the first three days, if any, shall be open to "bucks only." Notification of the type of hunt to be held will be made when daily permits are obtained. Two additional days of "bucks only" will be allowed on the GMAs Dec. 2-3.

The game management schedule for gun hunters: Alexander State Forest - 50 any deer Nov. 24-26. Bucks only Dec. 2-3. Daily permits. Squirrel and rabbit, Oct. 7-Nov. 5, season permit, check locally for restricted areas.

Bodcau - Same as outside except still hunting bucks only. Small game same as outside, including waterfowl. Season permits. Dogs allowed only for bird hunting. No permanent duck blinds. No quail hunting in marked foreign bird experimental area.

Bucs Release Lee, Pact Keith Thomas

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Coach Babe McCarthy of the New Orleans Buccaneers confirmed Saturday that Clyde Lee had been released from his contract with the New Orleans American Basketball Association team.

"It is true that Clyde Lee has been released from his contract with the Buccaneers by mutual agreement of Lee himself, the Buccaneers and the San Francisco Warriors" of the National Basketball Association," McCarthy said.

Lee, who played with the Warriors last year, had signed a two-year contract with the Bucs for an estimated $90,000.

Simultaneously with the word of Lee's release, McCarthy announced the acquisition of Keith Thomas, a former teammate of Lee at Vanderbilt University.

Thomas, a 6-3 guard, will be in New Orleans Tuesday to sign his contract with the Bucs, McCarthy said.

Contacted at his home in Nashville, Tenn., Lee said, "I have been released from the contract I signed with New Orleans earlier. If I play basketball this winter, it will be in the NBA and probably with the San Francisco Warriors."

"I have talked with Bill Sharm, coach of the Warriors, on the phone. We have reached no decision. I do not plan on going to San Francisco in the near future. If we reach an agreement, the contract signing will be done in Nashville," Lee added.

The Warriors had threatened a $1 million law suit against the Buccaneers, if Lee played with the team this fall.

The Warriors also recently brought suit to keep Rick Barry, the NBA's top scorer last season, from joining Oakland of Arkansas Celebrates 'Karl Salb Day'

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Monday is "Karl Salb Day" in Crossett as Arkansas pays tribute to the 18-year-old Crossett High School senior who has thrown the shot further than any other high school athlete.

Joining Salb for the 4 p.m. downtown parade Monday will be Donna Axum, the former Miss America, Maurice "Footsie" Britt, Arkansas' Lieutenant Governor, and Sharon Ann Evans, "Miss Arkansas."

A bevy of beauty queens, other than Miss Axum, will also be on hand for the occasion, according to Walter Holt, parade marshal. Miss Southeast Arkansas, Irene Dennington of Demott; Miss Judy Tyson of Hamburg, Miss Ashley County; Miss Sharon Evans of North Little Rock, the New Miss Arkansas, and Miss Sharon O'Neal Hamburg, the new Ashley County Forest Queen will all be there.

The parade, starting at 4 o'clock, will be followed at 7 o'clock with a barbecue supper in Salb's honor at Forest Field. This will be followed by the formal ceremonies.

The evening program will feature the beauty queens, along with Britt and other city, county and state officials who have been invited to attend. Bob Timmons, University of Kansas will be guest speaker for the evening. Proceeds from the ticket sales to the supper will go to the Olympic Team fund in Salb's name, for which Arkansas is committed to contribute $14,000.

Salb, who was born May 19, 1949, in a Little Rock hospital a year after his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Slab, moved to Crossett from Indiana, set his 12-pound shotput record of 69 feet, six inches in the Golden West Invitational Track and Field Meet at Hughes Stadium, Sacramento, Calif., last June 16.

Earlier this season the Crossett football, discus and shotput star accepted invitations to show his shotput style for the University of Tennessee Triangular Indoor Meet with Alabama and Florida, plus a special high school shotput and mile invitational; the Northwestern Relays at Natchitoches, La.; the Southwestern Relays at Lafayette, La.; the Preptacular at Alexandria, La., and then the Golden West.

Salb, with an outdoor background of camping, scouting, canoeing, went out for track as a seventh grade shotputter. He added the discus in the eighth grade. Later told by a coach he couldn't participate in track in ninth grade unless he also played football, the youth, with reluctant consent of his parents, tried football for the first time as a ninth grader. He lettered in football his first season and threw the shot 53'6" the same year.

In 1965 Karl's goal was to beat Ham Singleton of Camden. Ham was a year older and the year's extra growth was to his advantage that season. Karl's best with the 12-pound shot for '65 was 50'6". In football that year under Coach Jack Robey, Crossett won the district 4-AA championship with Karl, at 220 pounds, playing tackle on defense.

1966 saw Salb blossoming into his full potential. He won the Arkansas shotput and discus crowns, with season's best marks of 61'4 1/4" with the shot and 166'9" discus. He rated fourth in the Charles Meyer Award national ratings for April and July of that year in which Chip Kell, Avondale, Ga., had a high school 68'6 3/4" shot toss.

His senior football season was capped by selection to the 4-AA Regional team, state double-A honor team, All-Southeast Arkansas team, Camden News All-District Defense team; honorable mention All - Southern U.S., honorable mention Prep All-America.

Traveling with the Crossett track and field team last spring, Salb attained three goals. He shot and discus. He plans to again win the Arkansas shot and discus events, earned his way to the Golden West Invitational limited to the top eight in the nation in the shot event, and he broke the existing record for a high school athlete that had been set by Dallas Long in 1959 with a heave of 69'3".

Karl has become accustomed to all sorts of descriptions of himself in the press, including young, still - growing giant, the big bruiser from Crossett, brawny strongman, man - mountain, and "strapping 6'3" - 230 lb Senior muscle - man."

The spelling of his name also has ran the gauntlet of erroneous programing through Slab, Slab, Salb, Slob, Salv, etc. He has received at least one letter addressed "Mr. Karl Crossett."

Karl, with an older sister, Virginia, who is a senior at the Indiana University School of Nursing at Indianapolis, plans to enroll at University of Kansas in September. He is continuing regular training throughout the summer, with four days a week devoted to weights and practice with the shot and discus. He plans to have as his UK roommate Steve Wilhelm the boy who placed second in the shotput in the Golden West Tournament.

Game Postponed

BALTIMORE (AP)—Saturday's scheduled two-night doubleheader between the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles was postponed because of rain.

One of the washed out games will be played as part of a doubleheader Sunday. The other will be rescheduled at a later date.

Guide To Good Reading

New Mystery Titles
Are Now Available

Readers who enjoy mystery stories will find two new titles available this week. One is "Claret, Sandwiches and Sin" by Madeline Duke. The other is "The Weekend Girls" by Jonathan Burke. "Wherever She Goes" by Richard Scowcroft is a novel with a setting in modern day Madrid. It is well written and makes interesting light reading. "Flying Saucers" have been much in the news for a number of years. David Jay has collected much that has been written about them in a most interesting book called "The Flying Saucer Reader." Another book dealing with unexplained phenomena is "Mysterious Fires and Lights" by Vincent Gaddis. A very fine set of books is "The History of Philosophy" by Emile Brehier. This a four volume set, which gives an excellent overview of this discipline. "Man in the Universe" by Red Hoyle is an excellent book for the thinking reader. "The Black Arts" by Richard Cavendish is an absorbing history of witchcraft. Robert S. Brumbaugh is the author of "The Philosophers of Greece," which should be very useful to students. "Psychology and the Human Dilemma" by Rollo May contains some excellent material. "Grow Rich With Peace of Mind" is a new book by Napoleon Hill, author of "Think and Grow Rich" which has been a best seller for many years.

There are some lovely new books in the fine arts section. "Japanese Garden and Floral Art" by Viola W. Kincaid is a beautiful book for gardeners and flower arrangers. "From Tepees to Towers" is a very interesting photographic history of American Architecture by Carl E. Hiller. "English Cathedrals Through the Centuries" is a perfectly beautiful book by George Henry Cook. For collectors of pottery and glass there are three new books of interest: "Collectors Handbook of Marks and Monograms on Pottery and Porcelain" by William Chaffers, "Italian Porcelain" by Francesco Stazzi and "American Historical Glass" by Bessier M. Lindsey. For those interested in making pottery and ceramics, there are also three new books: "Complete Book of Pottery Making" by John Kenney, "Ceramics" by Glenn Nelson and "Pottery, Step by Step" by Henry Trevor.

"Complete Guide to Furniture Style" by Louise Boger is a very beautiful as well as informative book for the homemaker. Photographers will want to see "The Photograph" by Michael P. Fraire, "Idea and Music" by Martin Cooper is an excellent discussion of the world of music. "Theatre at the Crossroads" by John Gassner is an illuminating history of this medium of art. "Now What Shall We Do" by Emily Dow contains many suggestions for family fun and pleasure. We have recently had many requests for books about soccer and we have ordered several titles. One which arrived last week was "Soccer Illustrated" by Frank P. Di Clemente. Gene Sarazen's new book "Better Golf After Fifty" will find a receptive audience. "Inside Racing" by Melvin Heimer is a good introduction to the sport of kings.

There are a number of new books in the travel and description section. "Kate Simon's Paris" is an uncommon guidebook of great value to the traveller. "A Guide to Literary Europe" by Margaret Crosland would be useful to the literary scholar who is travelling abroad.

"The Skin Divers' Travel Guide" by Eugene A. Tinker was sponsored by Pan American Airways and suggests the best places to pursue this interesting hobby. "Faulkner's County" by Martin Dain is a beautifully illustrated book about the county which he invented and made famous. "The Natural World of San Francisco" by Harold Gilliam is concerned with the climate and scenery of this city. "Los Angeles: The Ultimate City" by Christopher Rand is a good book of description. "An Alaskan Reader - 1867-1967" gives a good view of this interesting state. Another beautiful book about Alaska is "Glacier Bay" by David Bohn. This book was published by the Sierra Club and is an outstanding book. "Forever Wild: The Adirondacks" by Eliot Porter gives a good view of this beautiful section of our country. "The Living White House" by Lonelle Altkman is an interesting account of the White House and the Presidents who have lived in it. "The Last of the Saddle Tramps" by Mes-samie Wilkins is an interesting account of the development of the West. "Paths of American Thought" by Arthur M. Schlesinger is a thoughtful discussion of American intellectual life.

day. Actual crude production jumped from 2,762,100 to 3,277,000.

This means Texas fields had been authorized to boost output by 858,946 barrels a day but the actual flow of crude increased only 514,900 barrels daily.

By contrast, underproduction in Louisiana was negligible. Louisiana, with many newer plus production fields, boosted its allowances from 1,718,048 to 1,956,918 barrels a day. Actual production jumped from 1,723,000 to 1,938,000 barrels daily, leaving an underproduction of only 23,850 barrels a day.

Another healthy increase in Texas allowances—a jump to 4,186,004 barrels a day—became effective last Tuesday.

The most recent estimates of Texas overall productive capacity was released in May by the Independent Petroleum Association of America. The estimate of 4,309,000 barrels a day indicated a decline of 21,000 barrels a day between Jan. 1, 1963, and Jan. 1, 1967.

Langdon has described underproduction as a misnomer in that it is a phenomenon that occurs as market demand increases.

"Gradually, as more and more of the wells in the state are permitted to produce at capacity, the actual capacities of these wells to produce is determined," he said.

Reds Lash Zionist Movement

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet press Saturday denounced the Zionist movement as "a dangerous weapon of the imperialist West" and compared it with the Mafia and Cosa Nostra.

A long article distributed by the Soviet Novosti news agency and published in Russian newspapers charged Zionism, as a world organization operating in 60 countries, dealt in everything "from religion to espionage."

It alleged the Zionist movement was organized with the aid of German Kaiser Wilhelm II, the king of Italy, British cabinet ministers and the Rothschild bankers "to detach Jewish workers from the international labor movement and perpetuate the rule of property owners."

"The wide network of Zionist organizations, with a central headquarters, unified program and resources far exceeding those of the Mafia and Cosa Nostra is operating behind the scenes of the national theater," the article said.

The article charged Zionist leaders have collaborated with Ukrainian organizers of anti-Jewish program "and in 1936 when the Zionist actively cooperated with the Nazi chieftains they organized the World Jewish Congress whose president today still is (Dr. Nahum) Goldman."

The widely distributed article, a summary of which was released by the official Soviet Tass news agency, listed other alleged "Zionist organizations" following the same political program as the B'nai Brith, the Joint Distribution Committee and IIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society.

Some Fields
Can't Meet
Major Hike

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Productive capacity estimates for many United States oil fields, particularly in Texas, probably will be overhauled as a result of the Middle East crisis.

Some fields have filed, so far at least, to respond to the higher production allowances dictated by the Middle East emergency.

Underproduction is not a new problem but the big buildup since early June has prompted increased concern in some cases, warnings. Some oilmen think too much is being expected of fields that simply are worn out.

Factors drawing the blame have ranged from depleted reservoirs and old equipment to a 10-year drilling and exploration slump that has reduced the growth rate of proved reserves sharply.

A world surplus of crude also has prevented the producing capacities of numerous U.S. fields from being tested effectively since the big push during the short-lived Middle East emergency of late 1956 and early 1957.

Long before the outbreak of the Israeli-Arab war on June 5, there had been numerous industry pleas for critical reviews of procedures and formulas being used for the development of productive capacity estimates.

Judge Jim C. Langdon, chairman of the Texas oil and gas regulatory commission, had expressed hope as early as January that encouraging forecasts of demand for petroleum would permit improvement in 1967.

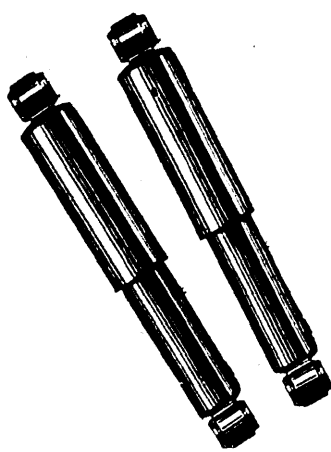

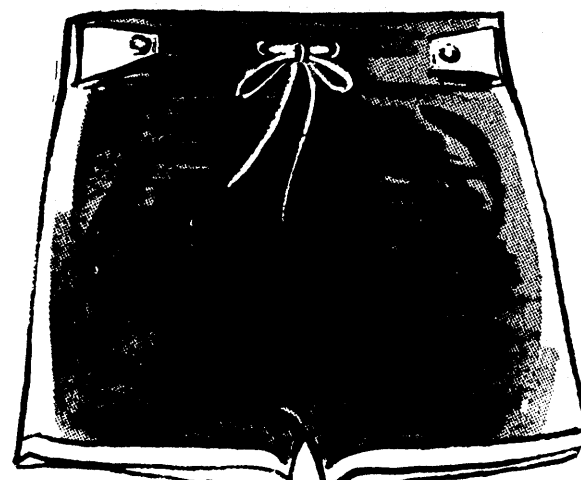

"The over-all effect of the increased production during recent months and the further increases anticipated during 1967 should afford us a more realistic estimate of our reserves and producing capacities than has been possible under less favorable conditions," he said during a Jan. 3 speech in Houston.

At that time, petroleum demand in 1967 had been expected to exceed 1966 by only 3.5 per cent. The Middle East crisis now has boosted this forecast to about 5.5 per cent.

Texas boosted its June-July production allowances from 2,982,482 to 3,841,428 barrels a

The World For WOMEN

Sunday, August 6, 1967

At left: Miss Katherine Ann Martin, daughter of Mrs. James E. Marshall of New Orleans and the late Floyd Leon Martin of Monroe, was married on Saturday, August 5, to Robert Adam Hebert, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hebert, Jr., of Metairie. The Rev. James E. Marshall officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal church, New Orleans.

At right: College Place Baptist church was setting for the ceremony which united Miss Linda Rebecca Blair and Frederick Joseph Vogel, Jr., Friday, August 4. The Rev. T. Earl Ogg heard the vows at 4 p.m. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nathan Blair and Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Vogel, all of Monroe.

At left: The Rev. Preston Brown of Monroe officiated at the wedding ceremony of Miss Janis Dianne Guy and Andrew Franklin Mapp, Saturday, August 5, at 8 p.m. in Hewitt Memorial Presbyterian church, Mansfield. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fletcher Guy of Mansfield, and Mr. Mapp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Buford Mapp of Monroe.

At right: Grady Wyly Brown of Lake Providence claimed as his bride Miss Jennie Lou Ropp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Edward Ropp of Glasgow, Ky. Dr. R. Trevis Otey officiated at the ceremony at 4:30 p.m., August 5, in Glasgow Baptist church. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. William Denis Brown, Jr., of Lake Providence, and the late Mr. Brown.

At right: Soon to scatter are college-bound girls, recent high school graduates who begin leaving in the next weeks. Days of convertibles at the water's edge will be ending for Miss Carole Cooper, who is to enter Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.; Miss Betsy Taylor, University of Mississippi; Miss Cynthia Terzia, Louisiana Tech; Miss Bonnie Bancroft, Louisiana State University; Miss Carroll Husted, Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.; Miss Cindy Zollinger, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.; and Miss Mary Ann Atkinson, LSU.

MRS. TERRY OLIVER EWING

Ewing-Wallace Vows Pledged In Broadmoor Church

The marriage of Miss Donna Sue Wallace and Terry Oliver Ewing, was celebrated Saturday, August 5, in Broadmoor Methodist Church, Shreveport, by the Rev. Robert Crichton. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Vernon Wallace of Shreveport and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ewing of Jonesboro.

On the altar of the church, burning tapers formed an arch above the arrangement of white stock, gladioli, and chrysanthemums. At each side were white pillars topped with brass candle trees, before a background of palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a bridal gown of white silk organza, appliqued with Chantilly lace at the neckline and on the skirt. A detachable chapel train fell from a lace overlay at the back neckline. A silk organza rose held her veil of French silk illusion. The bride's bouquet was a nosegay of white roses, and stephanotis centered with an orchid.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Glenda Kay Wallace, maid of honor; Mrs. Randy L. Ewing of Jonesboro, matron of honor; Miss Jan Penny of Alexandria, Miss Beverly Wilcox of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Malcolm H. Smith III of Monroe, bridesmaids. They wore formal length Empire dresses of pink linen with brief sleeves banded with vari-colored Swiss embroidery. Their colonial nosegays of daisies, blue stephanotis, pink roses, orchid statice and ivy leaves picked up the colors of the embroidery.

Randy L. Ewing of Jonesboro attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Billy Phillips of Jonesboro, Bert Hogg of Alexandria, Malcolm H. Smith, III, of Monroe, and Steve Reeves of Arcadia. Jimmy McDonald of Jonesboro and James McKinney of Freeport, Tex., were ushers.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were hosts at a reception in the church parlor. Guests were registered by Mrs. W. W. Wise.

A white organza cloth covered the bride's table, which was centered with white roses, stock, starburst mums and carnations. The tiered cake was topped with a miniature china bride and groom which had been used at the wedding of the bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Loye Jones and Mrs. Lonnie Wiggins cut the cake, while Mrs. W. M. Greene and Mrs. Joseph Reeves presided at the punch bowl.

From the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to the Cumberland Mountains. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Ewing will be at home in Baton Rouge, where both will continue studies at L.S.U.

Katherine Ann Martin Weds Robert Adam Hebert, III

Miss Katherine Ann Martin became the bride of Robert Adam Hebert, III, in a ceremony performed in St. Paul's Episcopal church, New Orleans, Saturday, August 5. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James E. Marshall of New Orleans and the late Floyd Leon Martin of Monroe. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hebert, Jr., of Metairie.

The Rev. James E. Marshall, step-father of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. Twin arrangements of white stock and gladioli, flanked with seven-branched candelabra, stood on the altar of the church. Music was provided by Mrs. John McCormick at the organ.

Floyd Lester Martin of Monroe escorted his sister and gave her in marriage. She was wearing a bridal gown of white silk organza over taffeta, styled on Empire lines. Appliques of Chantilly lace embellished the bodice, sleeves, and chapel length train. A cluster of lace leaves held her elbow length veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade of white roses centered with white orchids.

Miss Mary Elizabeth McLemore was maid of honor; and Miss Carol Maxie Hebert, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Nancy Evelyn Howie, and Miss Linda Lane Huggins, all of New Orleans, were bridesmaids. They wore Empire dresses of pale yellow linen with bell sleeves accented with maize lace. Their headresses were yellow flowers with matching net and they carried round bouquets of yellow roses with mint green satin ribbon.

Flowergirls were nieces of the bride, Marguerite Walker Martin, and Sarah Pleasant Walker, both of Monroe. They wore floorlength dresses of white cotton lace over pale yellow linen and carried nosegays of yellow sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's attendants were Michael Steven Hebert, best man; and Steven Perre, C. M. van Zandt, and Harry Heinz, groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Marshall chose a sheath of mint green silk organza topped with a full length green organza coat. She wore a green flower hat and other accessories of white. Mrs. Hebert was attired in a sleeveless dress of pink faille with short matching jacket and hat in the same shade. Their corsages were of white Japhet orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Church of the Holy Apostles. Arriving guests were registered by Miss Carol Borne and Miss Melinda Mabray of Monroe.

The tiered bride's cake, topped with white roses and en-

MRS. WARREN F. MUTZ

Mutz-Noble Vows Pledged In Baptist Church

Miss Dianne Noble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Noble of Sterlington, and Warren F. Mutz of Monroe were wed Friday, August 4, in First Baptist Church of Sterlington, La. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Joseph Mutz of Metairie are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Ray Raddin officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. White gladioli, magnolia foliage and candelabra entwined with ivy decorated the church. Music was provided by Miss Peggy Ledger at the organ, and Bruce Swindle, soloist.

Mr. Noble escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage. She wore a Empire style dress of white peau de soie with bodice and sleeves of white lace. A crown of pearls held her shoulder length veil of tulle. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums encircling a yellow orchid.

Mrs. Jim Hatton attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore an avocado green Empire style dress with matching pill box hat. Mrs. David Wimbish, bridesmaid, wore Nile green; and the flower girl, Georganne Hatton, mint green. Each wore short white gloves and carried three white chrysanthemums tied with white streamers.

Robert Mutz served as the bridegroom's best man, and ushers were Jerry Noble, Ronald Mutz, and Buster Nolan.

Mrs. Noble, mother of the bride, chose to wear a pink knit ensemble with matching accessories. Mrs. Mutz was wearing blue bonded crepe with blue accessories. Their corsages were of white chrysanthemums.

Nancy Colvin Weds Richard Tubbs

In a ceremony performed in First Baptist church of Bernice, Miss Nancy Carroll Colvin, daughter of Mrs. J. B. Colvin of Bernice, became the bride of Richard Louis Tubbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Tubbs of Dallas, Tex. The Rev. D. L. Hughes officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday, August 5.

Baskets of gladioli, palms, and arches of candles decorated the church for the wedding. Candles were lighted by Miss Deborah Colvin and Miss Mary Ann Goss. Music was provided by Mrs. B. R. O'Bannon, organist, and Mrs. M. A. Porter, soloist.

The bride was escorted by her uncle, George Carroll, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown was styled of white peau de soie with yoke, long sleeves, and chapel train of French Chantilly lace. A bow of peau de soie and lace held her veil of illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Janilu Burns, maid of honor; Mrs. C. A. Smith, matron of honor; and Mrs. Randy Gillum, Mrs. David Harris, Miss Gayle Butler, and Miss Laura Tubbs, bridesmaids. They wore floor-length dresses of Nile green peau de soie with lace yoke and sleeves. Their headresses were of scalloped green tulle attached to peau de soie bows. They carried nosegays of small white

MRS. THOMAS LEE BURRELL

Burrell-Strother Vows Pledged In Calvary Church

Calvary Baptist Church was scene of the wedding which united Miss Linda Louise Strother, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Strother, and Thomas Lee Burrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burrell, all of Monroe. The Rev. L. L. Morris officiated at the ceremony at 7 p.m. Friday, July 28.

Ten seven-branched candelabra formed the background for baskets of white stock and gladioli which decorated the church. Mrs. Elaine Browning, organist, and Miss Janis Thomas, soloist, provided nuptial music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of white peau de soie appliqued with lace panel down the front. A matching long-sleeved jacket, edged with lace, was worn with the wedding dress. Her veil of tulle fell from a tiny hat of lace stitched with pearls. The bride carried a cascade of feathered white carnations, ivy, and lilies of the valley.

Miss Cheryl Groves, maid of honor, wore a dress of pale green peau de soie with matching bow in her hair. The bridesmaids, Miss Susan Price, and Miss Lea Anne Mann, wore dresses a shade darker and styled like that of the maid of honor. Each carried a bouquet of yellow carnations.

Ross Scott was Mr. Burrell's best man, and ushers were Johnny Bee of Monroe and John Powell of Lamesa, Tex.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Strother, wore a dress of lavender lace with bone accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Burrell, mother of the bridegroom, chose pink crepe with matching lace jacket, pink accessories, and a white carnation corsage.

A reception in the church social room followed the ceremony. Mrs. Donald McCandlish registered the guests. Mrs. M. T. Eiltsch cut the cake and Miss Harriette Thomas served punch.

For travel to Houston and San Antonio, Tex., the bride changed to a green dotted swiss shift, with which she wore white accessories and an orchid corsage. Upon their return they will be at home in Monroe, where the bridegroom is a student at Northeast Louisiana State College.

MISS CURMELLER SUZANNE PERRY

Curmeller Perry Is Engaged To Nelson Litsinger

Miss Curmeller Suzanne Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Onar Graves Perry of Bastrop, is to become the bride of Nelson Howard Litsinger of Riviera Beach, Maryland, and Washington, D.C., according to an announcement made today by her parents. Mr. Litsinger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elmer Litsinger of Riviera Beach.

The wedding ceremony is planned for 7 p.m. Monday, August 28, in First Methodist church in Bastrop. The Rev. Luther P. Booth, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church in Metairie, is to officiate.

Miss Perry is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevens Hester and the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brittan Perry. She is a graduate of Bastrop High School and of the American University School of International Service.

Mr. Litsinger is the grandson of Mrs. Ida May Plack of Landdowne, Md., and the late John Merritt; and of Millard E. Litsinger of Baltimore Md., and the late Mrs. Litsinger. He is a graduate of Glen Burnie High School and American University, where he was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa.

Patient's Okay Ahead In Drugs

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Doctors may soon have to ask for written permission from their patient or his family before they use a dangerous drug, a physician predicts.

There is a growing recognition that there is a great risk in the use of some drugs and this may force doctors to seek written consent. Dr. Joseph D. Palma of Hahnemann College, Philadelphia, told a University of Michigan conference.

He said written consent is now required for volunteer drug testing and even minor operations and "it is not unreasonable to expect the same requirement for the administration of a drug where the risk may be considerably larger than for the average operation."

Bishop Jones Officiates At Baldrige-Silver Vows

The Very Reverend Girault M. Jones, Bishop of Louisiana, officiated at the ceremony at Grace Episcopal Church when Vail Montgomery Delony Silver of Monroe became the bride of the Rev. William Edward Baldrige of Rayville. The Rev. W. Bradley Trimble and the Rev. James B. Brown assisted in the service at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, July 30.

Parents of the couple are Mr.

and Mrs. Vail Montgomery Delony of Lake Providence, and Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Baldrige of Dyersburg, Tenn.

The main altar of the church held an arrangement of white stock, majestic daisies and agapantha as a background for the large brass cross. Marble pedestals at each side held Eucharist candles.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a blue silk suit with matching lace hat. She carried her great-grandmother's prayer book, with a cathedral strand of Zorina roses and showers of satin ribbon in shades of the roses.

Mrs. William H. Reed, who attended her sister as matron of honor, wore a beige silk suit and carried an Edwardian bouquet of Tropicana roses.

Pete Haddad attended the Rev. Mr. Baldrige as best man.

A reception was held in the church parish house immediately following the ceremony. The room was decorated with urns of magnolia and ivy placed atop marble pedestals.

The refreshment table was covered with a white ruffled organdy cloth. A silver and cut-glass epergne filled with white stock, lily of the Nile, Anemone chrysanthemums and light green grapes was used as centerpiece. Mrs. Edward F. Hayward Sr., presided at the coffee service.

Two smaller round tables, each covered with lace and organdy, were used for the bride's cake and a second punch bowl. These were garlanded with Baker fern, miniature white chrysanthemums and bunches of green grapes. Mrs. S. O. Henry III and Mrs. Jerry Wolff served punch, while Mrs. Noland Pipes of Rayville cut the cake.

The couple left following the reception for a wedding trip to New Orleans. On their return they will make their home in Rayville.

The bride is a graduate of Louisiana State university, where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta. The Rev. Mr. Baldrige is a graduate of the University of Tennessee and Seabury Western Seminary.

Grady Wyly Brown Weds Jennie Ropp In Kentucky

A wedding in Glasgow Baptist church on Saturday, August 5, united Miss Jennie Lou Ropp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Edward Ropp of Glasgow, Ky., and Grady Wyly Brown of Panama Plantation, Lake Providence. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William Denis Brown Jr. of Lake Providence, and the late Mr. Brown.

Dr. R. Trevis Otney officiated at the ceremony at 4:30 p.m. in a setting of white flowers lit by cathedral tapers. Music was provided by Durwood Haynes, organist, and Lee S. Myers, soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory Dulcette satin overlaid with net and highlighted with panels of reemboiled lace accented with pearls. Pleated back fullness flowed into a chapel train applied in the same panel design. The bride's veil of illusion was held by a cap of satin and lace embroidered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, gardenias, and roses.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Barlow Ropp. Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Brown of Lake Providence; Miss Julie Wells of Glasgow; Mrs. Oliver Gillespie of Cave City; and Mrs. William Craig Robertson of Baltimore, Md. They wore floor-length dresses of powder blue crepe styled on Empire lines, and carried pink Sensation roses with stephanotis and eucalyptus.

Williams Denis Brown III of Monroe was his brother's best man. Groomsman-ushers were Philip Brown, brother of the bridegroom; Barlow Ropp, brother of the bride; Henry E. Johnston, E. K. Oswald, and Harry Wilson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ropp chose a suit of aqua Alaskine with matching accessories, and Mrs. Brown, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in dusty rose. Their corsages were of white orchids.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the church service. The dining table was covered with a cloth of pale blue antique satin overlaid with white satin net and draped with smilax garlands. Centering the table were white roses, stock, carnations, and tube roses in an antique Bisque container flanked with matching five-branch candelabra. Punch was served from silver bowls at each end. Individual round tables, each draped with blue cloths overlaid with white, held the bride's cake and the groom's cake.

Following the reception, when the bride and groom left on their wedding trip to Montreal, Canada, Mrs. Brown was wearing a powder blue knit suit with brown trim and brown accessories.

MRS. THOMAS GRAY EDDLEMAN

Home Ceremony In Winnsboro Unites Couple

Miss Virginia Katherine Kincaid and Thomas Gray Eddleman were wed Saturday, August 5, in a ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Etheridge in Winnsboro. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Carey Douglas Kincaid of Winnsboro and the late Mr. Kincaid. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Eddleman of Denham Springs are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Douglas T. Williams, pastor of the Winnsboro First Methodist church, officiated. The couple exchanged vows before an improvised altar decorated with white gladioli and chrysanthemums and flanked with wrought iron stands of polished jade foliage. Music was provided by Mrs. Dave Anders at the organ.

Mrs. John Caleb Etheridge served as her sister's matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Tucker of Winnsboro and Mrs. Henry Roane of Monroe. They wore Empire dresses of Verdi green crepe and carried nosegays of citrus pompons and Marguerite daisies.

At the reception which followed, guests were registered by Mrs. Dee Faircloth and Mrs. Robert Scafield of Monroe.

A ruffled white meline cloth garlanded with Hahn's ivy covered the bride's table, which was centered with a silver compote holding yellow chrysanthemums and daisies. Miss Janis Brandon of Monroe, Mrs. Charles Bailey of Greenwood, Miss. and Mrs. Robert Eddleman of Baton Rouge served, assisted by Miss Mary K. Robinson and Miss Betty Robinson, cousins of the bride.

When the couple left on their wedding trip, the bride was wearing a Kelly green ensemble complimented by navy accessories and the white orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return, they will live in Monroe where Mrs. Eddleman is to teach at Lexington school, and Mr. Eddleman will be attending Northeast Louisiana State College.

Couple Wed In Lake Providence Church Ceremony

A ceremony in St. Patrick's Catholic church Saturday, July 29, united Miss Mary Anne Erwin of Monroe and Edmund J. Giering, III, of West Monroe. The Rev. Father John Cunningham officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4:30 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Erwin of Lake Providence. Parents of the bridegroom are E. J. Giering, Jr., of Natchitoches and the late Mrs. Lillian Frances Kelley Giering.

The altar of the church was decorated with twin arrangements of white baby gladioli before a background of burning cathedral tapers. Music was provided by Mrs. Florence B. Holt of Lake Providence, organist, and J. Reuben Bise, great-uncle of the bride, of Nashville, Tenn.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal dress of white silk peau de soie appliqued with Alencon lace on bodice, sleeves, and train. A forward pouff of Alencon lace petals edged with pearls held her tiered veil of illusion. She carried a handkerchief used by her maternal grandmother on her wedding day. The bride's bouquet was a single white orchid encircled with stephanotis.

Miss Frances Nellie Erwin, sister of the bride, of Mt. Morris, N. Y., was maid of honor; and bridesmaids, Miss Kay Giering, sister of the groom, of Metairie, and Miss Debra Anne Avery, niece of the bride, of Lake Charles. They wore identical floor length A line dresses of coral peau de soie, styled with bell sleeves to the elbow. Their headresses were coral veils attached to fabric bands, and they carried coral carnations.

Carl W. Davis of Shreveport attended Mrs. Giering as best man. Groomsmen - ushers were Francis O. Giering of Helena, Ark., brother of the groom, David A. Lee of New Orleans, F. Markley Huey and Gene Hutson of Monroe, George B. Williams of Kosciusko, Miss., and Jim Huggins of Monroe and Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Erwin, mother of the bride, wore a deep pink silk shantung dress with matching jacket. Her hat was a pink floral whimsy and she wore a corsage of coral carnations. Mrs. E. J. Giering, Jr., step-mother of the bridegroom, chose aqua crepe with an overblouse of matching lace. She wore an aqua veil and a white carnation corsage.

Following the church service, Mr. and Mrs. Erwin were hosts for a reception at their home. The bride's table was covered with an antique lace cloth and centered with two silver candelabra holding tapers wreathed with ivy, white blossoms and tulle. Also lace-covered, the groom's table held a centerpiece of coral carnations and gladioli.

Miss Dorothy Parra presided at the bride's book. Others who assisted at the reception were Mrs. Tom Bass, Mrs. Brady Oswalt, Mrs. Ed Ragus, Mrs. Henry Winters, Mrs. O. S. Brown, Mrs. Henry Teague, and Mrs. Tom Shields.

When the bride and groom left on their wedding trip to the Gulf coast, Mrs. Giering was wearing a yellow linen dress complimented with white lizard accessories and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return, they will live in West Monroe.

MRS. JAMES OWEN FISHER

McNeese Students Are Married In Harrisonburg

Miss Nola Gayle Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Talford Jones of Harrisonburg, and James Owen Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Paul Fisher of DeQuincy, were married Saturday, August 5, at 7 p.m. in the Baptist church of Harrisonburg. The Rev. L. W. Taylor officiated, assisted by the Rev. Willard Johnson.

Decorations for the church were urns filled with yellow roses and stock atop white pillars. On the altar was a large candle tree flanked with smaller candelabra. Mrs. C. F. Routon, Sr., organist, and James Alexander, soloist, provided nuptial music as candles were lighted by Miss Renee Routon and Miss Rhona Routon, cousins of the bride.

The bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a traditional wedding gown of candlelight satin with bodice of French Alencon lace. The full skirt, appliqued with lace, drifted into a chapel train. Her veil of illusion fell from a cluster of tulips made of English net. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids encircled with stephanotis.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Gary Cooper, matron of honor; Miss Linda Cotton, maid of honor; both of DeQuincy; and bridesmaids Miss Joan Reeves, and Miss Dianne Cassel of Harrisonburg. Miss Frances Fisher of DeQuincy, Mrs. Paulette Poche, of Lake Charles; Miss Donna Campbell of Baton Rouge; Laurie Irby of Batrop, cousin of the bride, flowergirl. They wore identical dresses of maize silk faille and chiffon, and on their heads clusters of daisies caught in silk illusion.

Ensign Paul Fisher of Pensacola, Fla., was best man, and the bridegroom's other attendants were Scotty Mathews, Rod Tremie, Mike Green, Tommy Rutledge, Gary Cooper and Pete VanWinkle, all of DeQuincy; Gary Miertschen of Atlanta, Ga.; Ronnie Buckley, Knox, Ind.; Charles McMillin, Harrisonburg, and Craig Brooks, Sicily Island.

Mrs. Jones wore for her daughter's wedding a two piece suit of blue Alaskine with matching accessories. Mrs. Fisher, mother of the bridegroom, chose a mauve two piece silk suit. Their corsages were of white orchids.

A reception in the home of the bride's parents followed the church ceremony. Those who assisted in courtesies were Miss Dorothy Stutson, Mrs. Emmet Irby, Mrs. T. C. Gottenhg, Miss Jeanette Peterson, Miss Dell Husbands, Miss Ann Reeves, Miss Candy Daggett, Miss Gayle Thompson, Miss Jean Necessary, Miss Sharon LeBlau, Miss Shellie Beasley, Miss Charlotte Beasley, Miss Carla Jean Vinson. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher left on a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss., and upon their return will be at home in Lake Charles. Both are students at McNeese State College, where Mrs. Fisher is a member of Phi Mu sorority and Mr. Fisher is on the football squad.

Wedding Trip To Bahamas Follows Vogel-Blair Vows

Now on their wedding trip to the Bahamas Islands are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Joseph Vogel Jr., whose wedding was solemnized Friday, August 4, with the Rev. T. Earl Ogg officiating at 7 p.m. in College Place Baptist church. The bride is the former Miss Linda Rebecca Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nathan Blair; while parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Vogel, Sr., all of Monroe.

Alternating wrought iron candelabra and pedestals holding arrangements of white gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums formed a background for the bride party. Candles were lighted by Rick and Mark Hixon, cousins of the bride. A concert of nuptial music was provided by Mrs. C. L. Dillingham at the organ and Davis Bingham, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal bridal gown of candlelight silk peau de soie with Kabuki sleeves of Alencon lace. A wide panel of the A line skirt, which was complimented with a circular chapel train attached at the waistline. A Swedish crown of pearls and lace held her tiered veil of imported silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade of white bridal roses centered with a gold-throated white orchid.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Kenneth Stone, matron of honor; Miss Ann Adams, Miss Peggy Ogg, Mrs. Milton Platt, bridesmaids; and Miss Janet Vaughn, junior bridesmaid. They wore floor length dresses of antique gold ottoman and chiffon, which overlaid the straight skirts and formed full back panels attached at the neckline. Gold velvet rose leaves trimmed with pearls formed their headpieces. They carried medley cascades of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and orange sweetheart roses.

MISS MACKIE LYNN ALEXANDER

Mackie Alexander Is Engaged To Charles Avant

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mackie Lynn Alexander to Charles William Avant is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mack O. Alexander to West Monroe. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. J. C. Avant of West Monroe and the late Mr. Avant.

The Rev. James B. White is to hear the vows at 8 p.m. Friday, September 1, in Trinity Baptist church, West Monroe.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Deason and of the late Mrs. Nancy Alexander. Miss Alexander has chosen Mrs. Sammy Robertson as her matron of honor and only attendant.

Grafton Murphy is to serve as Mr. Avant's best man, and Sammy Robertson and Joe Avant will be ushers.

The couple plan to live in West Monroe.

Avoid Financial Difficulties By Checking Insurance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Read any good insurance policies lately? It's not like curling up with a good book. But keeping your life insurance and your health insurance up to date is one way of avoiding financial difficulty later on, family advisers say.

According to the Institute of Life Insurance, a family's life insurance program should be reviewed periodically, especially when there is a major change in family circumstances — say, birth of a child, acquisition of a home, approach of retirement, or a new job.

Dianne Guy, Andrew Mapp Wed In Mansfield Church

The marriage of Miss Janis Dianne Guy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fletcher Guy of Mansfield, and Andrew Franklin Mapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Buford Mapp of Monroe, was solemnized Saturday, August 5, in Hewitt Memorial Presbyterian church, Mansfield. The Rev. Preston Brown, minister of First Presbyterian church, Monroe, performed the ceremony at 8 p.m.

An arch of candles flanked with potted palms and fan-shaped arrangements of Killian daisies and emerald foliage formed the setting for the exchange of vows. As candles were lighted by Paul Lee Eason and David Charles Eason of Lafayette, a pre-nuptial concert was presented by Miss Ellen Walker of Monroe at the organ. Mrs. John Eason, aunt of the bride, was soloist.

Mr. Guy escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage. She was wearing a bridal gown of white silk organza styled on Empire lines with scalloped sleeves of pearl-embellished Alencon lace. A deep band of lace encircled the skirt and motifs were applied on the full Watteau train. The bride's veil was held by a full-blown white rose. She carried a modified colonial bouquet of antique bride's roses with cuff of Alencon lace framed in seed pearls and tuberoses.

Mrs. William Cottrell attended the bride as matron of honor; and bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Guy and Miss Cindy Rascoe of Mansfield; Miss Lucille Morton and Mrs. Charles Burton of Monroe; Miss Linda Dilahunty of Shreveport; and Miss Vickie Vollmer of Ferriday.

They wore floor length textured silk dresses with Empire bodices of lime green and sheath skirts of fern green. On their heads were picture hats of lime green horsehair with fern green velvet ribbons. They carried colonial bouquets of Marguerite daisies.

Little Carol Elise Russell of Monroe, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, wearing a floor length frock of white organza with sash of fern green velvet. She wore a circlet of Marguerites in her hair and carried a miniature formal nosegay of daisies and lace.

Mr. Mapp, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Tommy and Randy Guy of Mansfield, brothers of the bride; Henry H. Hinkle Jr., James Nicholas White II and Michael Dennis Haddad, all of Monroe; and William Kurt Lake Guelzow of Houston, Tex. Charles Garrison Hargon, Charles Ackel and Edwin Russell of Monroe; and Otis Lee Tugwell of Bastrop were ushers. David Guy Douciere, cousin of the bride, carried the rings.

Mrs. Guy selected for her daughter's wedding a formal gown of bittersweet chiffon with empire bodice covered with beading of cut steel and pearls. She wore a bubble crown of matching chiffon and a corsage of Tanya roses. Mrs. Mapp, mother of the bridegroom, chose a fitted floor length dress of sapphire blue topped with a blue satin circlet cap with halo veil. She carried a corsage of yellow.

Mrs. Samuel Guy of Mansfield, grandmother of the bride, was wearing a Sabrina gown with a pink rose corsage.

Cold Versus Hot New Controversy

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (UPI) — When you tire of arguing about sparring the rod and spoiling the child, try the newest controversial subject — cold versus hot water laundering.

Cold water was good enough for our ancestors. They sloshed their togs in the waters of a river. Then someone thought of hot water, then soap. Then came the automatic washer and dryer, followed by a cafeteria of detergents.

Today, after much research, science is finding cold water okay.

Cold water, laced with cold water detergent powder, not only cleans clothes well but also leaves them bacteria-free after drying.

The test was conducted on two soiled articles taken from a typical family laundry, a bedsheet and a T-shirt, both of which were washed in home laundry machines in normal wash loads.

The bedsheet was cut in half and one half washed in hot water (120 degrees) with a hot water detergent, and the other half washed in 80-degree water with cold water powder detergent.

Each half then went through a laundry machine rinse cycle and the spin dry cycle and then was removed and put in a home dryer. After each cycle, swatches were cut from each half of the bedsheet and placed in sterile jars for a bacteria count.

The tests showed that the final swatches possessed very few bacteria, no matter whether cold or hot water was used for the washing cycle.

The research continued. The T-shirt was cut in half and put through the same washing cycle, instead of putting each half in a home dryer, the scientists put the two pieces outdoors to dry in the sun and then sent them to the lab for the bacteriological count.

EASTGATE
Now Showing: "A Man For All Seasons," with Paul Scofield and Robert Shaw—AMY. Winner of six Academy Awards, this motion picture brings the 16th century of Sir Thomas More and Henry VIII to life again. Scofield gives a warm and witty performance in this film of Robert Bolt's play. Starting Thursday: "The Gnome-Mobile," with Walter Brennan and Ed Wynn—AMC. This sprightly Disney comedy-fantasy has engaging children, catchy music, remarkable camera tricks that produce two-foot-tall gnomes and animals that give advice, and the beautiful California Redwoods as background. Coming Soon: "Hawaii," with Julie Andrews and Max Van Sydow—AMY.

JIM
Today through Tuesday: "Don't Make Waves," with Tony Curtis and Claudia Cardinale—A. Opportunists Tony Curtis gets involved with a couple of wacky, sexy West Coast groups — an unconventional beach crowd and some equally uninhibited members of the community's wealthier set. Starting Wednesday: "Wild Planet," with Tony Russell and Lisa Gastoni—AMY. This English dubbed, Italian film is a grisly science fiction yarn with a highly detailed involved plot.

JOY DRIVE-IN
Now Showing: "Casino Royale," with Peter Sellers, Ursula Andress, David Niven, and Woody Allen—AMY. An uproariously funny spoof at everything going in the spy-adventure films featuring 17 international stars.

Also Showing: "Kiss the Girls and Make Them Die," with Michael Connors and Dorothy Provine—AMY. This motion picture is a James Bond type science fiction tale. Thursday through Saturday: "Born Losers," with Jeremy Slate and Jane Russell—NRA. This motion picture starts its first run in Monroe.

Also Showing: "Swing Summer, U.S.A.," with Raquel Welch, James Stacy and Bill Wellman—NRA.
PARAMOUNT
Now Showing: "Divorce American Style," with Dick Van Dyke and Debbie Reynolds—A. As it details the break-up of the fifteen-year-old marriage of a suburban couple, this comedy satirizes some of the less creditable aspects of family and community living. Coming Soon: "The Naked Runner," with Frank Sinatra — AMY. This film takes Frank Sinatra from peaceful London into Germany behind the Iron Curtain, up to Copenhagen.

then back to underground Leipzig in a desperate journey of vengeance that turns him into a ruthless killer. Tuesday: Popeye Prize Party."

RIALTO
Now Showing: "The Honey Pot," with Rex Harrison, Susan Hayward, Capucine and Edie Adams — AMY. A sophisticated comedy in which elegant Rex Harrison, pretending to be fatally ill, invites three former loves for final farewells but has his macabre joke upsets when one of his would-be heirs is found dead. Coming Soon: "The Way West," with Kirk Douglas and Robert Mitchum—AMY. A western epic, based on the novel of A. B. Guthrie Jr., which describes a danger-filled journey by wagon train from Missouri to Oregon.

STAR DRIVE-IN
Today through Tuesday: "Mondo Teeno" — NRA and "It's a Bikini World," with Deborah Walley and Tommy Kirk. — NRA.
Wednesday through Friday: "The Singing Nun," with Debbie Reynolds and Ricardo Montalban — AMC. Appealing, tuneful music fills this story of a Belgian nun who becomes a recording star of international fame.

In 1912, the Progressive Party, which bolted from the Republicans, met in Chicago to nominate Theodore Roosevelt for President.

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, 323-3660, 323-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

Home Youngsters Enjoy Vacations

Yellowstone National Park, Six Flags Over Texas, Avery Island, the Astrodome, St. Augustine, Florida and Gloria, New Mexico were among places visited by some of the youngsters from the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe during their annual vacation period.

Swimming, riding horses, fishing, water skiing, making new friends, sleeping late and camping out were among the things the boys and girls listed in answer to the question "What did you like most about your vacation?"

The vast majority of the children spent the three weeks of vacation with their sponsors or with friends who had asked for a child for the period. Some children went with relatives. The Home, according to Superintendent Wade B. East, is grateful to all who had a part in making vacation days happy ones for the boys and girls.

Lonnie Froust made the most miles as he spent a week at Gloria Baptist Assembly in New Mexico with a group from the First Baptist Church of Westlake and then went to Wyoming with a Maplewood family where he threw snowballs on July 4. Thomas Barrois visited Yellowstone National Park as guest of friends from Homer, Ricky Bullock, guest of a Pineville family, enjoyed worshipping in the First Baptist Church of Dallas, largest in the world, and visiting Six Flags. Several other youngsters from the Home got in visits to Six Flags.

A vacation highlight for both John Joyner, who was at Newellton, and Jim Florio, who was at Coushatta, was getting to sleep late. Commenting on his stay with a Monroe family, Eugene Stamper said, "I knew that I was welcome because of the way they treated me and the way I felt. They went out of the way to do things for me."

A train trip with a group from a day camp was a vacation event for June Conklin, guest of a West Monroe family. A birthday party, complete with punch and cake and a table full of presents, and attended by more than forty persons at a church in Opelousas will long be remembered by Jesse Brown.

With a Lake Charles family, Shelia Cain travelled to St. Augustine, Florida. She found swimming in the ocean lots of fun. She also got in a visit to the Astrodome in Houston. Rosemary Hovarter, visiting her sponsors in the Southwest Louisiana town of Vinton, discovered that shrimp, both boiled and fried, make mighty good eating.

Elizabeth Carney, guest of her sponsors in the Jennings First Baptist Church, enjoyed a visit to the Jungle Gardens on Avery Island and the Evangeline State Park. "I think this vacation was the best one I could ever ask for," she commented.

While vacationing in Florien.

Changes Noted By Catholics

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Roman Catholic nuns chuckled when Rabbi Arthur Gilbert of New York City told how Jewish ritual was changed in the 19th century to include participation by the congregation in hymn singing, and the rabbi facing the worshippers instead of the altar. Both such changes have been made in Catholic ritual since the Vatican Council.

Rabbi Gilbert, national director of religious curriculum research for the B'Nai B'Rith Anti-Defamation League, addressed a seminar for teaching nuns at Marville College. He said there were "striking parallels" between changes made by the Jews 100 years ago and Catholics today.

Nazarene Church Sets Conference

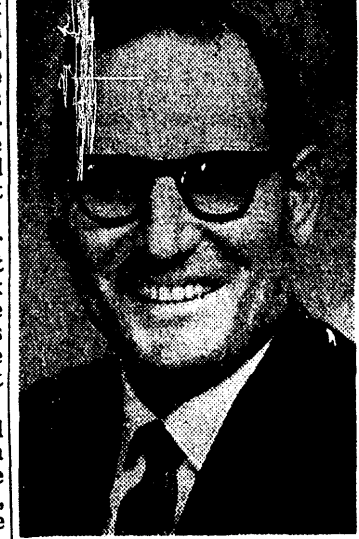

The pastor and delegation of members of the Church of the Nazarene in this area will take part in the annual Louisiana district assembly to be held at the First Nazarene church in Pineville on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 16-17.

Annual reports will be made by pastors of 55 churches in the district. These churches have a total of about 2,700 members and a combined Sunday school enrollment of 5,200 persons.

The Rev. T. T. McCord, Alexandria, will give his annual message as district superintendent. He will outline plans for the 1967-68 year. District officers will be elected including district delegates to the 17th General Assembly to be held at Kansas City in 1968.

The presiding general superintendent will be Dr. Hardy C. Powers of Dallas, Tex. Who has served continuously since 1944 in this highest elective office in the denomination.

The Church of the Nazarene has a world membership total of 432,000 persons, including a domestic membership of 363,000 persons.

WILLIE WOODARD
Area Church Sets Revival During Week

The Rev. Willie Woodard, pastor of the West New Home Baptist Church, will be evangelist at a revival starting tonight at the West New Home Baptist Church near Holy Ridge.

The revival extends through Saturday.

Services are scheduled for 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. each day, Monday through Saturday.

C. G. "Doc" Hendrix from Woodlawn Baptist Church, Rayville, will be song director.

Everett G. Geis is pastor of the church.

Church Of God's Goal Exceeded

ANDERSON, Ind. (Special) — Church of God officials have disclosed the movement's first 12,000,000 goal was exceeded by $62,250 at the closing of the 1966-67 fiscal year.

Per capita giving exceeded $14.30 as compared with the previous year per person gift of $13.02. Rev. Paul Tanner, executive director of the fund-raising Division of World Service at general offices here, said the 1967-68 budget goal is $2,160,000.

Lutheran Pastors Get Higher Pay

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Pastors' salaries in the American Lutheran Church have gone up more than 10 per cent in the past two years, a study by the ALC's Division of Pensions revealed.

Dr. George Berkheimer, executive director of the division, credited a portion of the increase to the cost of living and added that "it is to be hoped that merit has been a contributing factor also."

The average salary in 1965 was $6,595, compared with an average of $7,279 for this year.

Local Residents Given Thanks

The Rev. A. C. Cantrell of West Monroe today expressed thanks for the cooperation of residents of the Twin Cities area in the telephone religion survey made in July.

Daily Formula For Confident Living

Mental Illness Helpful

By NORMAN VINCENT PEAL
This is the story of a man who had a tough bout with mental illness, and believe it or not, he says he is actually glad of it for the experience brought important discoveries leading to a successful life. But while in the throes of the suffering he was boxed into "a private hell" through lack of personality balance.

"At 23," the young man writes, "when a junior officer in the United States Navy, I was taken sick. Hospitalized at a naval hospital — the diagnosis was acute anxiety with depressive reaction."

"Believe me, I can sympathize with anyone in that state of turmoil of body and mind. I couldn't concentrate on anything and could not eat and lost 25 pounds in a short time. My bride of six weeks was left alone in our apartment, and this added to my anxiety."

"While having consultations with Navy psychiatrists I had much time to think and reflect on the past years of my young life. But still my mind remained foggy, and fears of everything assailed me from all sides. I was constantly afraid something was going to happen, but what I did not know."

"After a few weeks the doctors allowed me to live at home but consultations continued on a regular basis. They could not pinpoint any real cause for my illness."

"I prayed in desperation to be healed of my miserable state of mind. I had never prayed much. I had attended church in childhood but religion did not take up much room in my later life. One day I came across a column you had written. I thought that just maybe this could help. This was my start to a new life. I began to read the Bible and pray. Perhaps I was still praying out of desperation. I only know that God began to rule my life and take hold of my thoughts."

Meanwhile this officer was discharged from the Navy, and the couple moved to North Carolina. He found a job with a bank. The young wife took a teaching job. "I still had not been completely released from illness," he continues, "and had continuing consultations with a psychiatrist. Then suddenly one day a new truth came that the unrest of mind and spirit I was suffering was due to a hunger for God. Slowly, as I began to fill my life with prayer and faith, anxiety and depression subsided."

"Recently I was promoted to assistant operations manager of the bank. I claim no sudden healing or emotional enlightenment. But I'm no longer consulting a doctor and never felt more vibrant and full of life. I know now that "All things work together for good to them that love God."

"I am grateful for this experience, bad as it seemed at the time. I shall always be thankful for it as a blessing in disguise."

Well, that is a happy ending to the story of a man who traveled the long painful road back to mental health. Easement of tension, self-acceptance and fresh insight came through spiritual and medical guidance. Inner peace and a new sense of meaning resulted from religious teachings. The young man's experience points up the important fact that we face a danger of unhappiness and failure, even breakdown, by neglecting essential needs of mind and soul.

The above incident brought to mind an old friend in Switzerland, a man of serene and urbane personality. He gives his friends a pocket-size card of lines entitled "Take-Time"; the author of which is unknown:

TAKE TIME TO LAUGH—It is the music of the soul
TAKE TIME TO THINK—It is the source of power
TAKE TIME TO PLAY—It is the source of perpetual youth
TAKE TIME TO READ—It is the source of wisdom
TAKE TIME TO PRAY—It is the greatest power on earth
TAKE TIME TO LOVE AND BE LOVED—It is a God-given privilege
TAKE TIME TO BE FRIENDLY—It is the road to happiness
TAKE TIME TO GIVE—It is too short a day to be selfish
TAKE TIME TO WORK—It is the price of success
Perhaps we might add a line:
TAKE TIME FOR GOD—It is the way to health of body, mind and soul.

Split Observed In Nation's Churches

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The young priest was bearing down hard on the sinfulness of racial discrimination. And he wasn't content to talk in generalities. He called on the congregation to support an open housing law pending before the county council.

Suddenly the sermon was interrupted by a loud voice from the back of the church. "Couldn't we do without a political talk, father?" There was a moment of startled silence, then a spatter of applause. The priest recovered his composure and completed the sermon.

This incident occurred last month at the Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament, a large Catholic church in Chevy Chase, Md., one of the wealthier suburbs of Washington, D.C.

It might have happened at any one of thousands of other churches, Protestant or Catholic, across the land. For it was symptomatic of a deep split which has developed in America's churches. It could be called, ironically, an ecumenical split, because it cuts across denominational lines, united Protestants and Catholics of one viewpoint against Protestants and Catholics of another viewpoint.

Dr. Martin Marty, a prominent Protestant theologian, succinctly defines the issue which is dividing American Christians today more seriously than any of their old doctrinal quarrels:

"One side says that the church should be involved in the struggle of the poor for a better life; that it should be at the side of the delinquent, the racially oppressed, the politically exploited. The other side says the church should love these people but should not become involved in the politics of their problems."

The latter group was completely dominant for a long time, and it still retains vast power over ecclesiastical purse strings at both the local and national levels. Its influence is reflected in the fact that no U.S. denomination invests more than 4 per cent of its total budget in its social action agencies.

But in many parts of the nation, particularly urban areas of the North, the "keep-out-of-politics" traditionalists are now losing ground to a growing body of clergy and laymen, mostly young, who believe passionately that the church should play a direct front-line role in bringing about needed social changes.

Within the past year, social action fever has spread even to such bastions of theological conservatism as the Southern Baptist Convention and the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod.

At its national convention in New York last month, the latter denomination surprised observers (and possibly itself) by adopting overwhelmingly a resolution calling on its members to work actively for open housing.

Some conservatives have voiced fear that the church may become so preoccupied with fighting discrimination, poverty and other social ills that it will lose sight of its mission to proclaim the Gospel.

But leaders of the social action movement reply that they are in it precisely because they are trying to obey the Lord who said: "Whenever you serve one of the least of my brothers, you serve me."

The Rev. William A. Beal, rector of an Episcopal Church which stands only a few blocks from the Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament in Chevy Chase, Md., recently explained to his congregation why he feels that social action is not an optional extra but an overriding duty.

"In times such as these, good men have to take sides," he said. "To remain aloof from groups and movements that challenge the power structure is to identify, perhaps unwittingly but just as surely as if we intended it, with that other segment of society that represents the status quo."

"In a day of revolution, the just man will choose his battle-line with care. He will identify with the disinherited, not because they are good, but because they are down-trodden; not because they are always right; not because they are hurt; not because they are grateful; not because they stand alone; not because they are reasonable and well-balanced, but because they have been used unjustly."

New Guinea Is Issuing New Stamp

By SYD KRONISH

Much praise should be given to those underdeveloped countries who are attempting to do something about their situation. One of these is Papua and New Guinea which has just issued a new set of four postage stamps marking the completion of an important stage of the Laloki Hydro Power Complex. The stamp set also honors the territory's participation in the UNESCO International Hydrological Decade and two new industries benefiting from the development of water resources.

Two of the stamps have a common design. They show an artistic impression of water resources to generate electric power. In the lower left corner is the UNESCO emblem for this project.

Another stamp depicts pyrethrum flowers, a plant belonging to the chrysanthemum family. This daisy-like flower provides the main element for insecticides. Pyrethrum is proving to be an important new cash crop for the inhabitants.

The fourth stamp illustrates two tea leaves and a bud. Although tea has been grown experimentally in the highlands of New Guinea since 1939, it is only since 1964 that serious commercial planting has begun.

Hungary has issued three interesting new sets of stamps. One shows the poet Milton dictating "Paradise Lost" to his daughter. It is based on a painting by Soma Petrics. The stamp was issued to honor the International Stamp Show in Amsterdam.

The second stamp was issued to mark the International Tourist Year and depicted a map of Hungary with tourist symbols. The third set consisting of seven stamps, commemorating the 25th session of the Danube Commission, showed different

REV. AND MRS. CALOWAY
Kids Crusade Scheduled By Local Church

Pastor F. D. Wall of the First Assembly of God Church in West Monroe announces a Kids Crusade for the children of the community. The Crusade will be under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Caloway each day, 7 - 8:30 p.m. beginning Monday, through Saturday. The age span will include children from 4 through 14 years.

Pastor Wall stated that Evangelists Caloways come to First Assembly highly recommended as children evangelists and have been very successful in this field as well as kids camps for the past nine years. The Caloways have had an extensive ministry abroad traveling through the Holy Land and Europe.

The theme of the entire Crusade is "Walking Where Jesus Walked." The program each evening will include color slides, visualized songs, film strips and slides, stories, etc.

A "get acquainted" meeting with the Caloways is planned at 6 p.m. today. Pastor Wall urges the parents to bring the children to this special meeting preceding the Crusade.

MIDEAST RELIEF

NEW YORK (UPI) — Church World Service (CWS) has sent $100,000 to the aid of uprooted and homeless victims of the Arab - Israeli war. The money is being channeled through the World Council of Churches in Geneva, Switzerland, and the Near East Council of Churches in Beirut, Lebanon.

CWS, the overseas relief and rehabilitation agency of 30 U.S. Protestant and Orthodox churches, has undertaken to raise half of a worldwide refugee assistance fund of $2 million sponsored by the World Council of Churches. Already, CWS has sent tons of food, blankets, medicines and tents to the Mideast.

STUDY OF REFORMATION

SILVER BAY, N.Y. (UPI) — Both Catholic and Protestant ecumenical leaders should give serious consideration to the basic Protestant Reformation principles, according to the Rev. Dr. Stanley I. Stuber, author and director of Association Press.

The Rev. Dr. Stuber told a Christian World Mission Conference sponsored by the National Council of Churches that "in view of the 450th anniversary celebration of the Protestant Reformation in 1967-68 a mutual examination of the causes of the Reformation is very much in order." He said the "nature of the 'one true church,' of the sacraments, and of the priesthood remain to plague the ecumenical movement."

But he said he is not pleased with the exodus. "A great deal of it is born out of impatience and an unwillingness to accept the basic principle of working with people where they are. A minister may get the idea his parishioners are immovable and want to go where he can see some tangible results." While the existing church is under more criticism than at any time in recent years, he stated, it is in no more danger of extinction.

"We are making plans to keep pace. We haven't kept pace in the past because everything happens so fast now that nobody really understands what is happening. But the problems of today will pass and be changed, just as the 'God is dead' theory has, apparently. We will have new sets of problems in a few years."

RECORD ASSEMBLIES' GIVING

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Contributing to Assemblies of God world ministries set a new record of more than $11 million in 1966, says the denomination's headquarters here. This was $2.26 million more than in 1965.

EARLY CHURCH

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Early Mass at St. Boniface's Anglican Church, Germiston near Johannesburg, has been moved forward from 7:30 a.m. to 7 a.m.

This move, said the church magazine, "should help many sportsmen who have been finding it difficult to reach their venues of activity in reasonable time to start playing with their teams."

ADAPTATION URGED

BADEN, Austria (AP) — Roman Catholic missions "still have a far too westernized look about them," a Catholic missions specialist, Dr. Kurt Piscaty, told a Lutheran meeting here. "It will be a considerable time before our church is present in the various cultures not as a foreign but as a native church."

'RELIGIOUS HAPPENING'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Unitarian - Universalist Church of New York recently held an outdoor worship service in Central Park, including various instrumental music and a "flower communion" service. The event was called a "Religious Happening."

New Chapel Hill

The New Chapel Hill Baptist Church will conduct Revival services August 13-20 with the Rev. Calvin Cantrell serving as Evangelist and Edison Chapman directing the music.

Services are scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The church nursery will be provided for all services.

A Homecoming Day with dinner on the ground has been planned for August 13.

Canada's EXPO 1967 is certainly getting a philatelic "ride" from various countries as new stamps honoring the event are being issued by participating nations. Most depict the pavilions of the countries. A new EXPO stamp from Iceland, however, shows two maps. On the left is a map of 1500 illustrating Iceland's position in the then-known world. The map is the left shows a modern map version.

Morals Of Today Said Not Worse

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — The bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of southern Virginia says "the moral decline among young people today is not any worse than it was in my day—and I'm not at all sure moral decline is the proper term."

There are signs of moral decline everywhere, says the Rt. Rev. David Rose, "but I can't help remembering that when I was young there were manifestations of some of our problems which caused older generations to say the same thing about us."

"There are newer and more sensational ways to express moral questions, but we see tremendous things that young people produce in the midst of their other rebellion. We are in a revolutionary age in ever sense of the word and I don't see how young people can help being caught up in this age."

Rebellion against real and supposed authority, Bishop Rose said in an interview, always has been a part of youth. But in a heavy percentage of cases, he added, the rebellious ones return to the beliefs of the church.

"When they (youth) come back, they usually come back on their own," he said. "When they do, they return healthier for the experience. It is, after all, something they have fought with as an adult and decided for themselves."

The Episcopal Church is becoming more the haven for intellectualism it once was, the bishop said. One sign, he said, is the new theology and new morality. He also cited an "increasing exodus of clergy from parish ministry to specialized types of ministry outside the institutional church, such as the Peace Corps, poverty programs, welfare and the like."

But he said he is not pleased with the exodus.

"A great deal of it is born out of impatience and an unwillingness to accept the basic principle of working with people where they are. A minister may get the idea his parishioners are immovable and want to go where he can see some tangible results." While the existing church is under more criticism than at any time in recent years, he stated, it is in no more danger of extinction.

"We are making plans to keep pace. We haven't kept pace in the past because everything happens so fast now that nobody really understands what is happening. But the problems of today will pass and be changed, just as the 'God is dead' theory has, apparently. We will have new sets of problems in a few years."

Ecumenism has affected the Episcopal Church to some degree, he said, because of misunderstanding about its ultimate goal.

"In truth, we don't know where it will lead, but we believe God will direct it and want to be free to go where God leads. I don't believe, though, in my lifetime we will be organically united with all or other Christian church. I'm not sure that this will happen at all."

Antioch Church Slates Revival

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Revival services will begin today at Antioch Baptist Church here with homecoming and dinner on the grounds.

The Rev. Mickey J. Bounds, pastor of Pleasant Hill Baptist Church, will be evangelist.

The revival will continue through August 13, according to the Rev. John Cutrer, church pastor.

Parnell-Askin Wedding Held In Natchez Church

Miss Carole Marie Askin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carole Monroe Askin of Houghton, became the bride of Jerry Thomas Parnell in a ceremony solemnized Saturday, July 22, at First Assembly of God Church in Natchez, Miss. Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Thomas Parnell of Vidalia, formerly of Monroe, are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. W. H. Richardson officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. The young couple knelt beneath an arch entwined with ivy and flanked with baskets of white gladioli. Music was provided by Mrs. Tommy Tucker, organist; and Mr. Tucker, soloist.

Donald Ray Askin of Jonesboro escorted his sister to the altar and gave her in marriage. She was attired in white crepe styled on Empire lines with straight skirt and long tapered sleeves. A band of lace emphasized the waistline, where the chapel train was attached. A crown of pearls held her veil of illusion. She carried a bride's Bible crested with a white purple throated orchid surrounded with white carnations.

The bride's attendants were Miss Shirley Jean Dancy of Shreveport, maid of honor; Miss Anita Sue Cox of Shreveport, bridesmaid. Skirts of their sleeveless dresses of aqua silk were accented at one side with a line of buttons to the floor. Two aqua roses formed their headresses.

Miss Shirley Ellen Pullen of Natchez, formerly of West Monroe, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a floor length dress of aqua peau de soie with bell sleeves. In her hair was a wreath of white bows and flowers.

Attending the bridegroom were Edward Cupstid of Ferriday, best man; Edwin Beach of Vidalia and Dale Jamison of Natchez, groomsmen; and Kenneth Ensminger of Ferriday and David Ogden Wickliffe of New Orleans, ushers.

Mrs. Askin chose for her daughter's wedding a threepiece ensemble of aqua knit, while Mrs. Parnell wore a costume of shrimp and white. Their corsages were of white carnations.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Guest were registered by Mrs. David Ogden Wickliffe, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was covered with white lace and centered with a white net swan. Miss Brenda Richardson cut the bride's cake and Mrs. Luvonne Shirley served punch. Miss Rhonda Richardson was tea girl.

When the bride and groom left on their wedding trip to New Orleans, Mrs. Parnell was wearing a three piece beige knit suit with an orchid corsage. Upon their return, they will live in Natchez.

SEAFOOD SAUCE

A cream sauce for seafood tastes especially good when sautéed green pepper and canned pimiento (both diced) are added. Slivered ripe olives also make an excellent addition.

SUBSTITUTION

NEW YORK (UPI) — No cheesecloth handy when a recipe calls for tying spices in "a little cloth bag"? Use the new, sturdy disposable towels. Cut a small swatch from one of the towels and tie the spices in the usual manner. The disposables are made of non-woven rayon, with soft mesh-like texture. They can be used, too, when a recipe says "wrap fruit cake in brandy-soaked cloth" or when making jellies.

MISS JERRY T. PARNELL

MISS CAROL JEAN ALLEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd G. Allen of New Iberia, is engaged to be married to Jimmy Dale Post, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Forrest Post of Spearsville. The wedding is to be solemnized Saturday evening, September 2, at Highland Baptist church, New Iberia.

MISS LORRAINE GALE COOK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cook of Spartanburg, S. C., will be married to Stanley Tony Eshliones August 18 in First Baptist Church of Spartanburg. The bride-elect is a senior at Furman University, Greenville, S. C. Mr. Eshliones, who was reared at the Baptist Children's home in Monroe, has completed a tour of duty in the U. S. Army and plans to enter the University of South Carolina.

MISS SHIRLEY MARIE HOLDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Holder of Killeen, Tex., is to be wed to Lt. Jerry H. Pace, U.S. Army. Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Pace of Toombs, Miss., formerly of Monroe, are parents of the prospective bridegroom. The bride-elect is a 1967 graduate of Mary Hardin Baylor college, Belton, Tex., while Lt. Pace was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College in 1966.

Man, Wife, Daughter Slaughtered

GEORGETOWN, Tex. (AP) — Seven carefully aimed shots from a .22-caliber rifle killed a popular professor, his pretty daughter and his sleeping wife early Saturday.

Found dead in their one-story home in this town 30 miles north of Austin were Dr. Frank Wolcott, 56, a biology professor at Southwestern University; his wife, Elizabeth, 43; and their daughter, also named Elizabeth, 17.

The Wolcotts' son, Jim, 15, was taken before County Judge Sam Stone and told of his constitutional rights. Stone said a juvenile delinquency hearing—a civil proceeding—would be held early next week.

No criminal charges were filed. Juvenile cases under Texas law are civil.

Police Chief Frank Masur said the youth had made an oral statement.

"I can't find a motive or anything," Masur said.

Beatle Cuts Out

ASUNCION (AP) — Paraguay's government has banned Beatle-type haircuts for boys "in defense of the masculine virtues of the Paraguayan man." A spokesman said several long-haired youths arrested in the capital will be released after a police barber cuts their hair.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Swimming Pool Perils

In the swimming pool at an amusement park, a small boy—gripping the edge—slowly pulled himself toward the deep end.

Nearby sat a lifeguard. But the lifeguard was showing less interest in small boys than in big girls. Finally one beauty so captured his attention that he left his post to take her for a stroll. By the time he returned, the boy had drowned.

Was the management legally liable for the boy's death? A court said yes, because the tragedy probably could have been averted if the lifeguard had been doing his duty.

Not only amusement parks but also hotels and motels are, with growing frequency, providing swimming pools for their patrons. These pools, privately owned but open to the public, are subject to certain basic rules of negligence law.

First of all, the management must take all precautions reasonably called for by the peculiar hazards of the sport. That includes not only safe facilities but also adequate policing of behavior.

Thus, a hotel was held liable when a woman swimmer was hit in the face by a large, heavy ball. Four youths had been hurling the ball around the pool at full speed—a game which, said the court, could and should have been halted by those in charge.

However, policing cannot be expected to make accidents altogether impossible. In another case, a boy was injured when a companion suddenly shoved him off the diving board.

But this time the court put no legal responsibility on the management, since even the strictest supervision would not have prevented such an impulsive and unpredictable prank.

Furthermore, the victim himself may be guilty of negligence if he fails to exercise common caution. For instance, a court held it was negligent for a poor swimmer to enter the deep end of the pool when he was already suffering from cramps.

What if the cause of the mishap remains a mystery? As a rule that relieves the management of responsibility.

In one case, a girl wading in a hotel pool suffered a bad cut when she stepped on

Candidates In Vietnam Campaigning

SAIGON (UPI) — Presidential candidates all in a group began a speaking tour of the nation Saturday as the Viet Cong issued orders for assassin teams to kill them if they can.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky were not planning to accompany the 10 civilian candidates, a spokesman said. Informed sources said the front-running military ticket did not want to draw crowds for the other candidates.

The Viet Cong assassination orders were disclosed in a Communist document captured by government troops in Kien Phong province in the Mekong Delta. It also urged a "complete boycott" of the Sept. 3 election, and for guerrillas to attack the thousands of government information, pacification and propaganda cadre promoting the election.

a fragment of clear glass. No one knew how long the glass had been there. No one knew how it had gotten there in the first place.

Under these circumstances, the court denied the girl's claim for damages. The court felt that blaming the hotel for such an unexplained accident would be sheer guesswork.

Background Given On Fire Aboard Carrier Forrestal

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — On her first war patrol off North Vietnam, the U.S. supercarrier Forrestal was swinging into the wind again after four consecutive days of launching planes against Communist targets.

The weather had not been too good. But it appeared that clearing skies would offer the opportunity for the 76,000-ton warship to unleash her full 80-plane strike force.

Pilots returning from early morning raids reported good weather over the North. The Gulf of Tonkin was almost calm. Spirits were high as the young pilots went to briefings on the day's second strike.

The target area of northeast Vietnam included the MIG airfield at Kep and a railroad line leading from Hanoi to Red China.

The 12-year-old Forrestal, completely refitted last year with the most modern equipment, appeared eager to flex her muscles as America's third largest warship.

Appropriately, she flew the flag of Rear Adm. Harvey P. Lanham, commander of Carrier Division II and one of the Navy's most distinguished aviators—a decorated veteran of the fabled carrier Enterprise in World War II who in 1950 led the first Navy jet strike against North Korea.

The Forrestal was to begin launching planes at 11 a.m. At 10:51, the awesome steam catapults hurled two giant tanker planes into the sky to insure that the fuel-gulping attack jets could reach their targets and return safely.

The destroyer Tucker bobbed astern. A helicopter was overhead in case some pilot went into the drink on take off.

A brisk, 32-knot wind swept over the four-acre flight deck. Jet engines were started. The navigator's chart showed the Forrestal was at 19 degrees, 9 minutes, 30 seconds north latitude and 107 degrees, 23 minutes, 30 seconds east longitude. The time was 10:53 a.m. July 29.

In that moment began a fiery ordeal surpassing any warship disaster since the Japanese Kamikaze attacks of World War II. It cost 129 men killed, at least 64 injured and three missing. There were 21 jets destroyed or jettisoned and 42 damaged. The material loss easily exceeded $100 million.

The impending disaster was first seen by Kenneth Fabiani, a 21-year-old seaman from Barrington, N.J., whose station was in the glass-enclosed flight center high on the island superstructure. He was looking toward the ship's stern where 14 A4 Skyhawk jets, each with about 5,000 pounds of explosives, were being readied for flight.

"As I was looking down I saw a small fire," he said. "I holered to the command that there was a fire on the flight deck."

A chief petty officer grabbed a fire extinguisher and ran into the blaze, which flared beneath Skyhawk No. 405 on the port side of the deck. He died in a split second when a 1,000-pound bomb exploded, blasting a hole in the armored flight deck big enough to drop a truck through. The roar was heard on the destroyer Rupertus a quarter of a mile away. The doctor of the Rupertus, George Hamilton, said: "You could see a large orange-yellow flame on the fantail of the ship and then she was completely engulfed in smoke. It seemed as if the ship had disappeared before our very eyes."

No one of the 4,300-man crew is sure precisely what happened in those few seconds. The fire evidently started because of a ruptured fuel tank on the Skyhawk. That will be weighed by an investigating board.

It is clear, however, that the Forrestal suffered grievously in those first few seconds.

Lanham believes that perhaps half the casualties took place in the first 30 minutes when bombs and rockets were ripping the decks. Perhaps 40 of the dead were men below the explosions.

Cmdr. John Dewinter of Bloomington, Ill., the air wing commander, recalls six or seven big explosions, close together, and many smaller ones. In the flight deck are six gaping holes evidently caused by 1,000-pound bombs.

On his second combat tour in Vietnam, Dewinter is typical of the elite crew aboard the Forrestal. A Chinese-language student, he has studied at six universities and completed the Army War College course.

He rushed to the flight deck when the fire alarm sounded. "On my way aft I met a wall of people, most of them badly wounded, their clothes torn and burning," he said.

Dewinter saw one of his pilots trying to run to safety. The pilot was killed in a blast while running down the line of burning planes.

The pilot of Skyhawk No. 405 died in the first explosion. Fabiani was watching from his perch.

"All of a sudden the fire got bigger," he said. "I saw the chief running in there. He was in real close, but he wasn't doing too good. The plane cap-

Hattiesburg Boycott In Third Week

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Negroes whose boycott brought about the shutdown of Hattiesburg's city bus line rejected a peace offer from the company as the boycott moved toward the end of its third week.

The company, which lost three-fourths of its business when the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People called a tight boycott July 18, has been closed since July 20. There is a chance it will be closed permanently.

The bus boycott was one of two tactics used by the NAACP in its attempt to get the city to agree to meet its demands.

The other was a boycott of white merchants in the downtown area, and it has apparently proved effective. Few Negroes are seen in the shopping area. Some merchants, however, say their total volume is as high as it was without the Negro business.

Revocation Of Passport Considered

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Black power advocate Stokely Carmichael Saturday called for the destruction of the "capitalist system" as the only way to end racial discrimination in the United States.

Interviewed by the government-controlled Havana Radio, Carmichael renewed his call for Negroes to launch a guerrilla war in American cities. A Spanish text of the interview was published by the official newspaper Granma.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A move to return Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael to the United States and revoke his U.S. passport was disclosed Saturday by the State Department.

A spokesman said U.S. consular officers abroad have been alerted to Carmichael's expected departure from Cuba shortly and have been told to stamp his passport "valid only for return to the United States."

White Soldiers Play It Cagey

KINSHASA (UPI) — Rebelious white mercenaries soldiers bottled up by the Congolese army in the eastern Congo jungle Saturday kept the government guessing about their next move.

If the Congolese army knows what the mercenaries are up to, it is keeping the knowledge to itself.

The group of 120 to 150 tough French and Belgian soldiers-of-fortune last Tuesday tried to break through a ring the Congolese army is drawing tighter around them.

A thought for the day—German novelist Thomas Mann said: "Human reason needs only to will more strongly than fate and she is fate."

tain ran out and he was on fire. The crash crew was coming down and I saw the pilot come out partially on fire. All of a sudden a big explosion went off. Everybody hit the deck. Then some of them struggled away, but most of them just lay there."

The glass window in front of Fabiani was shattered by shrapnel and he, too, hit the deck.

As the explosions spread, Lt. Cmdr. John S. McCain escaped from his flaming jet by crawling out of the long refueling nozzle and dropping to the deck.

Lt. Cmdr. Herb Hope of Virginia Beach, Va., was in the plane farthest aft. He jumped out and rolled through the flames into the safety net just below the flight deck. Seconds later, a bomb exploded and blew debris over his head. He scampered to the other side of the net just before the whole intersection of the deck, where his plane had been, disappeared.

A 1,000-pound bomb blew a gaping hole through the flight deck, the deck below and into the cavernous hangar deck, jammed with planes and bombs. "The bomb knocked me down," related Lt. J.G. Emory Brown, 24, of Savannah, Ga., who was on the hangar deck. "It came down with a fireball you wouldn't have believed."

Brown set about dumping bombs and missiles over the side and getting fire hoses into the hangar bay. The big doors of the hangar deck were quickly closed, sealing it off. A party of gasping men reached the flight elevator on the ship's side and Brown held a ladder while they climbed precariously to safety.

Brown saw four sailors trapped on a sort of ledge further aft. They were saved when the destroyer Mackenzie nudged in and sprayed water on them for more than an hour.

A man fell from the flight deck in flames. He screamed, "Oh, my God!" as he went down.

A junior grade lieutenant from St. Petersburg, Fla., Robert Cates, 24, went around taking the fuses from bombs. As the ordinance expert on the ship, that was his job. He carried it to extreme limits, twice defusing bombs that were steaming hot.

A live, 500-pound bomb got blown down a 15-foot hold. Ordnanceman 2.C. Lonnie Black of Dublin, Tex., was lowered into the hold on a rope, with flames all about him, and defused the bomb.

"Nobody hesitated," Cates said. "Nobody had time."

On the bridge, Capt. John K. Beling, 48, had altered course so wind would not fan the flames. Within half an hour he had radioed that his ship was in serious trouble.

A studious man who holds a doctor's degree in nuclear physics, Beling considered the possibility that his great ship might be lost. It wasn't probable, Beling said later, but for a time it was certainly possible.

At "Yankee Station," the imprecise geographic point in the Gulf of Tonkin from which strikes against North Vietnam are launched, the war came to a momentary standstill as ships rushed to aid the Forrestal.

Her wounded were being flown to the carrier Oriskany, the carrier Bon Homme Richard, the hospital ship Repose, and to bases at Da Nang and Subic Bay. Destroyers were plucking more out of the water.

Two air force helicopters—nearly for possible rescue missions in North Vietnam—made emergency flights to the Forrestal.

For 26 hours, the crew stood at general quarters, with no rest and little food.

At midnight, the Forrestal messaged that the worst was over. She headed at 27 knots for Subic Bay, 900 miles away. Flash fires broke out repeatedly along the way. Even after she docked there were small fires.

FOUR THOUSAND tons of steel pipe is being unloaded at Lake Providence Port this week for delivery at Perryville, near Bastrop. This is the port's first consignment of heavy steel pipe and Port Director Harvey Grant predicts this is a forerunner to other shipments.

Port Of Lake Providence Handling Pipe Shipment

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The Port of Lake Providence is now handling its first consignment of cargo consisting of heavy steel pipe.

Five open hopper barge loads of pipe from Houston, Tex., are being unloaded by Port Operations, Inc., of Vicksburg, Miss., a lessee of the Lake Providence Port Commission.

The shipment is being delivered to Texas Gas Transmission Company for pipeline construction at Perryville, south of Bastrop.

Unloaded directly from the barges by the Port Commission's crawler crane onto pipe-hauling trucks operated by T. E. Mercer Trucking Company, Ft. Worth, Tex. The steel is hauled about 60 miles to its destination.

Fifteen trucks are shuttling between the port and Perryville moving approximately 4000 tons of steel.

The pipe is 36 inches in diameter and its length varies from 30 to 40 feet, weighing approximately 4,500 pounds. Six lengths of pipe loaded in pyramid fashion make up a truck load.

Port Director Harvey Grant points out that the economic value of this mode of transportation — barges in combination with truck services — is being utilized more and more frequently by steel companies and other industries.

Grant predicts that this pipe movement is the forerunner of many other shipments destined to come through the port, because of this proximity to many pipelines traversing this area.

Monsanto Boosts Crude Oil Price

EL DORADO, Ark. (Special) — Monsanto Company has increased posted prices by five cents per barrel on crude oil purchased in South Arkansas.

Effective August 1, the new postings affected some 25,000 barrels of daily production in this area.

All of the crude included in the price increase is regularly utilized by the company's Lion Oil refinery at El Dorado.

State Group Installs New Officers At Meet

An installation and awards banquet and dance on the Hotel Frances Roof Saturday night climaxed the two-day convention of the Louisiana Society of Radiologic Technologists.

At the banquet J. V. Leggett was installed as president of the organization for the coming year. Red Guard Besieging Man's Home

HONG KONG (UPI)—Red Guard mobs are besieging the Peking residence of Communist Chinese President Liu Shao-chi in a campaign to drag him out and publicly humiliate him, reports from there said Saturday.

Japanese newsmen said more than 100,000 supporters of party chief Mao Tse-tung were expected Sunday to try to drag Liu into the streets. Liu is Mao's biggest rival in the Chinese power-struggle.

The newsmen said more than 700 Red Guard units have pitched tents around Liu's official residence.

Liu has been savagely attacked in the official propaganda organs as "China's Khrushchev" and a "capitalist powerholder," but authorities have apparently barred any direct physical assault. His home was reported under heavy guard.

However, the Japanese correspondents said party leaders would not allow the Red Guards to seize Liu in an attempt to make him publicly confess his "crimes" against Mao.

The Japanese reports came as Peking Radio conceded that rebellious elements "in all regions" of China were carrying out "mad new attacks."

One of the trouble spots was Ghanghai, China's largest city, where rebellious factory workers held members of the city's revolutionary government and other Maoists hostage.

Shanghai Radio said 100,000 persons staged a rally to protest the action of the workers.

The Shanghai newspaper Liberation Daily said the workers—or "bad elements"—opposed the posting of troops in their factory.

The Maoist paper accused supporters of Liu of organizing various groups to create a "big chaos" in the city.

The Peking Radio broadcast an editorial from the official Peking Peoples Daily admitting that Liu and his supporters "have occupied a base in our country's power structure on a rather large scale" with help from some military officers.

However, the editorial added, "We must understand that the bourgeois headquarters' powers to command have been seized, but the bourgeois reaction line they have pursued for so long a time has left very deep poisons and very extensive influences."

In Hong Kong, the right-wing newspaper Sing Tao daily reported that Communist Chinese troops have tightened security checks along China's border with the British colony to quell a wave of attempted escapes.

Rights Chief Is Arrested For Threat

BOSTON (AP) — A leader of a Boston civil rights group was arrested Saturday and charged with promotion of anarchy for an alleged threat to burn down the city of Boston.

Ivan Gonzalez, 30, of Boston, the director of the South End Neighborhood Action Program (SNAP), was arrested in a corridor at Boston Municipal Court.

Gonzalez was in court to appear as a witness in a trial. Police said that on July 26 Gonzalez, attending the trial of two men in Municipal Court, said, "We're going to burn this city unless we have our own way."

Police said he repeated the statement Aug. 1 in front of a Boston police station, where he was picketing in protest of the arrest of two men.

Municipal Court Judge Elijah Adlow released Gonzalez in $500 bail for trial Aug. 19. The maximum penalty for promotion of anarchy is a $1,000 fine and three years in prison.

Police said he moved to Boston several weeks ago from New York City.

ABA Head Promotes Cost Cut

HONOLULU (AP) — The incoming president of the American Bar Association criticized the legal profession Saturday for failing to provide service to "middle-class" Americans at a price they can afford.

Earl F. Morris, a Columbus, Ohio, attorney, said two possible solutions are to expand lawyer referral and neighborhood law offices and to encourage group legal services.

Morris, who takes over as ABA president at the close of the association's 90th annual convention next Thursday, spoke to the American Law Student Association.

The legal profession, he said, has "rendered reasonably effective legal services at both ends of the economic spectrum." But, he said, "we have failed in substantial measure to educate what for want of a better term is called 'the middle class' to the need for legal services and then to make them available at a cost they can afford to pay."

Indonesian Nationalists Attack Reds

JAKARTA (UPI)—Smashing through the great wooden gate of Communist China's sprawling embassy compound, frenzied Indonesian nationalists Saturday gutted two buildings with Molotov Cocktails and were met by burst of automatic gunfire from barricaded Peking diplomats.

Police said the Communists shot and wounded four youths and an Indonesian trooper from vantage points in a fortress-like inner compound. Some of the invaders were also armed with pistols.

In Peking, Communist China placed all Indonesian diplomats under house arrest and delivered a formal protest note. Peking radio reported. The broadcast said four diplomats were wounded while Indonesian troops stood by and ignored the invasion.

Five Held For Gold Tiara Theft

JERUSALEM (AP) — Church sources disclosed Saturday that five young men have been arrested in connection with the theft of a priceless, diamond-encrusted gold tiara from a statue of the Virgin Mary in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

They said more than 20 persons were questioned after the theft Wednesday. The 3½-foot statue was in a glass case in the Franciscan Chapel of the Nailing to the Cross, where tradition says Christ was crucified. It is one of Christendom's most holy places.

Monaco Royalty Rides Cane Car

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The royalty of Monaco rode a cable car Saturday and played the role of tourist in San Francisco along with hundreds of other visitors.

Prince Rainier, Princess Grace and their three children resumed their American tour here after it was interrupted in Montreal when the Princess suffered a miscarriage.

"A very pretty place—San Francisco. Prettier than Marseille, prettier than a lot of places, but not prettier than Monaco," Rainier commented after a yacht tour on San Francisco Bay with his children.

It's Great to Have a Newspaper Route—Especially in Summer

• THERE'S NOTHING like a newspaper route to keep an enterprising teen-ager busy and happy all summer! It gives him something regular to do during school vacation, assures him of a steady income, and offers him so many opportunities for profit and pleasure he's often the envy of lads who rely on parents or odd jobs for money.

IN SUMMER, your newspaperboy has more time in which to serve his customers, enlarge his route list and earnings, and engage in other gainful tasks — and still have much of each day free for outdoor sports; plus the extra money to enjoy them more fully!

THAT'S WHY more carrier-boys than ever are holding on to their newspaper routes this summer. They know a good thing when they see it! They also plan to return to school next fall, and make the most of the TWO-FOLD opportunity they have — to complete their schooling and obtain business training as well! Does YOUR son have a newspaper route this summer?

Justice Douglas Criticizes Truman

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Justice William O. Douglas, in a dissenting opinion today, criticized President Truman's handling of the Supreme Court nomination process. He argued that the President's actions were "unbecomingly partisan" and "unbecomingly political." Douglas stated that the President's nomination of a "young man" to the Court was "a mere political maneuver" and that the President had "acted in a manner unworthy of the office." He also criticized the President's "unbecomingly partisan" handling of the nomination process, stating that the President had "acted in a manner unworthy of the office."

Budgetary Deficit Could Cause Ruinous Inflation

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—"If the government continues to run a large budgetary deficit, it will cause a ruinous inflation," warned a leading economist today. He stated that the government's "unwarranted expansion of the money supply" was the "principal cause" of the inflation. The economist argued that the government's "unwarranted expansion of the money supply" was the "principal cause" of the inflation. He stated that the government's "unwarranted expansion of the money supply" was the "principal cause" of the inflation.

Marriage As Doomed

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—"The marriage is doomed," declared a leading sociologist today. He stated that the "breakdown of the family" was the "principal cause" of the social problems of the country. The sociologist argued that the "breakdown of the family" was the "principal cause" of the social problems of the country. He stated that the "breakdown of the family" was the "principal cause" of the social problems of the country.

Government Backs Waiver Request

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The government today backed a request for a waiver of the Selective Training and Service Act. The request was made by a group of men who were unable to serve in the military due to physical disabilities. The government stated that it was "unable to find any other way" to serve these men and that it was "unable to find any other way" to serve these men.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

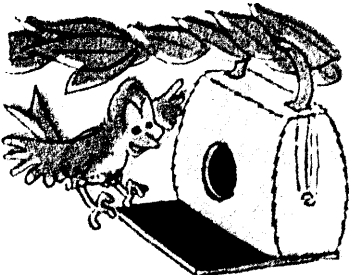

DEAR HELOISE:

May I suggest a good use for worn-out or outmoded straw purses, especially large ones? Get the handyman in the family to convert them into bird houses. Or they can be used as a bag for hair rollers.

Liz

Dear Liz:

You are a whiz. All that handyman has to do is cut a small hole in one side of the straw purse, nail it on a board, and maybe put a piece of plastic over the top to keep the rain out. With a can of spray paint he can make that bird house any color and help protect it from the weather. One bird house extraordinary! Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For a change of pace, substitute bacon grease and bits of crisp, crumbled bacon in your biscuit recipe in place of regular shortening. It really gives biscuits a delicious flavor.

E. M. McNulty

TRUE BLUE SCOUT

DEAR HELOISE:

My son is a member of the Cub Scouts, and I have solved the problem of keeping his nice blue pants blue at the knees.

I use a blue waterproof marker and color the pants' knees to cover the white scuffed-up places.

Mary Moyer

HI, LITTLE ANGEL!

DEAR HELOISE:

My year-old daughter is petite and small-boned. She outgrew the tops of her diaper sets in length but not in the shoulders. However, I did not discard them.

Now I use the tops for "angel" tops over her corduroy crawlers, and she has "new" outfits. All my neighbors think it's a good idea, and they look cute.

Mrs. Donald McMillin

TIDY BATH MATS

DEAR HELOISE:

For safety, use colored bars of soap in white bathtubs, and white bars in colored tubs.

Being able to see the bar of soap will help to avoid accidents which might occur from stepping on the soap, slipping, and falling.

Mrs. E. L. Holiman

ANNIVERSARY NOTE

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't know if this really qualifies as a hint, but my wife had such a good idea that I thought it should be passed along.

After nine years of married life, my wife was reflecting upon those wedding gifts we received which we were still using with such pleasure. This prompted her to write "thank you" notes AGAIN to those who had given us such nice gifts.

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share... write to Heloise in care of this newspaper.

It seemed to me to be an appropriate expression of appreciation beyond the routine note following the wedding. Our extra notes of thanks were happily received by those who were pleased to know that their nice gifts were still being used and that they were still being thought of many years later.

Mr. J. G. Johnson

Your goodness will reign forever. A great big "God bless you!" Love, Heloise

WOOLGATHERING TOO?

DEAR HELOISE:

Use your tank vacuum cleaner to remove the dust and lint from heavy clothing and blankets.

This is especially good for electric blankets, heavy winter coats, trouser cuffs, inside pockets, etc., and much easier than brushing and shaking.

Mrs. F. J. B.

DEAR HELOISE:

We never could find a good place to dry the wet non-slip rubber mat we use in the bottom of the bathtub.

I cut the top from a half-gallon bleach bottle, then made holes in the bottom so it would drain. Now we just roll up the mat, stick it in the bleach bottle and stand it in the corner of the tub.

Roy T. Hays

"WHY CAN'T I GO?"

DEAR HELOISE:

This is a hint to prevent sad tears when older brothers and sisters go off to school.

Our little three-year-old queen gets a new "school" dress (to wear to P.T.A., carnivals, etc.) and I buy her a box of colors and a color book. Our other children give her their old supplies and last year's workbooks.

Every morning when the older children leave for school, we get out a TV tray and set her up for an hour or so of "school". She looks forward to it, and there are no more tears when the older children leave.

Lonely Gal's Mom

PLEASE WRITE SOON

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a tip on how to keep up with unanswered letters from relatives and friends.

When I receive a letter, I address an envelope to the sender and place it in my stationery box, putting the date I received the letter on the inside of the flap.

This way I know who is owed a letter and also when I received theirs.

Mrs. R. L. Rudy

IT GROWS ON YOU!

DEAR HELOISE:

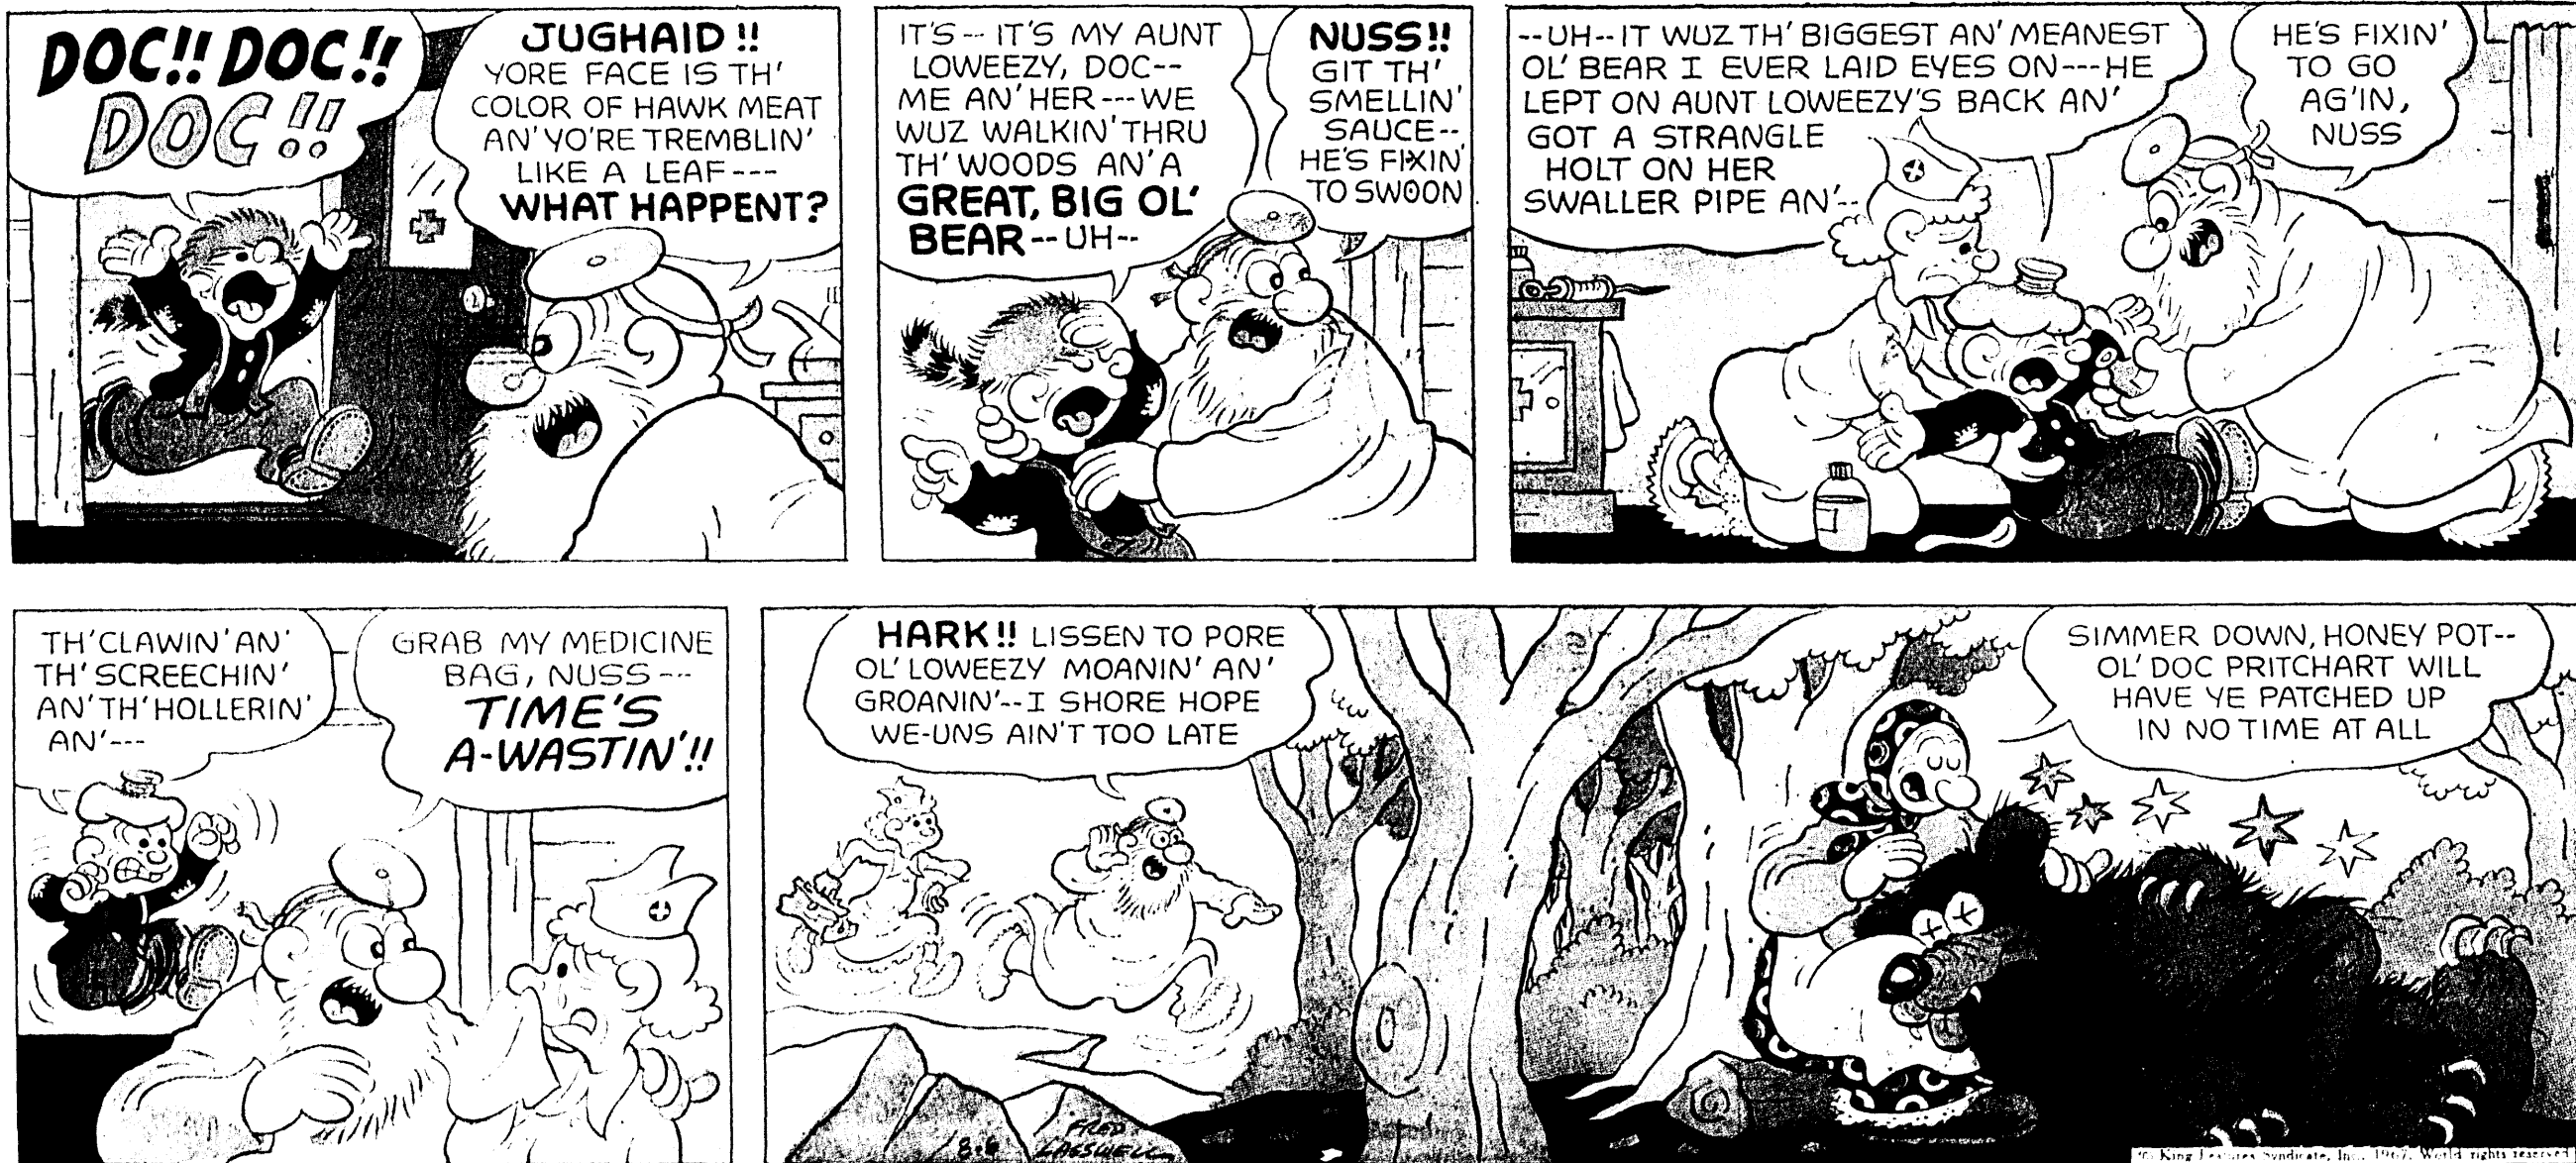

When I was pregnant and my clothes got too tight, I put a rubber band in the buttonhole of my skirt plackets and looped it over the button. This provided the needed stretch and let me wear my skirts for a longer period of time.

Since rubber bands come in different sizes, you can keep changing to a larger one as needed.
